Cease-Fire For Ireland Agreed

DUBLIN (UPI)—The Provisional Wing of the Irish Republican Army today offered a cease-fire in Northern Ireland as of midnight Monday if Britain would reciprocate. The British Government accepted the offer.

Northern Ireland Secretary of State William Whitelaw told the House of Commons in London, "If offensive operations by the IRA in Northern Ireland cease at midnight Monday (7 p.m. EDT) British forces will obviously reciprocate."

The militent Provisional Wing offered to suspend all offensive operations in Northern Ireland "provided a public reciprocal response" is forthcoming from British forces. The more moderate Official Wing had agreed earlier to a cease-fire.

Merlyn Rees, Labor opposition spokesmen for Northern Ireland, told Whitelaw "We welcome—this is an understatement—the news of the ceasefire and note your response concerning the role of the army." He called it a turning point in the years of strife.

Whitelaw replied: "I have always said the first objective is a cessation of violence. On that everything must depend."But he warned that "many grave dangers lie ahead."

Asked about so-called "no go" areas in Londonderry—strongholds held by the IRA—Whitelaw said, "Once there is a cease-fire let me proceed as I believe best. I wish to see the cease-fire first. I have my own views how I shall proceed afterwards."

North Viet Unit Begins My Chanh River Charge

SAIGON (UPI)—North Vietnemese troops crossed the My Chanh River in regimental strength and attacked South Vietnamese paratroops today in the heaviest drive across the northern defense line since Quang Tri Province fell May 1.

One allied source said the Communist attack, backed by Soviet-built tanks and 130mm cannons, might be the start of the long awaited offensive against Hue, 20 miles to the south.

At the same time the North Vietnamese attacked the western half of the defense line, at least four of the six South Vietnamese battalions advancing into Communist-held Quang Tri Province on the eastern half fell back south of the river, which forms the province's southern boundary.

Huntley said the Marine pullback after five days of fighting had been planned before the Communist attack. Even so, the pullback helped consolidate the South Vietnamese positions.

Huntley was told the Marines, in their furthest advance yet into Quang Tri province (up to six miles, but never closer than 10 miles to the city of Quang Tri) left behind some small "combat outposts" when they withdrew.

Heavy fighting which began around midnight was continu-

Two Rulings On Schools Reversed

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Supreme Court today prohibited state and local governments from carving out new school districts if the effect would be to impede racial desegregation.

The Court spelled out its edict in two school cases — from North Carolina and Virginia — where federal district judges barred the remapped school zones but were overruled by the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. The Supreme Court reversed the appeals court in both rulings.

In other major actions, the Court ruled that:

—Unions may legally make political contributions in federal elections if the funds come from voluntary donations. The decision reversing the conviction of two St. Louis union local leaders may have a bearing on the recent conviction of United Mine Workers President W. A. "Tony" Boyle and Secretary-Treasurer John Owens on charges of violating the same federal law.

—A white defendant has the same right as a black or other minority member to challenge his conviction or indictment by juries from which Negroes were excluded.

Civic Center Rollback In Security Agreed

By ERIK M. INGRAM

The board, which first voted to abolish entrance checkpoints altogether, partially reversed itself after judges Henry Broderick and E. Warren McGuire tossed out thinly veiled threats that the courts would reimpose the security.

"Don't think we will sit by idly and let these checkpoints be eliminated," warned McGuire, who had called a court recess to attend the hearing.

McGuire, holding up a newspaper clipping of the attempted bombing of the sheriff's substation in Marin City six weeks ago, called it an example that Marin is still a target of violence.

"I want you to realize that the courts have certain inherent rights to provide security of the courts ...," he said, adding that under the law it could be reimposed.

Both judges urged tight security remain in force for another six months — the time estimated to complete court proceedings for six San Quentin inmates charged with murder during an escape attempt.

The compromise, arrived at after lengthy discussion which started before lunch and continued afterward at the judges' request, will eliminate checkpoints and searches at entrances except when the six inmates are in court.

Other security measures, such as roving patrols inside and outside the complex, will remain in force at all times, as recommended by County Administrator John F. Barrows.

In all, the security force will be reduced by 11 of its 26 deputies with three scheduled to go to the sheriff's patrol division and others to the proposed "honor farm" for jail inmates if it is approved.

Discussion of Civic Center security came as supervisors continued their deliberation on a record $47.4 million budget proposed by Barrows.

By reducing the level of security, the board hopes to save about $100,000. This year's security cost was $450,000.

Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos warned that reduced security could open the buildings to future attack, but did not insist on retaining checkpoints.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner told the board: "I'm not going to keep people in court if a scare comes in (without full security measures). We may be out 24 hours a day but I'm not going to keep people in under compulsion and they are (in court) under compulsion."

Broderick said reducing security, once reported in the newspapers, will "invite every nut in the country to Marin ..."

Supervisor Louis H. Baar, who voted with the others for eliminating the checkpoints altogether at first, was willing to compromise with the judges, but Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni told the judges to impose their court-ordered security "because I'll be damned if I'm doing to continue voting taxpayers' dollars ..."

The compromise solution, (which McGuire said he will evaluate before giving an opinion), drew Arrigoni's support, however.

(The county grand jury has also endorsed elimination of checkpoints.

Most outspoken opponents of the security were supervisors Arnold M. Baptiste and Michael Wornum.

Agnes Dumps Foot Of Rain In Capital

At Least 19 Dead From Worst Storm In Decades

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Tropical storm Agnes pounded the northeastern United States with gales and up to a foot of rain today, causing a mounting death toll and creating some of the worst storm conditions in decades.

At least 19 persons were dead from the rejuvenated Agnes, which was born in the Caribbean last weekend as a hurricane.

The most rain fell on the Washington area in 44 years and more than 10,000 persons were evacuated from their homes in the capital region. Thousands of other persons were driven from their homes at Wellsville, N. Y., in what the mayor called the city's "worst natural disaster."

The earthen walls of the Lake Roland reservoir were crumbling in Baltimore and officials ordered thousands of persons to evacuate in the heavily populated Jones Fall Valley.

Victims included nine persons, six of them motorists, in Virginia; four persons in Pennsylvania, including a baby torn from its father's hands; four in Maryland including 3 children swept away in a car, and two persons in North Carolina.

Four of the deaths were in the Washington area storm. One woman was swept from her car in suburban Silver Spring, Md., and a body was found near a fire that destroyed a 15-store shopping center at Arlandria, Va. Two bodies were found in Fairfax County, Va.

The 7.1 inches that fell at Washington's National Airport was the most since the record 7.31 inches Aug. 11-12, 1928. Twelve inches fell on Big Meadows, Va., and 11 on Dulles International Airport in the Virginia horse country outside Washington.

Pennsylvania Gov. Milton Shapp mobilized the National Guard to cope with a "state of extreme emergency."

Agnes, which claimed 16 lives earlier in the week when it struck Florida and Cuba as the nation's first hurricane of the season, was centered this morning over New Jersey and was moving toward New York City at about 15 miles an hour.

The National Weather Service, in a 9 a.m. EDT bulletin, said flash flood warnings were in effect from northeast Maryland to New England, and gale warnings remained in effect from Virginia Beach to Rhode Island.

"Dangerous flooding and torrential rain continue with Tropical Storm Agnes," the service said.

An estimated 10,100 persons were given temporary shelter in schools, fire houses and American Legion posts in Washington's Virginia and Maryland suburbs.

Hundreds of motorists were stranded and some had to be rescued. The National Weather Service said wind gusts hit 60 miles per hour. Hundreds of trees were toppled and power

1,300 Ordered Out Of Flood Stricken Isleton

ISLETON, Calif. (UPI) — Officials today ordered 1,300 residents of Isleton to evacuate the yesterday when a 200-foot secflood that has inundated two islands.

Temporary levees thrown up around Isleton were holding against high waves, but officials feared the flood may have polluted the water supply.

The low-lying area, mainly resort and farm lands, is in the delta region where several rivers from the Sierra flow into San Francisco Bay.

Gov. Ronald Reagan has declared a state of emergency in the flooded areas.

In a prepared statement issued yesterday the governor also approved an emergency declaration by state Water Resources Director William Gianelli permitting the use of state funds to assist work crews in the area.

National Guard, Coast Guard and sheriff's deputies went through the two shortly after 7:30 a.m., warning residents to leave. Many residents had expected the evacuation order.

A fleet of 40 bulldozers, dump trucks and earth movers worked throughout yesterday to brace the temporary dike thrown up around the town. It was holding the water out of the main section, but health officials decided early today the community's water might have been polluted.

A rescue operation by volunteers and law officers when the levee broke early yesterday prevented any loss of life when the surrounding islands — Andrus and Brannan — were flooded by 15-foot deep waves. A dozen persons suffered minor injuries.

Col. James Donovan of the Army Corps of Engineers estimated crop losses at $11 million and damage to property at $1 million. He said a $60 million gas field was forced to shut down its pumps.

An estimated 500 homes, trailers and cabins were destroyed or damaged by waters from the break in the levee, which was apparently caused at least in part by wave action from high winds.

Marin Ferry Fleet Stymied By Bids In Excess Of $4 Million

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

A severe setback to the ferry fleet, planned by the Golden Gate Bridge District, loomed yesterday when the lowest bid came in almost $4.2 million more than the $7.8 million estimate.

Dismayed district officials retreated to their offices to figure out what went wrong, suggesting the initial fleet of three ferries may have to be redesigned and rebid.

Only director Stephan C. Leonoudakis of San Francisco, the prime mover behind the district's entry into the ferry business, insisted the low bid by Campbell Industries of San Diego should be accepted promptly.

"We have enough money to make it fly," he said, adding that rebidding would merely draw higher costs because of inflation.

The district's ferry transit manager, Stanley M. Kowleski, termed the bid "a little on the high side, to put it conservatively."

Gen. Mgr. Dale W. Luehring, said his initial reaction "is that we'll rebid." He said he also was disappointed that only three of the 18 shipyards that studied specifications bid on the construction.

Operation of the new fleet from a new terminal in Larkspur is scheduled to begin in early 1974, but this timetable would be scrapped if their construction is rebid. The bids will come before directors at their next board meeting on June 30.

The other bids were $15 million by Paceco of Alameda and $16.2 million by Bethlehem Steel Corp. of San Francisco.

The bidding also clearly disappointed Bay Area labor officials watching the bid opening. They had hoped a local shipyard would be the low bidder to relieve depressed employment.

Philip F. Spaulding, the district's consulting naval architect, conceded the bids were "a great shock." Spaulding, who only last month made the latest estimate of $7.8 million, said even the low bid "doesn't represent a true evaluation of the job."

His original estimate of $6.3 million in August 1970, was increased several times to reflect inflation, reportedly running 1.5 per cent a month in shipyards.

The low bidder also bid $302,000 to provide a spare gas turbine, $163,100 for spare parts and $111,900 for builders risk insurance, for a grand total of $12,545,400. If only one ferry were ordered, its construction would cost $4,654,000, the bid said.

Spaulding, a former shipyard estimator and a naval architect for 20 years, citing cases where his estimates and bids were close, said never before had his estimate been so far from the bids. He said the high bids may have been caused partly by indefinite delivery dates by Lycoming Co. for the triple gas turbines that will power each

'Too Much Help' To Flood Victims

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Persons wanting to help the Rapid City, S.D., flood victims have sent too much clothing.

The Office of Emergency Preparedness said Wednesday that relief centers in Rapid City have more than enough clothing to meet all needs and that any more would cause storage problems.

But the relief centers still need all kinds of bedding,including sheets, blankets, pillows and pillow cases.

Ship, Airline Extortion Arrest

Landisi

The suspect, Joseph A. Landisi, 49, was arrested at his store, Joseph's Bootery, in Beacon, N.Y. He also was charged with a $300,000 extortion plot against American Airlines.

The QE2 incident came in May when Cunard received a phone call saying six bombs had been placed aboard the vessel.

American Airlines in New York reported receiving a letter on June 16 demanding $300,000 or "American terminals and planes would be damaged," an FBI spokesman said. The letter was signed "The Peoples' Welfare." A second letter was received June 20 instructing that the money be delivered to "a designated locale" in Beacon, the spokesman said.

Israelis Attack

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Israeli gunners attacked border areas in southern Lebanon for the second day in a row, according to reports from the area today.

Israel yesterday launched a retaliatory air and land attack against villages in the border area and captured five Syrian officers, including a general.

UPI correspondent Abdul Bajjaj reported from southern Lebanon that villagers from the El Edaisse area one mile from the border with Israel told him Israeli artillery was shelling the village.

Correspondents were prevented from entering the area but from nearby hills Bajjaj said he could see smoke rising from El Edaisse.

New Draft Option

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In an attempt to fill the depleted ranks of the National Guard and reserves, the Selective Service System announced today that for the first time Army draftees have the option of joining the standby services.

Draftees who accept service in the Guard or reserves need spend as little as four months on active duty. The Army draftee tour is two years. Those choosing the new option will have a military obligation of six years.

The new regulations go into effect July 1.

A-Blast Protest

SYDNEY, Australia (UPI) — A 34-foot yacht protesting the imminent French nuclear explosion eluded the French navy today in the area of the South Pacific test site. Officials said the blast could come any time the weather clears.

A descendant of the leader of the mutiny on the Bounty evacuated the people of his island and expressed concern the blast might contaminate their supply of fish.

French officials at Papeete on the island of Tahiti said the time of the blast at Mururoa, 800 miles to the southeast, would depend on weather conditions and could come at any time.

Numbers Decline

WASHINGTON (UPI) — There were more heavy smokers among Americans in 1970 than in 1965, but the total number of smokers has continued to decline, according to a government report issued today.

Basing its conclusions on information gathered from interviews in 37,000 households during 1970, the National Center for Health Statistics also concluded that men continue to show greater interest than women in kicking the habit.

The report said that in 1970 an estimated 48.8 million persons 17 and older were puffing anywhere from one to 99 or more cigarettes a day. In 1965, an estimated 50.7 persons were cigarette smokers.

Dodd Carried Pistol

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The late Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., carried a pistol in his pocket to the Senate floor when he was censured, according to syndicated columnist Jack Anderson.

"Those who knew about the pistol feared the despondent Dodd might try to end his humiliation with a pistol shot, thereby turning the drama into Roman tragedy in front of the assembled senators," Anderson reported in columns published today.

Dodd was censured June 23, 1967 for spending campaign contributions on personal debts.

He died May 24, 1971 at 66, after failing to win re-election as an independent in 1970.

Mayors Praise Nixon

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The nation's mayors rejected a resolution demanding the United States withdraw its troops from Vietnam by Oct. 1 and passed instead a resolution yesterday giving President Nixon gentle praise for the way he is handling the war.

The U.S. Conference of Mayors also passed a resolution urging federal gun control laws, but decided not to take a stand on busing.

FIRST DAY — It was the first day of summer and Ronnie Pivodich, 21, got off to a good start yesterday by taking a dip in the Pacific off Santa Monica Beach.

Rail Lands Probe Asked By Lawyer

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—An antipoverty lawyer taking a tip from Ralph Nader is seeking federal action to have the Southern Pacific Co. divest itself of millions of acres of western land.

David Kirkpatrick, a staff lawyer with the Salinas office of California Rural Legal Assistance and a representative of the National Coalition for Land Reform, told newsmen Wednesday that he was seeking an inquiry by the Interior Department.

Kirkpatrick charged the railroad was violating the terms of the land grants received in the 1900s.

"Millions of acres of public land were given to private railroads to spur construction of new tracks and settlement of the West," he said.

"If the land was not sold within three years of construction, it had to be opened for sale to settlers in blocks of 160 acres or less, generally at $2.50 an acre or less."

An SP spokesman denied the charge and added the coalition was "apparently basing its case on only superficial research into the law and history of railroad land grants."

Kirkpatrick said he has filed an administrative complaint with the Interior Department. The aim, he said, was to have the agency make a report on land given SP on the west side of the San Joaquin Valley, between Sacramento and Lake Tahoe, and in other parts of the railroad's routes.

The complaint also sought return of land given the Santa Fe and other western railroads.

6 Shot Dead By 'Men-Only' Killer

CHERRY HILL, N.J. (UPI)—A private guard described by his neighbors as a quiet churchgoer went berserk in an office building Wednesday and shot 12 men, six fatally, before wounding himself in the head.

The gunman, identified as Edwin Grace, 32, a Pinkerton guard from New York City, seemed deliberately to avoid firing at the women he encountered during the 15-minute shooting spree which turned the normally quiet office building into a slaughterhouse.

Grace, under heavy guard at Cherry Hill Hospital where his condition was called "critical," entered the Heritage Building at about 2:30 p.m., carrying two sawed-off .22 caliber rifles.

Police said he roamed from office to office, shooting only men. Some were shot at their desks, others were gunned down in the halls.

"I looked out the door and I saw him standing in the hall reloading his gun," said James Slimmer, who was wounded. "All I saw was the gun and his eyes. I slammed the door and held it shut."

Slimmer said he was shot through the door. "I was holding my thumb over the wound with one hand and doing my damndest to keep the door closed with the other. He shot a few more times and then he left."

On the tree-lined street in Brooklyn where Grace lived when at home, neighbors said Grace "was always so quiet."

"I'm totally dumbfounded by the whole incident," said Louis Zone. "It came to me as a total surprise. He was a quiet young man." Zone's wife said that Grace was "a fine kid and quite a churchgoer,"

James Ashman, who escaped being shot by jumping out a window of the colonial type building, said "We were just talking to one another and the guy walked in and shot the owner, Bernie Robinson, right in the head.

Mayor John T. Holden told newsmen that Grace wore a uniform with a patch that read "Court Clerk, Essex County, N.Y." He said Grace also wore a dog tag with "Edwin Grace, white male, 1939" written on it.

The six men killed were identified as Robert Bartone, 22, of Delanco, N.J.; Joseph A. DePalma, 44, and Charles Merkel, 37, both of Cherry Hill; Theodore G. Hall, 38, of Willingboro; Stephen B. Robinson, 42, of Cinnaminson; and Joseph Boyd, 48, of Morristown.

Taken to Cherry Hill Medical Center in critical condition were: Wayne Stoup of Cherry Hill; Maynard Bell of Marlton; Val Risco of Groveville; and Gary Davis of Moorestown. Injured slightly were Charles Collins, 24, of Pennsauken; and Walter Wilks, 46, of Levittown, Pa. A 13th man, Walter Wilks, 46, of Levittown, fractured his arm when he jumped out a window to escape the killer.

Waterfront Strike Threat

HONOLULU (UPI) — The longshoremen's union today gave a 72-hour notice of a threatened waterfront strike that could leave Hawaii without her shipping lifeline.

The Hawaiian Islands, still recuperating frov the 135-day West Coast dock strike, are almost totally dependent on surface shipping for needed supplies.

"Unless an agreement is reached by 12:01 a.m. Monday, all of your operations ... will be struck," said Carl Damaso, president of Local 142 of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, in a letter to 11 stevedoring firms.

Afro Styles May Cause Bald Heads

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Young blacks with their hair teased up into bushy Afros are running the risk of losing their hair, a team of Atlanta doctors told the American Medical Association Wednesday.

Dr. Augie C. Brown, a dermatologist at Emory University, said that premature hair breakage results from the mechanical and chemical straightening and the teasing with combs needed to produce the style.

He reported seeing 25 such cases in the past two years, including several young men and women who had gone temporarily bald over their entire head or in patches.

There is also a risk of permanent hair loss among Afro wearers from scalp infection due to infrequent hair washing and the use of straightening chemicals, he added.

Brown, who presented a report co-authored by three whites and two blacks at Emory, said the threat of hair loss doesn't apply to the "natural" Afro—in which the hair is not teased away from the head and is cut relatively short.

Losers Seek Slice Of McGovern Booty

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI)—Four defeated presidential candidates today asked a federal court for a slice of the 271 convention delegates Sen. George S. McGovern won in California's winner-take-all primary.

Through an attorney, McGovern insisted the losing candidates were asking the court to grant them what the voters would not and charged they were seeking to change the rules after the game was played.

Supporters of Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey and Henry Jackson, Rep. Shirley Chisholm and Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace filed a law suit only 20 days before the start of the Democratic National Convention asking that the winner-take-all primary election be struck down and the delegates be allocated to all contenders on a proportionate basis.

If the suit were successful, McGovern would lose 151 California delegates and would trim his estimated committed convention votes from 1,328.15 to 1,177.15. There are 1,509 votes needed to win. Humphrey would gain 106 Californians, boosting his current estimated total to 482.55.

U.S. District Court Judge Phillip C. Wilkins indicated he would rule this afternoon on the motion to convene a three-judge panel to hear the merits of the class-action suit.

The suit, filed by attorney William Jennings, a Humphrey campaign worker, asserts that California Democrats who voted for candidates other than McGovern at the June 6 primary would be disenfranchised at the convention because McGovern swept up all the delegates.

Howard Jewell, representing McGovern's California campaign, asserted that Jennings "wants from this court what he could not get from the people. He wants two swings at this thing."

If the proportionate representation suit was successful, McGovern would take 44.3 per cent of the California delegates to the convention or about 120 votes. Humphrey would get 39.2 per cent or about 106 delegates; Wallace about 6 per cent or 16 delegates.

Reed School Budget Is Considered

The Reed School District board has taken its first look at a $2.4 million budget, but did not formally accept it for consideration.

Board member Leo Souza said at a trustee' meeting Tuesday he would not accept the submission of a tentative budget until a report on the district's "small schools" had been completed.

The "small schools report" — which is expected to be completed by the July 5 school board meeting — will discuss long-range plans and policies regarding the Tiburon and Belvedere schools.

The fate of those two schools, which are currently kindergarten through second grades, will have a significant effect on the district's overall budget.

Only three members of the school board attended Tuesday night's meeting.

Two of them, Dr. John J. Osborn and Margaret Jones, voted to accept the tentative budget, while Souza abstained.

Lacking a majority, the tentative budget will be held until the "small schools report" is completed.

According to district manager Charles L. Condrotte, the new budget will require some increase of the school tax rate, which currently stands at $3.615 per $100 of assessed value.

But Condrotte said, the rate would not increase substantially due to a recent increase in the assessed value of property in the district by more than 10 per cent.

A $42.000 increase in the district's repayment of a state building loan, salary step increases and a $67,000 multimedia center planned for the Reed School account for the majority of the $200,000 proposed budget increase.

Condrotte said that fringe benefits, maintenance items and utilities also accounted for the expanded spending program.

Three teachers have been cut from next year's tentative personnel roster, said Condrotte, due to a projected drop in student enrollment.

The current budget for the school district is $2,271,743, while the proposed budget is $2,471,818.

The Reed School District Board also:

MILEAGE ALLOWANCE — Passed the first reading of a proposed increase in district employees' car allowance from 10 to 13 cents per mile.

BURGLAR ALARMS — Authorized $11,439 for the installation of burglar alarms at Bel Aire, Granada, Reed, Reedland Woods, and Del Mar schools.

OPPORTUNITY CLASS — Authorized Supt. Ralph D. Giovanniello to prepare a program of instruction for students with serious behavior or absentee problems.

PERSONNEL — Instructed Giovanniello to add 2.5 teaching positions to the tentative budget, including one half a music teaching position, one teacher of the educationally handicapped and one opportunity class teacher.

The entire cast was aboard a Hawaiian outrigger canoe filming a three part series when a huge wave overturned and swamped the canoe. Miss Henderson grabbed Miss Olsen, who cannot swim, and prevented her from drowning.

Tape Recording In Hire-To-Kill Case

The trial of Una Mettam was highlighted today by introduction of a tape recording in which she advised a man on how to kill her husband so she could collect insurance on him.

In the tape of a conversation Jan. 13 between the 42-year-old woman and Marino Guerra, an Ignacio service station operator, she said her estranged husband had to be killed in an auto accident for her to collect more than $50,000 in insurance money.

"It has to be. That is the only way I can collect," she said.

Her attorney, William O. Weissich objected to the tape, but Judge Henry J. Broderick of Marin Superior Court allowed it played.

In his testimony yesterday and today Guerra said Mrs. Mettam approached him at his station on Jan. 6 and "she said she had somebody she'd like eliminated." The following evening she brought an envelope with her husband's picture and daily itinerary.

"No jokes were made," he said.

Weissich admitted in his opening statement yesterday that Mrs. Mettam made the request but said she thought she was involved in a joke by two of her friends.

Mrs. Mettam, a plump woman with glasses, cried quietly in a handkerchief as he spoke.

Mrs. Mettam is accused of trying to arrange the death of her cab driver husband in January after taking out insurance against his accidental death. Deputy Dist. Atty. Ernest C. Zunino claimed she got Guerra's name from John A. Pedroli, a San Rafael mechanic she is friendly with and tried to hire him to stage an "accident."

Pedroli testified today that he had indeed mentioned Guerra to her as a possible enforcer, but he said her followup had always been joking except for once in November or December when she seemed to speak seriously about wishing her husband dead.

Mrs. Mettam was arrested Jan. 18 after sheriff's deputies investigated her offer to Guerra and recorded the telephone conversation.

Contempt Citations Are Upheld

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Ninth Circuit Court of Appeal today upheld contempt citations against a typographical union local and two of its officers for secondary boycotts in its strike against the San Rafael Independent-Journal.

The appellate court, however, reversed citations against two other officers on grounds there was no evidence they knew about the continued union activity.

In the same action, the court allowed to stand an order of the National Labor Relations Board that the union was engaged in unfair labor practices.

The combined suits grew out of picketing of retail stores in Marin County by San Francisco Typographical Union Local 21 in connection with its strike against the newspaper.

The union began picketing stores advertising in the Independent-Journal March 17, 1970, and on April 28 of that year the district court ordered it to cease picketing and distributing handbills to the public.

On June 24, 1970, U. S. District Judge William T. Sweigert found the union and four of its officers in contempt for continued picketing. No monetary fines were imposed.

In its ruling the circuit court said a union may picket to urge the public not to buy advertised products but cannot urge customers to stop doing business with the store. An NLRB hearing examiner held that the use of tearsheet ads on picket signs did not adequately identify the struck products.

The high court upheld the contempt citation for the local and for its vice president, John J. DeMartini and its organizer, Don Abrams. It reversed the convictions of union president Leon Olson and Secretary Treasurer G. M. Bachich.

WAR

ing at mid-afternoon, Huntley said.

UPI reporter Chad Huntley said 100 North Vietnamese were killed by midafternoon. South Vietnamese officers said their own casualties were light. They claimed 16 Communist tanks and armored vehicles knocked out by tactical aircraft.

UPI correspondent Donald A. Davies, who has just returned from the My Chanh area, said the Communist push was in no sense a "break through." He said despite references to the "My Chanh River defense line" the paratrooper positions were actually a few miles below the river and the North Vietnamese did not get past the paratroopers.

The North Vietnamese regiment involved in the attack would normally number about 2,900 men.

The U.S. command said a flight of four U.S. Air Force F4 Phantoms based in Thailand intercepted two MIG jets Wednesday over North Vietnam and shot down one of them with a missile—the 119th MIG kill of the war. MIGs have shot down 55 American aircraft.

ferry. The bidders thus tacked on extra dollars to cover themselves in case the engines are late and push the bidders into the $1,500-a-day penalty period.

Spaulding also reported that Lycoming, the only manufacturer of the needed turbines, hiked their price by $200,000 for each vessel's power system on Tuesday. Luehring said he would refer this to the district's counsel "to see if it's within the federal wage-price guidelines."

Luehring also suggested he may recommend using some other power system. Spaulding's design for the 165-foot ferries calls for triple water jets coupled to the turbines, a system accounting for roughly one-third of each ferry's cost.

The aluminum-hulled, 25-knot ferries will carry 750 passengers.

Luehring said he had feared high bids, citing the experience a few months ago of the Delaware Port Authority. They got a low bid of $14 million for three ferries, double their estimate.

He said that another inflating factor in shipyards was a new federal requirement that there be one apprentice for each five journeymen, which would mean 34 additional workers to build the ferries.

Leonoudakis pointed to pending federal legislation that could raise the government's share of the district's fleet from two-thirds to 85 per cent.

The district has 60 days from yesterday to act on the bid.

was knocked out im parts of Washington and its suburbs.

Near Rockville, Md., to the north of the capital city, two dams were heavily strained and many families were evacuated because of danger of collapse but civil defense officials said later the immediate danger had passed.

The Potomac River was believed to be the highest since 1942. It was six feet over flood stage at some points, and lapped close to the end of a runway at National Airport which was virtually cut off by water over the roads.

Thousands of government workers —all those except ones in emergency positions —were encouraged to stay home under the government's "liberal leave" policy.

Seven of the deaths were in Virginia, which experienced some of its worst flooding in 50 years.

Even at the White House, some water trouble was reported. Reporters found the carpeting wet in the basement level of the press room.

Four persons drowned in the Susquehanna River region near Harrisburg, Pa. Highways were closed by mud and rock slides. Hundreds of families were evacuated. State police rescued 36 girl scouts trapped during the night at a camping area near York, Pa.

Scores of Susquehanna River tributaries flooded. The river itself was rising but posed no immediate threat.

At Fort Hunter, Pa., a tributary swept away the trailer home of a couple, and they were missing and presumed dead. Fifteen miles east of Harrisburg, a baby was swept from the arms of the father as he tried to carry the child to safety. A man was swept off a bridge near Hershey.

The water was two feet deep on the streets of Shinglehouse, Pa., and similar conditions were reported at Eldred, Port Allegany and Smethport.

There also was heavy flooding along the Pennsylvania-New York border. In Lykens, Pa., a small creek overflowed and residents were evacuated by boats. Near East Berlin, Pa., state police said campers were trapped.

In Mechanicsburg, Pa., floods collapsed basement walls and residents were evacuated to a junior high school. Much of Ceres, N.Y., along the border, was evacuated.

democratic institutions to this degree, they may not be worth having," Wornum said, adding that eliminating the checkpoints would allow free access while remaining security measures were sufficient to protect the courts.

Baptiste expressed similar feelings but eventually made the motion on the compromise, under which $22,000 was budgeted for overtime to pay deputies to man the checkpoints during so-called "sensitive trials."

County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell said the funds may be reimbursable from the state, which pays San Quentin court costs.

He added, at one point, that the county has been turned down on $400,000 of its $600,000 request for state reimbursement of the Angela Davis court expenses.

The $400,000 not refunded was for building security which was not removed when Miss Davis was moved out of Marin, he said.

A Landmark Decision In Child Case

A federal judge ruled yesterday that a Marin mother and other poor parents in danger of losing their children because of neglect or abuse must have an appointed attorney. The decision puts an unwelcome burden on the public defender's office.

Thomas G. Hendricks, deputy county counsel, said the landmark decision by Judge Stanley A. Weigel of U.S. District Court in San Francisco will probably be appealed but that this will be for Juvenile Court Judge Joseph G. Wilson to decide.

Weigel ruled that a Marin mother, whose child was made a ward of the court under Section 600 of the state Welfare and Institutions Code, was entitled to appointed counsel.

Hendricks explained that his office represents the children in such matters if they have counsel so that the public defender's staff would have to represent the parents.

In the Marin case, the woman has been represented by a deputy public defender, he said, since the Legal Aid Society of Marin and the Youth Law Center, a federal funded San Francisco agency, made a test case of the matter.

Hendricks said he did not believe that the federal court had jurisdiction in the matter and said state courts have held contrary to Weigel's finding.

Weigel ruled that any court proceedings must come to a halt until the parent is notified of his right to free counsel.

Parents Of Jackson Ask $15 Million

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The parents of slain black revolutionary George Jackson have filed a $15 million punitive damage suit in the death of their son last year during an alleged escape attempt at San Quentin Prison.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Jackson Jr. maintained in the suit filed Wednesday that Jackson's death "was the result of intentional wrongdoing or neglect."

The suit in U.S. District Court said Jackson had been "set up" and "summarily executed" by San Quentin guards.

Defendants were San Quentin Prison Warden Louis S. Nelson, Associate Warden James W. L. Park, Marin County District Attorney Bruce B. Bales and Attorney General Evell J. Younger.

Tornadoes Hit Arizona Town

ELOY, Ariz. (UPI) — A series of tornadoes accompanied by heavy rains and hail struck south-central Arizona late Wednesday, leveling the main street of this small cotton town.

No deaths were reported but property damage was considerable and several persons suffered minor injuries.

Eloy, a town of 5,400 southeast of Phoenix, was hardest hit. Pinal County sheriff's deputies said Frontier Street, the main thoroughfare through the business district, was destroyed and the residential district severely damaged.

COURT

handbills if they are not related to its operations.

The school decisions by Justice Potter Stewart dealt with the creation of new districts at Scotland Neck in Halifax County, N.C., and Emporia in Greensville County, Va.

Citing the Court's 1971 decision in a landmark North Carolina case, Stewart said "a new school district may not be created where its effect would be to impede the process of dismantling a dual system."

The "informed judgment" of U.S. District courts must be relied upon to determine what the effect would be, he said. Stewart cautioned however that mere disparity in the racial composition of the two systems alone would not be sufficient reason to bar the creation of a new district.

But in the Emporia case, he said, there is more involved than "disparity in racial percentages."

The vote in the Emporia case was 5 to 4, with Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices Harry A. Blackmun, Lewis F. Powell Jr. and William H. Rehnquist —all Nixon administration appointees —dissenting.

The Scotland Neck case drew a unanimous vote with the four Emporia dissenters joining in a separate concurring opinion.

Both decisions reversed the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, which held that federal courts may interfere only if the "primary" purpose of creating new school districts is to retain as much racial separation as possible.

The appeals court said lower court judges must keep hands off if the new district is "designed to further the aim of providing quality education and is attended secondarily by a modification of the racial balance, short of resegregation."

"We have focused on the effect —not the purpose or motivation —of a school board's action in determining whether it is a permissible method of dismantling a dual system," Stewart said. "The existence of a permissible purpose cannot sustain an action that has an impermissible effect."

Youth Boss Requesting A Transfer

L. Charles Smith, formerly the county's half-time youth coordinator and more recently full-time coordinator, has requested a transfer.

In a letter to the board of supervisors, County Administrator John F. Barrows said, Smith has asked to fill a vacant slot in the probation department.

Smith, who is credited with keeping the Marin County Youth Commission afloat during the last year, told supervisors last week the commission needed a full-time man from outside the probation department where he worked half time.

Supervisors, considering the probation budget, agreed and in a move to keep from hiring another employee moved Smith out of the probation department and made him the full-time coordinator.

Barrows recommended that another youth coordinator be hired and the youth commission be placed under the human rights department, whose budget was to be considered today.

Larkspur Council Slices $76,500 In Budget Round

By JEFF GREER

Larkspur city councilmen hewed on estimated $76,500 from the proposed $1,475,127 budget last night, lopping almost in half the potential tax rate increase of 42.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

They made heavy cuts in the city's planning outlay, salary increases, and retainer fees for the city attorney, eliminated one new patrolman requested for the police department, delayed hiring one new fireman to Jan. 1 and reduced funds for renovating city hall.

At the end of a five-hour special meeting, they were left with decisions still to make July 5 or later on the $99,650 capital spending budget for parks and recreation.

The estimated tax rate stood at about $2.10 after the paring, compared with $1.895 per $100 assessed valuation this year. The 1971-72 budget was $1,016,560.

Mayor William G. Fleckles reported that landowner Neil J. Shultz Jr. had offered a two-year purchase plan for the South Eliseo Drive property the city wants to anchor one end of a proposed footbridge across Corte Madera Creek. Price tag for the land is $45,000.

Fleckles also said it might be possible to spread the $15,000 acquisition of the Mary Fraser Grove property over several years.

Councilman Jon Sestak questioned spending $27,500 on four tennis courts at Piper Park, and the council agreed it should be studied further, particularly because the park's master plan has yet to be presented to the council

Nettled by requested increases in the budget for legal advice, the council briefly toyed with the idea of hiring a full time attorney, then decided it would be more costly than the present retainer system.

City Atty. Robert W. Elliott received $5,400 in retainer fees this year, plus another $5,500 for special services including litigation. In the 1972-73 budget, he asked $700 a month retainer for himself, $300 a month for Asst. City Atty. Peter B. Brekhus and $15,500 for other services and materials.

A. Charles Brouse of the Larkspur Town Meeting objected that his group favored at most a 5 per cent pay raise for anyone in the budget. He said if attorneys' charges ran over the former retainer fees, "let them justify the cost with data — monthly statements for service rendered."

Councilman Neil R. Brixon declared, "I can't possibly vote a raise of darn near 300 per cent when the city engineer asks the same retainer he did last year."

After more than an hour's discussion of alternatives, the council voted unanimously to offer the legal advisors the same $5,400 retainer fee as last year, with bimonthly billings for any extra services such as the Little King Mountain litigation now in Marin Superior Court.

During lengthy discussion of the proposed community development (planning) budget, the council trimmed what was originally a $25,000 allocation to consultants Mocine and Williams of Berkeley for updating the city's master plan and ordinances, to $2,000. Another $10,000 was budgeted for the city's first community development director (planning director) to use for consultants and planning work after he is hired, probably in September.

The strategy was approved by a 3-2 vote, with councilmen Robert H. Lee and Joan Sestak arguing for another $2,500 to speed revision of the city general plan.

Lee also argued that the city must move quickly to master plan the Bon Air proposed shopping center and area east of Highway 101 before development pressures arise.

He said allocation of $15,000 to $20,000 would "be the best bargain we've got in the whole budget," and that historically, Larkspur's planning has been "reactionary" to developments rather than ahead of growth.

Another $5,500 was trimmed from the planning budget because of the sudden resignation of the department's number two official, John W. Appleton. His replacement as zoning administrator will not be hired until after the development director is selected, City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst suggested, and will begin at a lower salary step, working less than a full year in fiscal 1972-73.

Asst. City Mgr. Harlan Barry pointed out the planning work was to be financed by a special property development tax on new building, formally adopted last night. The levy imposes a fee of $75 on each one-bedroom dwelling, $25 for each additional bedroom, and 1.5 cents per square foot on commercial structures.

The approximately $20,000 cut from planning outlay will go into the general fund, relieving pressure on the general fund maximum tax rate of $1 per $100 assessed valuation, Barry said.

Among the other cuts voted last night were $2,100 earmarked for renovating the council chambers and other city offices, $1,000 for city elections, $6,000 by deletion of one patrolman's position, coupled with creation of a fourth sergeant's post as investigator; $10,000 in the estimated cost of the future police office, due to low bids; and about $20,000 by halving the 10 per cent pay raises recommended by the city manager for all employees.

Two Retired Judges To Sit In Marin

To help fill the void caused by the retirement of Superior Court Judge Thomas F. Keating two visiting judges from rural counties have been assigned to the Marin courts.

Presiding Judge Henry J. Broderick said retired Judge Vernon Stoll from Nevada City will sit in Marin Superior Court next week.

He will be followed by retired Judge Robert D. Carter from Stanislaus County for the month of July, according to Broderick.

The judge shortage is complicated by the vacation of Judge Joseph G. Wilson, but Gov. Ronald Reagan's office said an appointment to fill Keating's seat may not come until next week. No reason has been given for the delay.

Man Bound Over In Stolen Property Case

Charles Wilson, 22, of Fairfax was bound over yesterday to Marin Superior Court on two counts of having stolen property and one of burglary, but charges against his wife were dismissed by a municipal court judge.

Judge David R. Baty ruled the district attorney had insufficient evidence to try Pamela Mae Wilson, 20, who is now serving a jail term for two felony counts of forging checks.

The two were arrested April 27 in their car after a neighbor told Fairfax police she saw Wilson load a television set she thought was hers into his car.

Police said they found a stereo system and a television set in the car stolen from a San Anselmo home.

Wilson also is charged with having property taken in a burglary April 10 in Fairfax.

HARLAN BARRY
New title and a raise

It's Pay Hikes For All Except Councilmen

Larkspur city councilmen gave everyone on the city payroll a raise last night — except themselves.

They unanimously voted to chop $9,000 out of the 1972-73 city budget that had been earmarked to pay each councilman $150 a month.

But they kept a year-old promise, promoting Harlan Barry to assistant city manager and giving him a 7.5 per cent pay raise. The entire police force also was voted a 7.5 per cent raise and the rest of the city's 48 employees received 5 per cent, the same as last year.

Barry, 33, was hired in March 1970 as administrative assistant to City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst. During budget sessions last year, the council refused to name Barry assistant city manager, but raised his salary to $1,213 a month, with the promise that if he gained more seasoning in city work he would be promoted as he was last night. His new salary will be $1,306 a month.

The proposed $1,475,127 budget drafted by Bathurst and Barry included a 10 per cent pay raise for everyone on the staff. Bathurst vigorously defended the raise, against the council's economy drive. He argued for "a very minimum of 7.5 per cent" and warned, "you'll find we'll be notably weak in recruitment" and "a great majority" of the city staff "can't afford to live in Larkspur."

Mayor William G. Fleckles replied that, "I don't know any private employer who's giving any raises. The taxpayers are at the limit. . . 5 per cent equals the cost of living increase. . . all we can justify." However, he argued for the 2.5 per cent differential between police and firemen, saying that he knew of no other city where their pay scales were the same.

Councilman Neil R. Brixon moved Fleckles's proposal, but Councilman Alfred Malvino briefly objected that Barry should get at least a 10 per cent raise. After being assured that Barry's promotion moved him into a pay range comparable to department heads, Malvino made the overall salary vote unanimous.

Larkspur thus became the first city in Marin County to settle its salary question for the coming year; it did not go through the formal negotiation process used in most of the cities.

Outside Income On Welfare Roles

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A state study shows that 10 per cent of welfare recipients who earn wages made an average of $675 per month in addition to their aid grants.

State Social Welfare Director Robert Carleson reported Wednesday the information was contained in his department's recently completed computer check on outside income of Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) recipients during the last quarter of 1971.

Building Superintendent For Larkspur Quits Post

John W. Appleton, Larkspur building and planning superintendent, resigned his job at last night's city council meeting.

He gave no reason in his letter, which said he would quit July 7. However, he told the council that he had accepted an offer of employment with a private home building firm.

Had he stayed on, Appleton would have been number two man in the city's new community development (planning) department as zoning administrator at a salary of about $1,100 a month. He joined the city staff in 1969.

The Larkspur City Council also:

POLICE HEADQUARTERS — Awarded a $50,192 contract for construction of a relocatable building at Piper Park as new police headquarters, to James J. Menke Inc. of Corte Madera, lowest of three bidders.

LOTUS GARDENS — Approved the final map for condominium status for the 26-apartment development at Upper and Lower Via Casitas. It was the city's first such condominium conversion. The owner will pay the city nearly $21,000 under Larkspur's new ordinance requiring developers to give the city recreational space or in-lieu fees.

GENERAL PLAN — Set. Aug. 9 for a joint meeting with the planning commission for review of the countywide preliminary plan.

SIGN — Said that the Tamalpais retirement center residents who wrote asking for a directional sign to their high-rise home should go through normal planning commission channel to obtain permission to put up their own sign.

DEVELOPMENT TAX — Formally adopted a new property development tax to finance planning functions. The fee on new building in subdivisions will be $75 for a one-bedroom dwelling; $25 for each additional bedroom, and 1.5 cents per square foot on commercial structures. The vote was 4-1 with Councilman Neil R. Brixon opposed.

McGrath Named To Study Panel

Thomas H. McGrath, president of California State College, Sonoma, has been appointed chairman of a national panel to set guidelines for a study of the collegiate press.

The study will be conducted by the American Association of State College and Universities under an $11,000 research grant from the Markle Foundation.

Julius Duscha, former Washington Post reporter and director of the Washington Journalism Center, will conduct the study. McGrath and his committee will serve as an advisory body.

Successor To Rogers Announced

John B. Coley has been appointed manager of the promotion and research department of the Independent-Journal, according to Norwin S. Yoffie, general manager. He succeeds Ray Mount Rogers, who is retiring to pursue his former success in novel writing and also to travel.

Coley comes to the Independent-Journal from the Chicago Tribune, where he was a marketing executive specializing in sales promotion strategy and presentations for the newspaper's largest national and retail accounts. Prior to that he had done creative promotion work for the Chicago American, involving advertising, circulation and marketing.

Coley began his career as copywriter and account executive with Campbell-Mithun and Reach, McClinton, Chicago advertising agencies, where he created advertising, both print and broadcast, for leading national accounts.

Thai Aid Cutoff Urged Over Dope

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Rep. Lester Wolff, D-N.Y., contends that as much as 5 tons of heroin—enough to supply the entire heroin addict population of the United States — is shipped out of Thailand each year.

The House Foreign Affairs Committee voted Wednesday to cut off all U.S. aid to Thailand until its government takes adequate steps to curb the export of opium, the product from which heroin is refined.

Wolff and Rep. Robert Steele, R-Conn., sponsored the amendment, which was attached to the $1.7 billion military assistance bill now under consideration by the committee.

THE FORMAL LOOK

Brooks, Trigere Triumph In Fall's Evening Dress

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—The long and short of it spells the trend to evening wear for fall and winter.

The short formal and the short dress are back, rivaling the floor length ballgowns that have reigned for several seasons.

Some f the most handsomely designed in both below-knee and floor lengths come from the Donald Brooks and Pauline Trigere collections, shown this week for visiting fashion reporters.

Brooks did short formals in the traditional shapes of low V or U-neck, shaped to the figure, flaring through the skirt.

Some of his "restaurant" dresses came in black wool with halter necklines. Others were black sheer wools for the body, black chiffon for the huge, dolman sleeves.

ALMOST EVERY designer in New York's Seventh Avenue (heart of the ready-to-wear industry) thinks big for the coming season. The dolman sleeves are just part of it. These are sleeves cut wide through the armhole, sometimes waist deep and all in one with the bodice. These sleeves show in coats, daytime dresses, and evening dresses.

Other routes to the big, loose look showed in caftan-like garments, the wide unfitted dresses with their fabrics floating over the body, clinging nowhere. Brooks did caftans in black chiffons and laces and, beautifully, in a short caftan formal of cut velvet in mauve toned prints.

Similar to the caftan was the copy, luxury fabric, of the loose-fitting djellabah, from Moroccan masculine costumes. One from Brooks was totally covered with black paillettes.

ONE EYE-STOPPER from Brooks was a white crepe, long dinner dress, cut with shoulder darts and dolman sleeves for a free look at the top, worn with a big triangle-shaped fichu trimmed in sable.

The designer took the dolman into the glamor of evening with one dress in flame red, the chiffon top featuring the full sleeve, the skirt with feathers stitched from waist to hem. Another, with halter throat, was in the same flame red and feathered from its brief top to the floor.

TRIGERE MINGLED plenty of glitter in with a big number of basic blacks in her evening wear. She also mixed in plenty of off-beat patterns in her long formals.

One, cut on slim lines, managed to work stripes and florals together in black and white tones. Another crocheted number in varying tones of gray and white featured horizontal striping for the top, and a full, gathered skirt with plaids cut on the diagonal.

Several of her evening costumes returned the strapless to the fashion scene, with white satin bodices, snug-fitting; skirts spilling out into fullness from waistline gathers.

Dyed black fox fur turned some of her short black dresses into models that used to be trademarks of Hollywood's glamor girls. Fox banded cuffs and bordered hemlines on many. One had a wrap-around shawl bordered in fox.

Trigere continued her love affair with capes for both day and evening. The ultimate for evening was in Black Diamond mink, the skins worked against each other in a triangular pattern, center back.

THIS LONG formal gown by Pauline Trigere is cut on slim lines. The gown manages to work stripes and florals together in black and white. The Trigere collection for fall and winter was shown in New York this week.

Since Wanda Adams Has Left Marriage, Life's Not The Same

By PAUL ANDERSON

SEATTLE (UPI) — Life isn't quite the same for Wanda Adams these days now that millions of people have seen her face on the cover of a national magazine and read the intimate details of the breakup of her 14-year marriage.

"Drop out Wife — A striking Current Phenomenon," was the headline on the cover of a recent issue of Life. Inside, the feature article told how Wanda, the mother of three, had "walked out on her family to begin a new life of her own."

Wanda Adams, 35, now lives with her 10-year-old daughter, Susan, and another woman in a large, dilapidated house across the street from a park. Her husband, Don, and their two sons, Christopher, 7, and Patrick, 6, still live in the family home.

"IT REALLY has changed my life, there's no question about that," she said of the magazine article and subsequent stories in newspapers and on radio and television. "It's really hard to have any private life at all. I feel that now I have to make an effort to live the way I want to live. I get so many requests and offers to do things."

One of the most interesting aspects of the reaction to Wanda Adams' personal story has been the lack of reaction from the women's liberation movement.

"I haven't heard anything from anybody in the movement," she said. "I guess part of it is that you just don't hear from people who support you. I've heard from lots of people who aren't necessarily in the movement. But I haven't heard from feminists."

ALTHOUGH SHE has enjoyed the opportunity to reach such a large audience with her views, the "Dropout Wife" said she now realizes the drawbacks of fame and can understand what celebrities mean when they talk about a lack of privacy.

"Sometimes when I go into a store to buy something I'll notice that the checker or clerk will go off and point me out to someone else. It doesn't always happen but I feel people are looking at me. People sometimes just come up to me and start talking.

"The other thing is that I get telephone calls from people who have read the article. They think they know me from reading that article because it was personal. But they don't seem to remember that I don't know them.

"Another thing is that I get so much hate mail and obscene phone calls that you get to the point where you're afraid to open the mail or afraid to open the door. People just come to the house. Not necesaarily people who are against you, but people who just want to see who you are. It's been really weird."

REACTION TO the article has taken many forms, including a petition drive to have her fired from her job as family life instructor at North Seattle Community College.

Partly because of the controversy, she said she was considering leaving her job of training day care workers when the government contract financing the program expires in the fall.

She said she might accept an offer to go on a lecture tour and to use the proceeds from the lectures to open her own school or day care center.

"The biggest problem for me right now is that I'm just feeling inundated with everything," she said. "It's been too much. I've had too many negative comments and people asking for things, even just my time. Everybody has got just so much within them. You can just give and give and give until there is nothing left of you.

GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

Note To Braggart Backfires, So Now Three Girls Are In Trouble

DEAR RAP:

A friend of mine is a big bragger. She lies to shock people —like saying she uses dope every weekend and can get it any time from her "boyfriend" (who we never see, incidentally.)

I figured I'd "catch" her, so I wrote her a note saying, "How about you getting us a six-pack and some grass and we'll hve a party Saturday night?" I signed it with my name and Tracy's (my best friend).

As expected, she sent my note back with a dumb excuse written on the bottom. So Tracy and I had a good laugh.

But wouldn't you know? Mom was looking through my books and she came across the note. She called Tracy's mother and we're in trouble. They're going to get in touch with Donna's mom, too. (Donna's the bragger.)

The way it looks now we'll all be grounded this summer or anyway watched like hawks — all because of a joke. We aren't dopers.

Help. — INNOCENT TWO

INNOCENT:

If all three of you —plus some friends who know the story — tell it to your parents straight, they'll probably believe you — unless they've got other reasons for distrust.

Good luck to Donna — she needs it more than you two do. — SUE

DEAR TWO:

I think Donna has her values scrambled — and perhaps this "discovery" will do her more good than harm. When a girl lies to downgrade her reputation, she may be wishing it were so, as this is her only route to acceptance.

She needs friendship, not tricks that make her look ridiculous. — HELEN

HELEN AND SUE:

I can't take any more. I used to lie about my scars and bruises. I was ashamed and couldn't let people know.

I finally told my father if he beat me again I'd go to the welfare agency, and he said I'd be sorry and then he knocked me across the room. Now I'm scared. What if they made me go back home after I talked to them?

I told my girlfriend how I got the burn. I left the iron on and he put it against my arm to teach me. When my friend's mother saw the black and blue marks and old scars from other beatings, she said I could come and live with them and she'd make the complaint against my parents, but I don't want her to be in danger. My father has a wild temper.

The only way is to run off, but I'm just 14 and where would I go? I'm not an angel and I can't help hating my parents. But I'm not a devil either, though my father tries to beat the hell out of me. My mother hits too — but not as hard.

Please change this so they won't know I'm writing, and tell me what to do. — CALL ME "ALMOST RUNAWAY"

DEAR A.R.:

The child welfare agency in your town assures us you will receive protection, counseling, and care in a good foster home, if one is indicated. Don't let fear of your father's rages keep you from seeking help there.

A child-beater is often a coward: he won't cause trouble when he knows further cruelties of the type you describe may land him in jail. — HELEN AND SUE

RAP:

Somebody in your column mentioned that Japanese people wear face masks in crowds to protect the wearer from catching cold. Correction: The Japanese, being fine, polite and considerate folks, wear masks when they have colds, to protect others. — B.V.

PARENT AND CHILD

Mother, Father And P-TA

By CYNTHIA PARSONS
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

Traditionally, parents have played a subservient role in the Parent-Teacher Association. Not subservient in an organizational sense — they have often held all official positions — but subservient regarding purpose.

It has been the P-TA which put floodlights on outdoor basketball courts, provided teachers' lounges with refrigerators and paid for curtains transforming the gymnasium into a theater.

While all this is well and good, it also has some "not-so-good" results. Those very people who should be involved in decision-making in the schools — the parents — are too involved in peripheral activities to get into the meat of the school program.

Teaching methods, the varieties of choice open to students, curriculum thrusts, administrative structure and staff training are more important than playground floodlights and stage curtains. The original purpose of parent and teacher organizations was to provide a forum, or congress, where parents and school authorities could come together to decide school program and focus.

BUT OVER the years an artificial split has come and most school decisions are made by school authorities, generally excluding the teachers, without entering first into debate and discussion with parents. Strangely enough, the split has occurred at the same time that parents, on the average, have had more and more years of schooling themselves.

For example, in many suburbs the average years of professional education beyond high school for parents is often equal to or greater than that of the local teaching staff. Yet those professionally educated parents seldom exercise their right to be a part of the decision-making process in the local public schools.

This is changing. Tampa is a case in point. Many of the parents in that Florida city are visiting schools and meeting to discuss local problems. They keep in touch with school authorities. Even parents without college degrees are discovering that they have a lot to offer.

Tampa parents, black and white, have had a great deal to do with the schools this year following a court order for an 80 per cent white, 20 per cent black integration program.

MORE SENSITIVE Tampa school authorities have welcomed the new sense of concern by Tampa parents. They are sharing with them their reasons for trying or not trying innovations. A former P-TA member, now a school board member, is delighted that the Tampa P-TA is getting out of "housekeeping" and into school programs.

There are those, of course, who argue that parents should not be part of the decision-making process in the schools. After all, one argument goes, local taxpayers don't tell the fire or police departments how to run their operations.

But all parent-teacher organizations were born on the notion that educating young people is a cooperative venture between the home and local social organizations. And that it is this very cooperation which is essential if schools are to succeed. And the wider and deeper the parent involvement, the more successful the local schools.

Making A Life In A New Community

Women with school age children make better and faster social integration into a new community that women with no children or young or grown children, according to Dr. Ronald J. McAllister, professor of urban studies at the University of California at Riverside.

Social interaction is at a peak during the first six months after relocation, then drops off sharply until about the third year when it gradually begins to rise again but never regains the initial intesity, the professor said.

Pockets Are Put To Very Good Use

"There is so little room in pants these days, and there are those times when you don't want to carry a purse or handbag," Milton Farquhar told Women's Wear Daily.

So Farquhar designed pockets. Pockets that are small, though large enough for a couple of dollars, some change or a credit card. The leather pockets come in a variety of bright colors, are handstitched and tuck into belts, sleeves, cuffs or necklines.

DOMESTIC AFFAIRS

Key White House Role For Marinite

By MARGUERITE DAVIS

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Douglas Hallet has just turned 23 and already has made it to the White House —as one of the youngest persons to serve on a presidential staff.

He works in the office of Charles W. Colson, one of President Nixon's chief domestic advisers. Hallet is concerned, therefore, primarily (although not wholly) with domestic issues.

"Some of the projects we handle have to be done quickly for the President, special projects like congressional debate on Vietnam, or the campaign financing law, or the ITT case," Hallet said in interview with UPI.

"Then if the President decides he's not getting all the information he needs on special projects, like Spanish-speaking people or labor groups, youth or the elderly, we have to come up with suggestions for these."

But young Hallet adds, "I do a good bit of writing, drafting speeches and articles for Cabinet officers and the vice President."

It's hard work, he said. He arrives at his small office in the Old Executive Office Building—next to the White House—about 7:30 a.m. and says he rarely leaves before 7:30 p.m.

"We do work very hard here, because the President does," he said.

Hallet graduated fom Yale a year ago and had planned to go immediately to Harvard Law School. He decided to defer the law when he was offeed a position on the White House Staff.

He believes he may have attracted President Nixon's attention by a dispatch he wrote for the Wall Street Journal on a summer job because "he mentioned it at a press conference."

Hallet said he never has wavered in his political allegiance: "I've been a Republican all along, because it seems to me to be the party more likely to be libertarian."

His father, an Episcopal clergyman in Ross, voted for Nixon in 1968 "but with not much enthusiasm."

"My parents had grave reservations about the war," he said, but reported they now are beginning to support Nixon more wholeheartedly.

Not his brothers. One is a conscientious objector, he said, and the other opposes the President.

Hallet's own confidence in Nixon is strong.

"The President promised to end the war responsibly, and I think he's doing that," Hallet said. "The President also indicated we should and will assist the Vietnamese in restoring their countries."

On the question of amnesty for draft evaders and deserters, Hallet, who is exempt from military service because of a heart condition, said that cannot be meaningfully determined while American troops still are involved in the war.

Hallet plans to resume his education in September, 1973, but he does not look forward to ending his White House experience.

Veteran Senator Loses Party Post

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (UPI)—Sen. Clinton P. Anderson, D-N.M., who is retiring after 24 years in office, was rebuffed Wednesday by New Mexico Democrats in his bid for a national committeeman post.

Anderson, 76, who said he wanted the national post to help bring unity to the Democratic party, was defeated by Rudy Ortiz, 42, Bernalillo County Democratic chairman and state chairman of the George McGovern campaign. Ortiz was also believed to be the first Mexican-American elected to the Democratic National Committee.

Faculty-Choosing Issue: Hot Potato

By LARRY MOWELL

After wrestling for 90 minutes with the hot issue of involving students in the selection of teachers, the Marin Community College District board decided last night it didn't want to come to grips with the matter after all.

The board first wondered whether it shouldn't send the policy proposal, which has split the college community, back to the committee system for a possible consensus.

Rejecting that, it launched into a philosophical discussion of the threat to academic freedom and the representativeness of student government.

Then the board swung full circle, voting unanimously to send the issue back to faculty and students until November after trustee Robert E. Oliver noted that no teachers would be hired before then, anyway.

At issue was a plan to place two students on the five-man faculty selection committee for each department. They would be appointed by the student government.

Dr. John A. Grasham, superintendent and president, called it "a policy on which there is simply no unanimity of opinion." Faculty oppose it and students back it.

He recommended approving the policy because students "have proved to me that they can make a significant contribution to the selection process." Students already participate in picking administrators.

But trustee Charles W. Gray countered, "God and John Grasham forgive me. Teachers are more important."

He said that, despite the "goodwill and heightened sense of responsibility" of students, giving them votes in picking teachers "would be the most dangerous threat to academic freedom that you could possibly construct."

He was joined by president Donald K. Felt in opposing giving the vote to a group "that is as unrepresentative as the associated students."

Trustee Martin J. Dean said they should participate in interviewing, but not voting.

Felt said he was disturbed at the "depth of division" created by the plan which has recently received intense opposition from staff members who didn't participate in committee hearings.

Administration Jobs Created Over Pleas

Despite the pleas of blacks and teachers, the Marin Community College District board last night created a part-time ethnic studies coordinator and director of work experience and assigned them to two vacant teaching slots.

Faculty and students favored creating the two new jobs on top of filling three teaching vacancies with full-time teachers. "One of the things we need on this campus is teachers. Now you are talking about filling these slots with administrators," objected Samuel Schwartz, head of the political science department.

However, Dr. John A. Grasham, superintendent and president, said it would cost $174,000 over five years to create two new jobs in addition to filling existing openings.

Board member Robert E. Oliver said he favored the posts, "but unfortunately we come up against the reality of economics."

Grasham's economic compromise was to give the coordinator for minorities programs nine hours of teaching a week and six hours time each week to start the program and to give the work experience coordinator, now paid with a federal grant, partial teaching duties.

After an hour of discussion with the audience of almost 50 persons, the board agreed with Grasham, but Oliver conceded to blacks holding out for a full-time coordinator, "It is going to take pretty much of a superman to do the job."

Series To Shift To New Location

Mill Valley's Candlelight Concert Series after 12 years at Brown's Hall in Mill Valley, will be presented next season in the auditorium of the Del Mar School in Tiburon, Mrs. Martin Goldschmidt, music chairman, announced today.

Dates and programs have been scheduled, and subscriptions are being sold.

The five evening concerts will be performed on Sundays at 8 p.m. and the three children's concerts will be at 2:30 p.m. on the same dates as the evening Bach-to-Mozart Group concerts.

The schedule is: Nov. 12, Francesco Trio; Jan. 21 and Feb. 25, Bach-to-Mozart evening and afternoon children's concerts; April 1, Czech Nonet Chamber Group from Prague, and April 29, Bach-to-Mozart evening and afternoon children's concerts.

The Mozart Festival, sponsored by the Homestead Valley Community association, which originally sponsored the Candlelight Series, will be held as usual on Sept. 3 in Stolte Grove near Mill Valley.

Mrs Goldschmidt said the format of the concerts will remain the same with the audience seated at candlelit tables and refreshments available before performances and at intermission. Prices will be the same.

The reason for the change in location is the imminent sale of Brown's Hall and changes in parking arrangements. Mrs. Goldschmidt said the new location will have the advantages of accommodating more people without crowding and unlimited parking facilities.

Further information and evening series subscriptions may be obtained by calling Mrs. Goldschmidt, 302 Wickham Drive, Mill Valley. Information and subscriptions to the children's series are available by calling Mrs. Ursula Davidson, 124 Linden Lane, San Rafael.

Bagley's Amendments On Voter Margin Are Shelved

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A legislative committee has shelved constitutional amendments which would cut from two-thirds to a simple majority the voter margin needed to approve local bond issues and extend state school aid to private schools.

The amendments, ACA 69 and 70 by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, were dropped by the Assembly Revenue and Taxation Committee without a hearing. Opponents included the California Teachers Association, which objected to extending school aid to private schools, Bagley's office said.

Two other bills by the assemblyman, one virtually eliminating bail for misdemeanors and another reimbursing prison guards for losses when reassigned to another prison, also have been iced for this legislative session.

The bail reform bill, AB 1065, was opposed by bail bondsmen, California Peace Officers Association and insurance industry that writes bail bonds, Bagley's staff reported. There were enough votes to get the bill out of the Assembly Criminal Justice Committee, but it would have lost on the lower house floor, the staff said.

The prison guard bill, AB 1064, was opposed in the Assembly Employment and Public Employees Committee by the state Finance Department. Corrections officers now are entitled to reimbursement for direct moving costs, but Bagley's measure would have provided payment also for losses such as those on a home sold below its market value.

The bill was introduced to meet the problems of guards at San Quentin Prison, slated by the Reagan administration to close by the end of 1974.

Same Treatment For FBI Women

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The new acting director of the FBI says women who qualify to become FBI agents will get no special treatment.

"There will be no 'limited duty' women agents," L. Patrick Gray III said Tuesday, adding that he is quite serious about opening the bureau's doors to women.

"We hope they will be able to meet our qualifications, pass our training courses and become regular fulltime agents that can make a valuable contribution," Gray told a news conference here while on a tour of FBI field offices.

Behr Halts Sports Tax Legislation

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Bills to tax gate receipts from professional sports events and to permit offtrack betting at county fairs have been dropped without hearing by their author, Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael.

Both bills, SB 1179 and 1180 respectively, were asked by the Marin County Board of Supervisors. Both aroused considerable opposition and "had no future," the senator's office reported.

The sports tax would have financed a new fund to buy open space, raising more than $3 million a year. Behr initially opposed the bill, but then introduced it.

The offtrack betting bill would allow a horserace betting concession at county fairs such as Marin's, which do not pave their own track. The supervisors said it would provide needed revenue.

Fuel Dock Legislation Is Defeated

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A bill to remove the coming sales tax on motor vehicle fuel sold at a marina or marine fuel dock for use in vessels has been killed.

The bill, AB 319 by Assemblyman Robert E. Badham, R-Newport Beach, was killed by the Assembly Revenue and Taxation Committee after it was opposed by the Department of Finance. The committee's staff also criticized the bill, arguing a special exemption for vessel owners was not justified.

Boat Owners Associated Together, an organization of California boat owners, sponsored the bill in the wake of a 1971 state law which imposed 5 per cent tax on all gasoline sales. The revenue is to be earmarked for transit.

The tax will be levied as of July 1.

Recreational boating is not related to land transportation problems, BOAT argued. The 1971 law excepted aircraft fuel from the sales tax, the organization noted.

Nixon's Brother Booed Off Stage

DALLAS (UPI) — Edward Nixon, President Nixon's brother, was booed off the stage Wednesday at the 39th quadrennial session of the general conference of the African Methodist-Episcopal Church (AME).

Several ministers jumped on the stage and said they did not want Nixon to speak. Nixon left the auditorium by the back door, saying he had a plane to catch.

FBI Finds 135 Stolen Snakes

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) —The FBI caught an alleged snake-napper Wednesday.

Agents took into custody Keith Dorge and retrieved more than 135 rare snakes valued in excess of $5,000, the FBI said. Dorge, 39, was arrested at his home.

Most of the snakes were believed stolen Friday fom the southwest research station in Portal, Ariz., of the American Museum of Natural History. Other snakes were identifed as coming from burglaries in Texas, the FBI said.

The FBI did not say why Dorge wanted all those snakes.

2 Sausalito Postal Officials Retiring

Between them the two men, both native Sausalitans, have a total of 60 years of postal service in the community.

The 58-year-old Medeiros went to work in the Sausalito Post Office in June 1937 when the facility was located on Princess Street. He has been there ever since, except for four years of military service and a brief stint in Marin City.

When the postmaster began as a mail carrier and special delivery messenger, Sausalito only had seven postal employees, two routes and about 2,500 persons.

During his employment, Medeiros has watched the city's population grow to 6,500 and the local office expand to 35 employees and 12 routes. The office has moved twice during his tenure, first to El Portal and then, in 1959, to its present location at 1050 Bridgeway.

After serving with the Army's coastal artillery in Alaska during World War II, Medeiros returned to Sausalito as a postal clerk, then was transferred to Marin City as superintendent of that postal station until it closed in 1948.

He was named superintendent of mails in the early 50s and postmaster in 1965.

Medeiros, who resides at 160 Filbert Street with his wife, Samantha, is the father of three children. He is a member of the Star of the Sea's Men's Club, treasurer for the Sausalito Parlor of Native Sons of the Golden West and the IDESST and a past president of the Cabrillo Club.

Shine, 55, has been with the Sausalito office since September 1941, when he began as a substitute clerk-carrier. He has held his present post since 1968.

The superintendent of mails and his wife, Ruth, reside in Fairfax. The couple has two children.

Until a new postmaster is appointed, John W. Bell, former superintendent of mails for the Novato Post Offfice, will serve as officer in charge of the Sausalito postal operation.

The 39-year-old Bell has been with the postal service 20 years.

He is a native of San Rafael.

Bell and his wife, Audrey, have three daughters and reside in Novato at 1822 Indian Valley Road.

Hearing Set In Theft Case

A preliminary hearing for James Ray Rhoades, 32, of no known address on an attempted burglary charge has been set for Tuesday in Marin Municipal Court.

Rhoades, who said he was Guy Edward Powel when arrested, was booked into county jail by Novato police June 14 after they found him on the roof of Max's Saw Service, 707 Grant Avenue.

Deputy Dist. Atty. John D. Posey said Rhoades was trying to open a skylight when police responded to a report from a citizen who saw a suspicious car in the area.

Shuttle Buses Will Run For Senior Jubilee

Free shuttle buses carrying seniors to the Senior Citizens Jubilee in the Corte Madera Center Saturday will begin running at 10 a.m., according to the Senior Coordinating Council in San Rafael.

Registration for exhibits in the show will be from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m., and judging begins at 11 a.m. Awards to the winners will be made at 1 p.m.

The old time variety and fashion show begins in the mall at 2 p.m. and the festivities are scheduled to end at about 6:30 p.m.

The free buses will run from all Marin locations and seniors may obtain information on pick-up from the council.

Diesel Buses Out Of Favor

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— After a two-year study, the San Francisco Municipal Railway has recommended that diesel powered buses be dropped in favor of electrically operated vehicles.

Electric buses, according to a 42-page report issued Wednesday, would be "both pollution free and as nearly silent as possible."

The report summarized an 18-month experiment with General Motors' environmental improvement program kit. The kit was designed to cut bus exhaust and noise, but the test failed, the report said.

Budget Is Studied, But Not Cut

The Fairfax City Council last night managed only to wade through portions of two departments' part of a proposed $727,113 budget for 1972-73 and did not cut any items from the spending program.

The council approved the proposed budget for the building department of $3,274 for materials and $735 for capital outlay, according to City Adm. Robert E. Crowe.

The council wanted morz information about requested recording equipment for the police department, he said, but approved other items in the department's proposed budget for materials, supplies and services as well as capital outlay, These two categories total $39,423.

No discussion of salaries for any department has yet taken place, Crowe said, as the council plans to take all wages up last.

The council has scheduled another budget session at 8 p.m. Monday in the Fairfax Women's Club.

Novato Council Approves Wage Increases For City Workers

The Novato City Council tentatively approved pay raises ranging from 2.5 to 7.5 per cent for employees, not including department heads, during a public hearing last night on a preliminary $2,831,530 budget for 1972-73.

Tentative approval came on a 4-1 vote with Councilman George C. Quesada dissenting because the council didn't have "a total package" including a recommendation on salaries for department heads.

City Mgr. Charles A. Brown estimated that the raises would add $47,000 to $50,000 to the cost of government.

The preliminary budget didn't carry a recommendation on pay raises but had $58,000 in reserve which could be used to cover pay increases.

Brown presented the pay raises as the joint recommendation from him and the Novato City Employees Association with whom he has been negotiating as the council's representative.

The recommendation was for 5 per cent raises for police, clerical workers, maintenance workers, planning technician, junior planner, recreation supervisor, engineering technicians I and II, junior and assistant civil engineers, and police clerk-dispatcher.

A 2.5 per cent raise was recommended for accounting personnel and custodians, and a 7.5 per cent raise for senior planner, building inspector, chief building inspector, associate civil engineer and assistant city engineer.

The employees association and Brown also recommended that the city have a salary survey of part-time positions by Jan. 1, 1973. Disability insurance benefits are still under discussion, Brown reported.

Salary recommendations on department heads, public works maintenance superintendent, city manager and administrative assistant are yet to be made, Brown reported.

Apology Over Book To Chavez

EDINBURG, Tex. (UPI)—Pan American University President Ralph Schilling apologized to Cesar Chavez Wednesday for a picture and caption in the school's yearbook which many students said was an insult to the Farm Workers Union leader.

Editors said the quote was lifted from a poem in some accompanying copy and the connection was accidental. However, 170 students returned their yearbooks, saying the page was offensive.

Novato Council Park Ruling Delay

By FRANK FARRARA

Parks and recreation commissioners renewed their plea for funds toward acquisition of the O'Hair property for a community park last night, but the Novato City Council postponed a decision until Tuesday.

Commissioners urged that the city put $100,000 in its capital improvement budget toward purchase of the 67-acre site at Sutro Avenue and Novato Boulevard.

The plea came during a two-hour public hearing on the city's proposed preliminary budget of $2,831,500 for 1972-73, which has been estimated to require an increase of one cent on the city rate to 96 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Dr. John D. Kassenbrock, a commissioner, said the commission believed "acquisition of a major park site or tying up enough to be meaningful was the most important thing."

Councilman Fred F. Ruegg said he was disturbed that the commission had recommended a capital improvements budget that was $51,000 higher than the $100,000 recommended by City Mgr. Charles A. Brown.

A large community park "would be desirable if we had the money, but I don't see the time Novato will have the money," Ruegg said.

Regarding purchase of the O'Hair site, estimated at $500,000, Betty Machado of 1424 Dawes Street suggested that the matter "go back to the voters in November."

(A bond measure including $600,000 for purchase of the O'Hair site failed to gain a needed two-thirds majority at the polls in 1970.)

Brown had recommended $67,000 for park land acquisition, not specifically the O'Hair site, and Councilman David Price Jones suggested that half of that amount could be earmarked for the O'Hair property.

Jean Irvin of the San Marin High School Parent-Faculty Club reported that 551 persons had signed a petition for a pool at the high school site if the city isn't going to have a pool at the O'Hair site.

The commissioners also recommended $20,500 for improvements at the Olive School park site, $11,000 for the Marion School playground and $20,000 for development of a neighborhood park at Lynwood School.

The council also heard protests against a proposed cutback in the Center Road improvement project.

The project originally was planned to extend from Lu Sutton School to Wilson Road, but after protests from nine owners in the center of that stretch it was reduced to extend from Wilson Avenue to just past Margery Court.

Alfred Rivasplata, principal of Lu Sutton School, described the traffic situation as "really dangerous" to pupils and urged the council to fund the entire project.

"After all," he said, "what is more important, the life of one child or dollars and cents?"

Also proposed is cutting back the Tamalpais Road improvement project to include only construction of a new bridge over Warner Creek.

The council postponed action on the road project allocations until Tuesday.

Action also was deferred until Tuesday on a recommendation from the San Marin Improvement Association that the city assume maintenance of traffic islands along San Marin Drive at a cost estimated at $13,400 a year.

Other matters unsettled were whether the allocation to the Novato Chamber of Commerce should be increased from $8,000 to $11,500 a year, and whether the city should allocate $4,000 to the Marin Museum Association.

The council voted 3-2 to cut $5,000 from the $13,000 proposed for consultants for an environmental study by the planning department. Sartain and David Price Jones dissented.

The Marin Builders Exchange, Plumbing, Heating, Cooling Contractors Association, Locke Plumbing Co. and the Redwood Empire Building Industry Association requested hiring an additional full-time building inspector.

Councilmen agreed to include $8,500 in the budget for the job to be filled if the city couldn't find a suitable part-time inspector.

Mrs. Machado proposed that the city ask the Golden Gate Bridge District to provide bus shelters in the city, and investigate the possibility of using the services of the county counsel's office instead of retaining a city attorney.

Brown reported that during eight budget sessions, the council had cut $7,150 from the proposed budget and added $6,440, for an overall reduction of $710.

The preliminary budget is scheduled to be adopted Tuesday, with the council to have a budget review meeting at 8 p.m. Monday at the Novato Community House.

The council adjourned until 8 p.m. today for a public hearing on the housing element for the Novato Area General Plan at the Novato Community House.

Nader Is Denied A Chinese Visa

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Premier Chou En-lai may be able to eat Peking duck with President Nixon, but China is not yet ready for a visit from consumer advocate Ralph Nader.

The Peoples Republic of China won't give Nader, who speaks Chinese, a visa to travel in China as a tourist, UPI has learned.

For a year, Nader dunned Chinese officials with his request. He even wrote directly to Chou but got no reply.

But he did find that Chinese bureaucrats apparently do not differ very much from their western counterparts.

In reply to one of his petitions, Nader got this reply:

"Your letter received, the contents of which has been passed to the authorities concerned, and you will hear from them should they have a reply for you."

New Novato Panel Picks New Slate

Stockwell, a lithographer, formerly finance chairman of the Novato Advisory Board of the Economic Opportunity Council, was elected at a recent meeting of the newly formed nine-member board.

L. Charles Smith, Marin County Youth Coordinator, was elected vice chairman; Rev. Eugene Quinones of Our Lady of Loretto Church, treasurer, and Geoffrey J. Bywater, Novato Parks and Recreation commissioner, secretary.

The board urged employers seeking help and young people seeking summer jobs to register at the center, 1200 Grant Avenue. Youths 15 to 18 years of age will be referred to the Novato Youth Employment Agency, according to John Telfer, center director.

Carson's Wife Is Granted A Divorce

NEW YORK (UPI)—Joanne Carson, saying her entertainer husband Johnny Carson had changed the locks on their apartment to keep her away, was granted an uncontested divorce Wednesday on grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment.

"I had a talk with my husband and he told me he no longer wanted to live with me and to cohabit with me and that he wanted a divorce," she told the court. She wept and answered softly "yes" when asked, "Have you been a good wife to him?"

A BIT WATERLOGGED

A car belonging to Grace Nelson, 62, of Mill Valley, is pulled from the water at the Sausalito Yacht Harbor, after rolling over a five-foot bulkhead. Police said Mrs. Nelson parked the car in the parking lot yesterday morning, apparently thinking the brakes would hold. The vehicle received major damage, they said.

Drug Bureau, Jail Farm In Doubt

As it stands, however, proposed spending programs for the two items remain a part of the proposed $47.4 million budget despite the 2-2 votes by the board.

With Supervisor John F. McInnis absent due to ill health, the remaining four supervisors found themselves sharply divided over the need for the honor farm and drug bureau.

While supervisors Louis H. Baar and Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. fought for funding of the drug bureau and against the honor farm, the reverse stand was taken by supervisors Michael Wornum and Arnold M. Baptiste.

Their divided positions raise the possibility of entering fiscal 1972-73 on July 1 without a budget, since by law three affirmative votes are required to approve the final budget.

Spending programs for the sheriff's requests remain frozen in the proposed budget because the board on County Administrator John F. Barrows's advice in May "adopted" the preliminary document instead of simply "accepting" it for review as in years past. In adopting the document, the board took a legal action that requires a majority vote to make subsequent changes.

The proposed honor farm, which both Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos and Barrows support, has been under consideration by the board since early this year.

Arrigoni, who has voiced support for the $210,000 minimum security facility in the past, joined Baar yesterday in a move to scrap it as a means of reducing the tax rate.

Arrigoni told the Independent-Journal after the hearing he would have gone for the expenditure if his fellow supervisors hadn't approved $60,000 for expansion of Gnoss Field and $89,000 extra for fairgrounds improvement — both of which he said were of low priority.

In discussion of the facility, which would serve about 40 trusties and relieve weekend crowding at the county jail, several members of the small audience voiced opposition.

Winifred S. Frederick of Irate Taxpayers of Marin, Birdie Schneider of Sleepy Hollow and Donald Van Dyke of the Marin County Taxpayers Association all questioned the expenditure.

They said they supported continuing the program of transporting excess prisoners to Sonoma County jail at half the estimated $210,000 cost of the honor farm.

(About $30,000 of the total would be used to refurbish the Nike missile site in Santa Venetia and the remaining $180,000 for operating the facility with a staff of 10 employees — mostly sheriff's deputies.)

Administrative analyst Michael Chrystal said the facility could be partially staffed with a portion of the seven men to be freed from duty in Tiburon once that city takes over its own law enforcement.

Baptiste and Wornum, supported by the county grand jury, urged its adoption as a means of reducing Marin County's reliance on Sonoma County and of relieving weekend pressure at the jail.

With the split 2-2 vote, the issue remained unresolved but funding stays in the preliminary budget pending a vote tomorrow on the final document.

A similar situation involves the county's drug abuse bureau, which works cooperatively with the county's 10 police departments on major drug cases.

The bureau, which has a proposed spending program of about $100,000 for three investigators and a secretary, drew strong opposition — this time from Wornum and Baptiste.

Wornum said he considered the bureau "a cure worse than the disease," adding he was disturbed by its investigative practices which include purchasing drugs from pushers.

Wornum drew support from Baptiste, who said he favored putting drug abuse investigation under the sheriff's investigative division rather than as a separate bureau.

Baar and Arrigoni, meanwhile, drew on the county grand jury's position that to eliminate the drug bureau would amount to an "open-door policy" extended by Marin to drug dealers.

"That's a scare tactic," said Baptiste.

Arrigoni relinquished his chairman's gavel to second Baar's motion supporting the bureau at reduced staffing (three investigators instead of four). The vote ended in a 2-2 deadlock.

In action which found the supervisors in basic agreement, the board agreed unanimously to beef up sheriff's patrols — primarily in West Marin.

Six deputies were added to the patrol division with three slated for West Marin where, in the past, "resident deputies" have provided police protection. The six deputies are not new hiring, but include three men released from duty in Tiburon and three from a reduction in the security force at the Civic Center.

The board decided, however, to eliminate the eight "resident deputies" and instead put them as well as the three added men on regular eight-hour shifts.

(Resident deputies have been used for years in West Marin and received a housing allowance and individual vehicle. Besides working an eight-hour shift, the deputies were on call 24 hours a day, five days a week.)

Mountanos and Capt. Harvey Teague, who heads the sheriff's patrol division, told the board it was economically unfeasible to continue with resident deputies. They said the increasing number of calls and subsequent overtime made it advisable to begin "regular service" to the county's rural areas.

The added deputies were largely responsible for an overall $75,000 increase in the sheriff's department's recommended $3.2 million allocation.

The increase brought the projected tax rate to $2.75 per $100 assessed valuation, only 1.5 cents lower than before budget cutting began six days ago.

On other matters considered yesterday, the board approved a county jail request of $776,000 (up $85,000 from this year); a sheriff's administration request of $104,000 (up $5,000); a civil division request of $222,000 (up $25,000) and an investigative division request of $332,000 (up $20,000).

Tiburon Man Named To Schools Panel

Leo Souza of Tiburon, a Reed School District trustee, was appointed to the Marin County Committee on School District Organization last night to fill a vacancy created by the resignation of David D. Ring.

Souza was one of two candidates for the position, according to Robert E. Spain, assistant secretary of the committee. The other nominee was Betty Rogers, nominated by Barbara Harris, a board member of the Sausalito School District.

Benefit Set Despite Ruling

Despite rulings from city officials that it may not be held, a benefit for Sausalito's "Suspicious Humanist" literary magazine will be held at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the Poop Deck restaurant on Bridgeway.

The event will include classical music and singing and poetry reading, according to poet Milton Weiner, publisher of the magazine.

Weiner said city officials, who disapproved the benefit because of city regulations on live entertainment in restaurants, have been invited to read city ordinances to musical accompaniment.

Firm Asks $20,000 Deposit Returned

An Oakland development firm — whose plans to build 400 or more apartments on the Marin Town and Country Club property were thwarted by Fairfax residents — wants its deposit back from the club owner.

The company, Kaiser Aetna, filed suit yesterday in Marin Superior Court describing a purchase agreement made in March 1971 with club owner Max Friedman for purchase of the 23.5 acre site.

The suit said that the developers had given Friedman a $20,000 deposit which was to be returned if the company could not get a permit from city officials within 180 days to build 400 or more units.

According to the agreement, Kaiser Aetna was to have used "resonable diligence" in pursuing such a permit or Friedman could keep the deposit.

The firm now wants a judge to decide whether such diligence was used.

Reports of Kaiser Aetna's planned development brought opposition by a group of Fairfax citizens who organized into a committee aimed at having the property rezoned to prevent its use for residential purpsoes.

When the city council refused to rezone the property, the committee managed to get the measure on the April ballot and citizens voted more than 2 to 1 to rezone it commercial-recreation, blocking the development plans.

Friedman had announced earlier that the country club, which features picnic areas, swimming pools and other recreation activities, would be open to the public again this summer.

Off-Duty Quentin Guard Shot At, Returns Fire

An off-duty San Quentin guard was shot at while returning home today and returned the gunfire, possibly injuring his assailant.

According to San Rafael police, guard Ronald Gordon Brown, 30, said he was driving along Lincoln Avenue at about 3:40 a.m. when he saw a man in the driveway of the Colonial Motel at 1732 Lincoln Avenue. The man dove to the ground and fired two shots at him, Brown reported.

One shot went through the right wing window, in front of Brown's face and out the open left window. Police still had not found either of the two bullets.

According to police, Brown said he dropped to the floor of his car and drew his Browning automatic pistol from under the seat, then got out of the car and fired nine shots at his assailant who turned and fled, falling once.

Brown's assailant was last seen in a grassy area behind the motel

Brown, who lives nearby, told police he thought his assailant was lying in wait for him and that because he fell as he ran, he may have been hit.

Several residents of the area were awakened by the shots, police reported.

Jumper Reported Off Gate Bridge

A senior research physicist at the Stanford Research Institute is believed to have leaped to his death yesterday from the Golden Gate Bridge yesterday, the California Highway Patrol reported today.

The man, John H. Munson, of Menlo Park, was last seen by bridge employees on the east walkway near the south tower of the bridge at 4:30 p.m. His car, personal property, and two 11-page personal notes were found near the scene.

No body has been recovered by the coast guard

Woman Reports Attack Made

A 20-year-old San Franciscan hitchhiking to West Marin with her young daughter was raped Monday by a man who gave her a ride in his motorized mobile home, sheriff's deputies said yesterday.

Deputies said the woman and her 3-year-old daughter were picked up in San Francisco and driven to the 600 block of Bolinas Road just outside Fairfax where the driver pulled over to feed his 2-year-old son, then forced the woman into the vehicle's bathroom and raped her.

She told deputies the man then drove her into downtown Fairfax and released her and her daughter.

She described the rapist as about 28 with blond hair and blue eyes. She said the vehicle was from Washington State and gave deputies the license number.

Permit For Ferry Is Extended

The Golden Gate Bridge District received the approval of the Sausalito Planning Commission last night in its bid for a 90-day extension of its conditional use permit to operate a ferry in the city. (See page 1 for story on ferry construction bids.)

Commission chairman Robert L. Nissen said the planners' recommendations will now be forwarded to the city council.

The bridge district had sought the extension because it had not yet completed plans, and had them approved by the council, for terminal facilities.

Completing plans for the terminals is one of the conditions of the use permit.

The commission set an adjourned meeting for 8 p.m. Tuesday in city hall to consider whether 160 acres of Wolfback Ridge should be included among properties the city hopes to retain in open space or allowed to be developed.

Owners Edward R. Fitzsimmons and Frank Lynch have been trying to develop a subdivision on the land for the past two years.

But in April the city council declared a one-year moratorium on all new subdivisions before the Wolfback Ridge developers had obtained final approval for their project.

At the same time the council asked the city staff to inventory open space remaining in the city to determine which undeveloped land the city should attempt to purchase or obtain in other ways for open space.

The staff has completed its study on Wolfback Ridge even though the entire survey is still unfinished.

Couple Must Resubmit Plan

So many variances were requested by a San Francisco couple for a home they intend to build on a vacant lot on Summit Drive, Corte Madera, that the Corte Madera Board of Adjustments asked them last night to resubmit their application.

According to William G. McBride, zoning administrator, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Clifford of 4142 26th Street, San Francisco, had applied for several variances to allow construction on the small lot at 310 Summit Drive. These included covering 48 per cent of the site with construction, while the town's limit is 35 per cent.

School Board Version Of 'Public Be Damned'

Neither public protests nor county counsel opinions can jar the Marin County Board of Education from its accustomed ways.

Near the close of 1968, Mrs. Edith Kanoff of Novato, whose term was to expire the following April, resigned from the county board — thus clearing the way for appointment of a successor who could run as incumbent (as she, in turn, had been appointed).

A three-member screening committee headed by board member Patrick W. Pollock was named to select Mrs. Kanoff's replacement. The committee invited applications for the job, but refused to disclose the names of applicants.

On Jan. 7, 1969, Pollock reported the choice of the committee was James A. Swenson. The board immediately approved Swenson's appointment unanimously, and as he was ushered into the board room, a name plate with his name already inscribed on it was placed in front of the new apointee.

IT WAS ALL very prettily done, and very secretly done. Of course, the public, which is supposed to have something to say about who fills elective offices, had nothing to say at all. The board never disclosed the names of candidates it had passed over in favor of Swenson.

Swenson ran for election as incumbent the following April, and made it, for a term expiring in 1974.

Last month, however, Swenson submitted his resignation, "for business reasons."

The board appointed a three-member screening committee, headed by Patrick W. Pollock. The committee invited applications for the job, but kept the names of applicants secret.

On May 23, Pollock reported the committee had selected William L. Sisk. He was immediately appointed, unanimously. Names of other applicants were not announced.

THERE WAS ONE small fly in the smooth, smooth ointment. Some members of the public had complained about the secrecy. So Pollock asked Richard V. Godino, assistant county counsel who is legal adviser to the school department, for an opinion. Godino said the board "would be hard-pressed to justify withholding the names."

Nevertheless, the board withheld them.

Godino put his opinion in writing. After reviewing applicable laws, he wrote: "I am of the opinion that the names cannot be kept confidential."

Monday night, the board considered Godino's letter. Oh well, board members decided, it was just one man's opinion; the secret selection policy would be continued.

THIS WAS NOT really surprising. After all, Pollock got on the board by the same secret process, being appointed in 1963 with names of other candidates withheld. So did Lee C. Richardson Jr., appointed in 1965. So did Marilyn Crowell, appointed in 1969. With Sisk (and his predecessor, Swenson) that makes a majority of the board.

The board has been supported in this arrogant flouting of the public's right to know who applies for an elective office by the elective county schools superindent, Virgil S. Hollis. But that is not surprising, either. After all, the names must go through Hollis to the screening committee — and in recent years, he has always been a member of the committee himself.

SACRAMENTO SCENE

Voter Unrest Reduces Advantages Of Incumbents

By EARL G. WATERS

A further warning was sounded in the June primary elections. This is an extension of the signal sent up in the April municipal elections. Like the old favorite of bass singers, "Sailor, Beware," the voters seem to be saying "many brave hearts lie asleep, incumbents take care."

In the April elections veteran city councilmen and mayors were felled like toy figures in a shooting gallery. The alarm was given added significance by the unusual number of seats which had intra-party contests in June. Almost half of the 80 Assembly districts and 16 of the 43 congressional offices found candidates vying for party nominations.

NOW THE JUNE 6 returns confirm the warnings. Two congressmen and one assemblyman bit the dust at the hands of their own party. The veteran George P. Miller of Alameda was snowed under. Miller, a Democrat, served in the Assembly in the late '30's and is completing his 28th year in Congress. His seniority in the House had made him chairman of the science and astronautics committee, a position vitally important to California. But his age, now 81, made him vulnerable as a target for the young and to those who constantly clamor that it is time for a change.

In Orange County the Republicans turned out the ultra conservative John G. Schmitz, whose courageous independence had led him to voice strong opposition to the "liberalism" of President Nixon. Schmitz served six years in the state Senate before going to Congress and had differences with Governor Reagon on the same issue.

David C. Pierson, the promising young Democrat who replaced Jesse Unruh when the latter gave up his Assembly seat to run for governor, was also a victim of his own party.

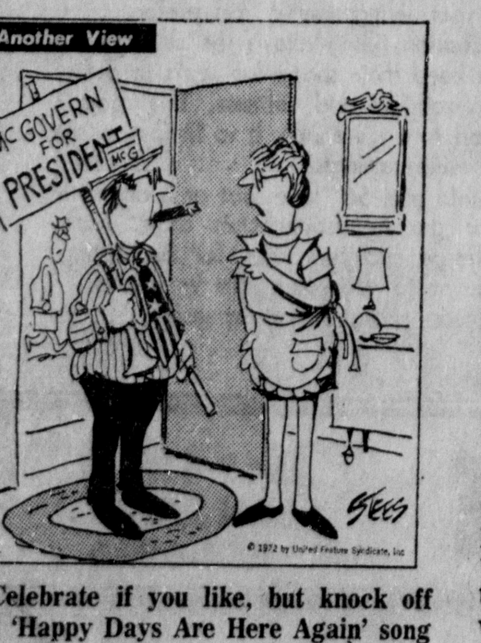
These defeats might be rationalized on an individual basis. But the fact that a substantial number of congressmen and legislators failed to win a majority of the total votes cast would seem to telegraph voter dissatisfaction with the job being done by those in office.

Of the 37 incumbent congressmen, 13 fell short of gaining an overall majority, including the two defeated. In the Assembly 21 of the 68 incumbents suffered the same fate, along with 8 of 19 incumbent state senators.

FOR SOME of those the results probably have no significance since the vote was split within their own party. If they can solidify the party vote in the general election victory will be theirs.

But for many others, mostly Republicans, the votes cast for opposition party candidates outdistanced the incumbents' votes. It is these officeholders who have their work cut out for November if they are to retain their seats.

Unfortunately for the state, when it rains all who stand in the open get wet. Good men, regardless of their records of past achievements, fall by the wayside along with the others when the voters become disenchanted with the "ins" and decided to "throw the rascals out."

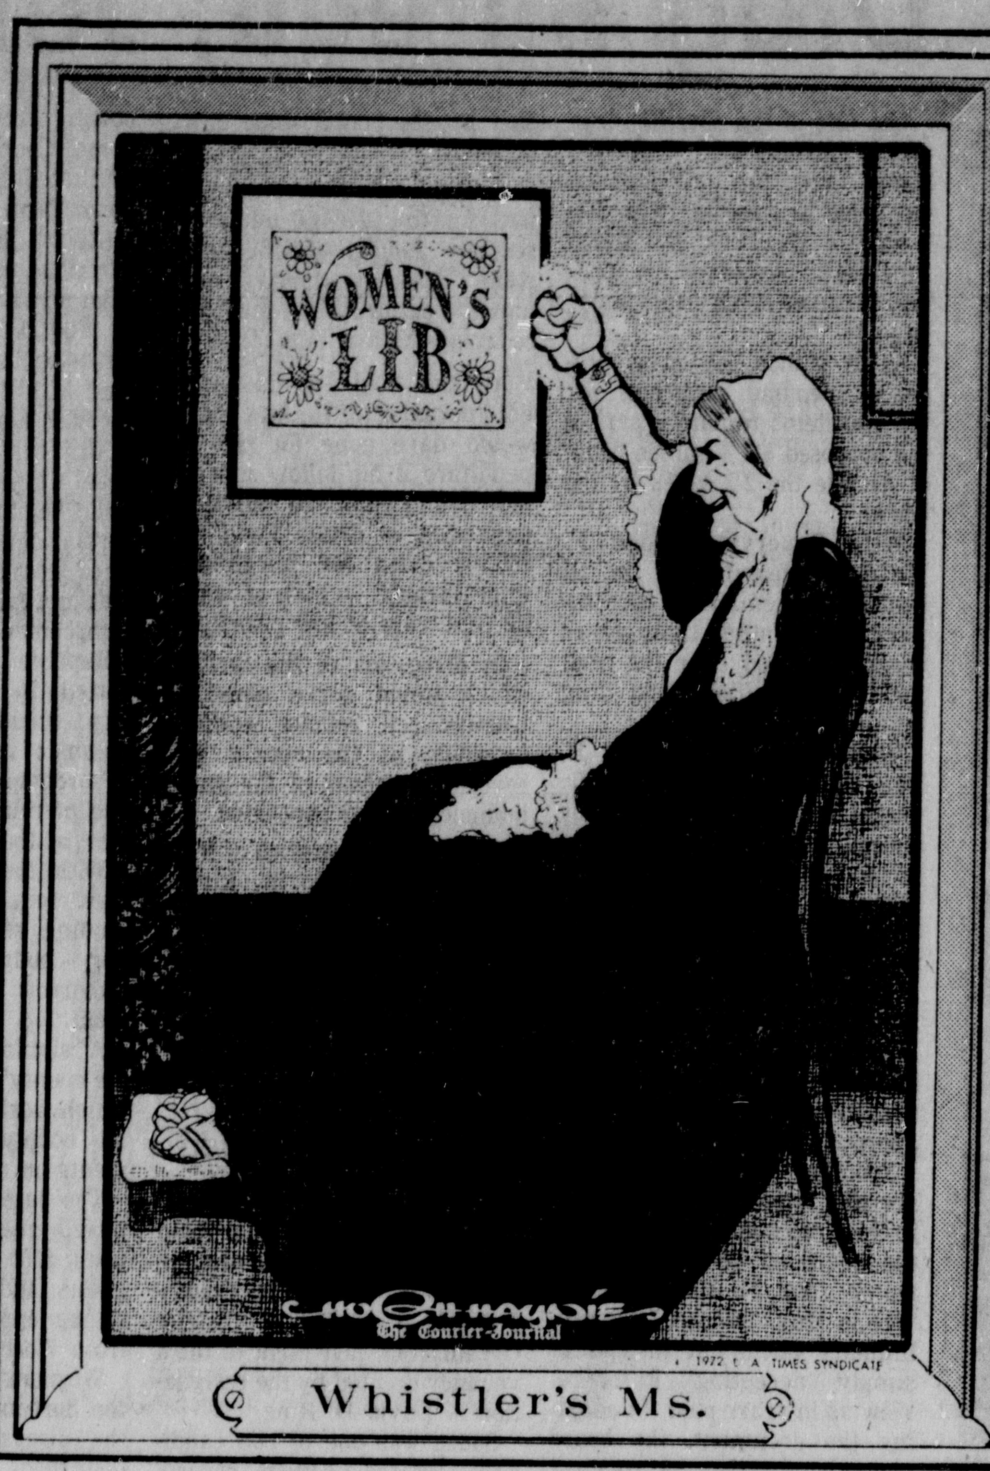


"Celebrate if you like, but knock off that 'Happy Days Are Here Again' song for the moment."

WORTH SAYING AGAIN

The security of the Pacific region will depend upon the ability of the countries there to meet the legitimate growing demands of their own people. No military strength we can bring to bear can give them internal stability or popular acceptance. — Clark Clifford.

Whereas, once combinations of employers could say to workers, "Take what we offer you or you will not eat," now union power can say to employers, "Give what we demand or you will not produce," and to the general public, "Unless we win, what you need you will not have!" — Jenkin Lloyd Jones.



"Right on!"

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Hold Fast To What God Has Given Us

In the midst of it all, anguish, turmoil, the struggle for survival, take a moment on a sun-bright day to see what was intended for this earth planet. Behold and believe what you see — created for mankind to cherish — by God, Nature, the Source, whatever. How the creator is identified by each of us isn't of consequence, is it? awareness and savoring of the created is.

Take for example, color: The blue of the translucent sky. Did you ever consider how incredible that color really is? The atmosphere we call sky could have been just constantly grey, dull and dense. But blue prevails, unspeakable blue! And take green leaves, radiant with vitality and the gaity of being. And take wildflowers, some so tiny they're often passed by, undiscovered as they sparkle up through the gentle grasses, serenely, silently, trustingly.

Take the patterns of bird-flight across the cerulean skyways — some far distant, visible only as silver streaks; others, immediate and identifiable as swallows, woodpeckers, wild pigeons, accompanied these days by the flutter of bright butterfly wings.

Take bird-song. Off in the valley, the meadow-lark's trill; nearby, the glorious burst from the tanager's throat and the robin's; the towhee's rusty, friendly solo, the dove's crooning.

Take all the myriad wonders, prevailing despite the ravages of that ruthlessness called progress and rejoice that they still are, these wonders. May we hold fast to them with gratitude, with joy, praying that somehow we fallen angels will find our way back to attunement —and survival!

Togetherness Allowed Only In Taverns

Thank you for your article on publisher Milton Weiner. It used to be that the only wails one heard in southern Marin concerned our infamous police department . . .

Mr. Weiner, who has struggled to publish hereabouts for about five years, now, is being arbitrarily denied the use of a public house because the crush of people might distend the walls and perhaps cause another grand tremblor. However, nearly every tavern in Sausalito is jammed to the rafters with liquified individuals, and nearly every bar in this town breaks fire regulations with daily vigor. That is socially acceptable. When people are inebriated they then to get closer together and block avenues of escape in case of fire, by dint of the capacity of alcohol to glue strangers one to the other in bonds of rapid friendship. However, it would appear that poetry and song are a threat to the integrity of this town, in spite of the fact that Sausalito is merely a polite riot on weekends and holidays.

Advantages Of Park District Enumerated

In its editorial of June 16 backing County Administrator John Barrows' opposition to the establishment of a Marin County Regional Park District, the Independent-Journal made four principal arguments: the proposed district could do nothing that the board of supervisors cannot already do; its separate status would help conceal the special open space tax; a county district would discourage local land acquisition; it would add another layer of government bureaucracy.

Briefly, here are our responses.

1. The critical advantage of an open space district over regular county government is that its guaranteed source of income (limited to $.10 per $100 assessed valuation unless the voters approve more) enables it to enter into long-term purchase agreements and borrow against future revenues, both of which are vital to an acquisition program of the magnitude proposed in Marin . . .

2. The regional park district tax will be a highly visible separate item instead of being buried in the complex annual appropriations for the Park and Recreation Department.

3. Local land purchases will be encouraged, not discouraged, by the prospect that matching funds will be available from the district to protect such areas as the North Ridge, Richardson Bay, San Pedro Ridge, etc. . .

4. Happily, because the supervisors will act as a governing board no additional administrative bureaucracy will be required beyond the appointment of one park planner to the county staff — a position which would be needed irrespective of whether there was a new district . . .

Greatest Thrill Reserved For Crews

A wave of nostalgia enveloped me as I read your cover story on crew at Redwood High. In 1929 I was a coxswain on the University of Washington's freshman crew and as the article indicated there are many physical and mental rewards. However in Larkspur as I watch the shells come down the Corte Madera Creek under sunny skies, I remember in contrast the ice and snow on the dock at the crew house at Washington, and wearing gloves to keep my hands from growing numb while holding the tiller ropes.

The football players get their thrills scoring touchdowns. The crewman driving toward the finish line gets his thrill as the stroke goes up and up and a coxswain screaming harassment and criticism in his ears and then pulling away from the adjacent boat to cross the finish line first. Then the crewmen pick up the coxswain and throw him in the water as a victory signal and collect the losers' jerseys. Yes, the '49ers and the Redwood Giants have given me many thrills over the years, but unless you've been on a crew, you'll never experience the excitement and pressure as the starter picks up his giant megaphone, surveys the shells and yells, "Ready all to row," and the coxswains of each shell in turn yell to their crews, "Ready all" and then the final signal "Row!"

Yes, it's the greatest thrill.

Americans Want Gun Control But Congress Drags Its Feet

WASHINGTON — Three days after Gov. George Wallace was shot while campaigning in Maryland, a Senate judiciary subcommittee met to consider a proposal to tighten control over handguns. The end result was more foggy talk, more evasion, more delay.

Everyone agreed, of course, that shooting a candidate is a nasty business. It just shouldn't happen. But the freedom of the individual to use his gun must not be lightly tampered with.

Political assassination in this country has no apparent end. I was in Europe when Wallace was shot and somehow the shock of it was greater there than it might have been here at home. Friendly Europeans asked with genuine concern and puzzlement, "How can this happen in your country?" For our enemies it was another opportunity to score the U.S.A. as a banana republic where the gun overrules the ballot box.

Not alone Vietnam but the rampant violence spilling into our political life has tarnished the image of America. The two Kennedys, Martin Luther King Jr., and now Wallace — it is a pattern without rhyme or reason other than the prevalence of marginal individuals, either fanatics or out of a subculture of fantasy and violent exhibitionism, with ready access to the means of instant murder.

SEN. BIRCH BAYH reported out of his subcommittee on juvenile deliquency a bill that would prohibit the sale of handguns other than those for "sporting purposes." This last involves a complicated formula to be determined by the gun control division of the Treasury. Whether the Bayh bill will get the support of the full judiciary committee and what will happen to it on the Senate floor are part of the enigma of doubt and a possible prelude to failure as so often in the past.

A law passed in 1968 after Robert Kennedy's assassination banned the importation of small handguns. These are, in the jargon of the trade, the cheapies, the Saturday-night specials. The law also banned mail-order sales of such guns and required identification by the purchaser.

But with more loophole than law the result has been almost farcical if it were not so ominous. Component parts may be imported and, according to one estimate, a million cheapies were assembled in 1971 with imported parts, some really sub-assemblies, from Europe and Japan. As for identification, the individual flashes a driver's license and whether he is high on alcohol or drugs is no matter as he forks down $10 at a pawn shop for a Saturday-night special.

A RECENT GALLUP survey conducted for the Wall Street Journal, involving personal interviews with a sampling of 1,542 persons, showed 79 per cent in favor of requiring a police permit to buy any gun. Repeated polls going as far back as 1938 have shown overwhelming support for gun registration. In that year 84 per cent would require gun owners to register and that percentage has rarely fallen below 70. Why then has Congress persistently refused to act? The familiar answer is the "gun lobby." Certainly that lobby, as embodied in the National Rifle Association with the financial support of big arms makers, is part of the answer, although it is more complicated than that, with heavy overtones from the political right wing.

Maxwell Rich, executive vice president of the rifle association, set some kind of record when he testified on the Bayh bill. Was he for it or was he against it? Bayh pressed without getting any very conclusive answer. Then the witness said:

"Well, we are getting again to a thing that we have been working on in many other fields, that is the consumer end, you know, setting standards of safety. We do it in toasters and other things. That might be something that will tie in here, and we would like to see the tests before we go on record about this. They are practically concluded."

Naturally you wouldn't want a cheapie that would explode in your hand. The statistics are so familiar and so appalling. One recent estimate is that 57 Americans die every day as a result of being shot with a handgun.

On Capitol Hill there was some expectation that the administration might come up with a gun-control bill. Later reports had it that because of a division of opinion, with the prevailing view favoring right-wing opposition, the White House was stymied. In any event, the silence speaks for itself and the cheapies sell like hot cakes.

Project To Reclaim Laos Goes Ahead Despite War

By PHIL NEWSOM

In the triple-tiered jungle between Vientiane, administrative capital of Laos, and Long Chieng, from which U. S.-supported Meo tribesmen fight the Communist-led Pathet Lao and the North Vietnamese, a near-miracle has occurred.

It is the completion of the Nam Ngum Dam, a $30 million project which is only part of a dream that refuses to fade away despite war, opposing ideologies and national jealousies.

It began in the early 1950s as a United Nations project to develop the lower Mekong River basin and took positive form in 1958 with agreement among the four chief beneficiaries, Thailand, Laos, Cambodia and South Vietnam. Ultimately, its benefits are expected to extend to more than 20 million people and, if the full scope of the dream is realized, perhaps to as many as 100 million people.

MORE THAN A SCORE of the world's nations, including the United States, have contributed money and skills to the project.

In 1965, former President Lyndon B. Johnson, in a nowfamous famous at Johns Hopkins University, offered North Vietnam a share in its benefits and held it out as a reason for ending the war.

Johnson saw it as a billion dollar aid package for Southeast Asia and declared:

"The task is nothing less than to enrich the hopes and the existence of more than a hundred million people."

FOR CENTURIES the Mekong has flowed through Southeast Asia, its waters fed by the snowfields of the Himalaya Mountains in Tibet.

Although it spread rich silt across the delta, the destruction of its floods cost millions.

The Nam Ngum dam has a potential of 120,000 kilowatts of electricity, providing power for industrial development of Vientiane and for other uses all the way back to Bangkok, capital of Thailand.

Although close to the fighting, the site never has been attacked.

IN SOUTHERN CAMBODIA work also progressing on the Prok Thnet power and irrigation complex, west of Phnom Penh on Route 4 leading to the Cambodian port of Kompong Som. The fighting frequently cuts the road, and the flow of supplies from the port often is interrupted. But the work under a Japanese contractor goes forward. It will provide power and will irrigate 17,500 acres.

The Mekong and its tributaries are estimated to have a potential of 20 million kilowatts of electricity for agricultural, industrial and community use.

Among the benefits for the future: reclamation of the Plain of Reeds, a vast marshy wasteland extending from below Saigon northwestward into Cambodia. Alum salts contaminate the land and make its two and a half million acres useless. With proper drainage in the wet season and with sweet water pumped in during the dry, it can be made to produce three rice crops a year.

One Billion For White Flags? Laird Just Has To Be Kidding

WASHINGTON — Sec. of Defense Melvin Laird has suggested that if Senator McGovern's defense budget of $55 billion is ever adopted, we might as well throw in the towel and spend a billion dollars for white flags which we will hoist all over the world.

On the basis of past performance of our defense contractors, $1 billion for white flags is a wholly unrealistic figure, and Laird knows it.

THIS IS WHAT might happen if the Defense Department let it be known that it was planning to contract for white flags to fly around the globe:

WASHINGTON, D.C., April 30, 1973 — The chairman of the House Armed Services Committee announced today that the Lockheed Flag Co. has been given a $1 billion contract to produce 500 white flags for the Defense Department. The chairman denied the fact that Lockheed Flag was located in his district of Swampville, La., had anything to do with the company's winning the order.

SWAMPVILLE, La., July 14, 1973 — The president of the Lockheed Flag Co. displayed a prototype of the WF1 (White Flag One) for the press this morning. The president said the WF1 would outperform any white flag now flying. It would be an all-weather flag which would fly at night as well as during the day, and could stand gusts of wind up to 100 miles an hour. Lockheed Flag said it hoped to have the WF1 in production in 10 months.

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif., June 15, 1974 — The first WF1 was tested here today and Defense Department officials announced they were very pleased with the results. The WF1 flew at an altitude of 23 feet for three hours. Although it showed some fabric fatigue under stress, Lockheed Flag engineers said the damage was minimal, and easily could be repaired.

SWAMPVILLE, La., Sept. 2, 1974 — The president of Lockheed Flag announced today that due to increased labor costs, fabric fatigue and hikes in flagpole ropes, his company would not be able to fulfill its WF1 contract for $1 billion. He said he was asking for a supplementary $800 million, which was still a bargain for the country.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Dec. 15, 1974 — The chairman of the House Armed Services Committee said he was recommending the $800 million overrun for the WF1 as the security of the nation was at stake. He also said he was adding $100 million extra for Christmas bonuses for Lockheed Flag executives.

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, March 8, 1975 — Two WF1s crashed to the ground yesterday and Pentagon investigators suspect the wooden flagpoles used to fly the white flags were at fault. Termites were found in both flagpoles, and the Defense Department has grounded all WF1s until a new aluminum flagpole could be designed.

SWAMPVILLE, La., May 11, 1975 — The president of the Lockheed Flag Co. said he would need another $1 billion to replace the flagpoles in the WF1. He said it was the Defense Department's insistence on wooden flagpoles that caused the overrun, and he would need the money immediately if the white flags were to be delivered on schedule.

WASHINGTON, D.C., May 12, 1975 — Sen. William Proxmire called the WF1 the biggest Defense Department bungle of the year and suggested the contract be canceled.

Testifying in front of Proxmire's committee, the president of Lockheed Flag said that if he doesn't get $1 billion immediately, his company would go bankrupt and not only would this create a hardship for its stockholders but it would put 35 people out of work.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Sept. 11, 1975 — Congress, at the urging of the White House, voted today to give the Lockheed Flag Co. $1 billion to complete work on the WF1 and also lend it another $1 billion to develop a new multiwhite flag project which could fly six white flags from the same flagpole at the same time.

SWAMPVILLE, La., Nov. 9, 1975 — The President of Lockheed Flag Co. announced today that because of a strike he was asking the Defense Department for another. . . .

Garden Center Event Will Break Tradition

The annual Fourth of July Festival at the Marin Art and Garden Center will keep tradition as a garden and flower fan's delight, but will break tradition by doing away with competition in the displays.

The festival will be held from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. July 2-4.

"Plants on Parade" will feature exotic and unique specimen plants in ornate containers that will be on loan from homes and gardens throughout Marin. Mrs. Harold G. Hacke, display chairman, said the festival catalogue will contain information on origin and culture of each specimen.

In another part of the grounds, plans including conifers, fruit trees, succulents, flowers, ferns and bonzai material will be on sale.

Hugh Patterson, president of the Marin Garden Society, said his group and the Marin Art and Garden Center have built and landscaped new plant display areas throughout the 10-acre grounds to replace the massed floral competitions that were a trademark of the July celebration for 26 years.

The celebration, with a theme of "Good Ol' Days," will feature continuous entertainment, a fashion show on yesteryear, Gay '90s show, art-in-action, children's ride, "Granny's Flea Market," band music and old fashioned food.

Free parking will be available at the College of Marin with free shuttle buses operating during fair hours.

Firm's Recruit Letters For Salesmen Questioned

A San Rafael distributor and several San Francisco distributors of Bestline detergent products may be using questionable sales letters to recruit new salesmen, the Better Business Bureau of San Francisco and Marin has warned.

The mailings, under scrutiny because of suspected "pyramid" sales programs, say that "a management position with an income potential of $18,000 per year" is available to the reader,". . .an individual who could handle unusual and challenging career opportunities."

Leo B. Barth of the Better Business Bureau said one such letter was addressed to an individual who died last year at the age of 91.

Barth identified Enterprise Associates of San Rafael as one of the firms using the recruiting letters. He asked for reports on oral presentations made by Bestline distributors to anyone who followed up the offers.

He added that Federal Trade Commission and the state Attorney General have obtained court or consent orders regulating Bestline merchandising practices.

The Better Business Bureau will supply a special booklet on "Tips on Multi-Level Selling Plans" to anyone who asks for it and supplies a stamped, self-addressed envelope, to the bureau at 414 Mason Street, San Francisco.

Attorney Opens New Office In Petaluma

Rohnert Park attorney Richard Day has announced the opening of a new office at 620 East Washington Street, Petaluma.

Day will continue to be associated with the law firm of Maurice Fredericks and Lawrence Swensen and will be available for appointments in Petaluma on a regular basis. Day was an unsuccessful candidate for Sonoma County supervisor in 1970.

Rohnert Park Teen Dance Is Tomorrow

Music by the Bronze Hog Rock Group will be featured at a teen-age dance tomorrow from 8:30 p.m. to midnight at the Rohnert Park Community Center.

The Rohnert Park Recreation Department will also sponsor a trip to the San Francisco Giants - Cincinnati Reds baseball game Wednesday at Candlestick Park. Buses will leave from Rohnert Park Junior High School at 10:30 a.m.

A Challenge To Telephone Tax

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A challenge to the constitutionality of the 10 per cent telephone excise tax was filed yesterday in the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals.

Lloyd McMurray, attorney for the Telephone War Tax protest told the Independent-Journal, "Within a few days we will also be filing a motion for a protective order restraining the Internal Revenue Service from using harassing tactics against members of the tax protest group."

Protest members — estimated by protest leaders to number about 1,000 in Marin — have complained about IRS "scare calls" and harassment

IRS officials have denied harassment charges.

The tax protest suit charges that the government levied the 10 per cent telephone tax in 1966 to support the war in Indochina, and that it has no authority to levy a tax to support an undeclared war.

The suit is before the appellate court after being denied last September in Federal District Court in San Francisco.

Victory In This Instance Means Tracking The Correct Black Suit

Ever since the beginning of morality, wise men and women have struggled with an important problem: How to tell right from wrong. Bridge players have this struggle, too, for in some hands the contract depends on tackling the right suit first. So pay careful attention as we demonstrate once for all how to tell right from wrong.

West opens the six of diamonds. You need three tricks in the black suits. Which black suit should you tackle first?

If you lead spades first, East will take his ace and return his other diamond. West will clear the diamonds and will get back with the ace of clubs in time to defeat the contract.

If you lead clubs first, West's ace is knocked out. West can clear the diamonds but can never get back to take them.

CLUBS RIGHT SUIT

"Hold on," says the heckler in the back row. "Suppose the two black aces were exchanged. Then spades would be right and clubs would be wrong."

EXTRA CHANCE

You cannot tell which opponent has which ace. By tackling clubs first, however, you give yourself an extra chance.

Suppose you lead spades first. This has an even chance to be the right suit. If it is the wrong suit, however, you are dead.

Next suppose that you lead clubs first — from the dummy. This has, likewise, an even chance to be right. But you still have a chance even if East has the ace of clubs. East must play his ace of clubs at once and shoot back a diamond, for otherwise you would "steal" one club trick and switch to spades.

EAST'S ACTION

But East's play of the ace of clubs leaves you with a chance to win three club tricks, which would be enough for your contract.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one no-trump (strong), and you hold:
♠- 10 9 4
♥- 8 6 4
♦- A 9 7 6 2
♣- A 3.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two no-trump.

Your eight points are a little skimpy for this raise, but your five-card suit is an extra value.

Wallace's Surgery Recovery Is Good

SILVER SPRING, Md. (UPI) —Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace has made "very satisfactory" progress since the operation Sunday that removed a bullet lodged in his spinal column, and his physicians have discontinued daily medical bulletins on his condition.

Doctors said Wednesday in their last daily bulletin that Wallace was suffering "less postoperative pain each day." They reported his blood pressure, pulse and temperature were normal

Employees To Receive Pay Boosts

North Marin County Water District employees will get raises ranging from 5.5 per cent to 16.2 per cent, effective July 1.

The raises were approved Tuesday by district directors, who also approved an estimated $665,666 operating budget for fiscal 1972-73, up about $59,300 from this year's total, according to Eugene S. Churchill, district manager.

The increase will be offset by increased property assessments and water sales, Churchill predicted. The board set the district tax rate at 10 cents per $100 assessed valuation, the same as this year.

The largest raise went to Churchill, whose annual salary was hiked from $21,500 to $25,000 by a 3-2 vote of the board. George A. Amaroli and Frank V. Baccaglio voted against the raise: Franklin Gustafson, Pat Heffernan and William V. Wright favored it, Churchill said.

Churchill said pay raises of 5.5 per cent for all employees and 7.25 per cent for some, coupled with approval of three new job classifications, would require additional calculations before the final budget total is available.

Churchill pointed out the operations budget increase included both the raises and $33,000 for purchasing water from Sonoma County.

The board trimmed three allocations totaling $22,275 from the proposed capital outlay budget that originally called for $269,943.

The cuts included $11,437 for replacing pipelines along part of Atherton Avenue; a $8,838 carryover for the now-defunct Sonoma-Marin Aqueduct project and a $5,971 trim in funding next year's portion of the 10-year master plan revision project, leaving only $2,000 for the work.

The board set the tax rate at 38 cents per $100 assessed valuation for the Point Reyes Station-Inverness Park capital improvements program, Churchill said.

The North Marin County Water District Board also:

PETALUMA RIVER — Deferred action to July 18 on a study requested by Sonoma County landowner Shellmaker Inc. on the feasibility of annexing the east bank of the river opposite Black Point, in order to provide water to a proposed marina. The Black Point Improvement Club asked for the delay, Churchill said.

CHARGES — Set new "facilities reserve charges" for apartment houses and mobile home parks, ranging from $725 for a 1.5 inch line to $2,180 for a 3-inch line effective July 1. The rates had been $430 to $1,290 — much less per unit than single-family homes charged.

WATER USE — Heard Churchill report that May water consumption was up 25.5 per cent over May 1971 — 225.8 million gallons for the district compared to 179.9 million gallons last year.

PETITION — Heard a report that Paradise Ranch homeowners in West Marin are circulating petitions to have the district buy the private water system which now serves about 70 Inverness Ridge homes.

Flees Eastern Zone

GOETTINGEN, Germany (UPI)—A 27-year-old East German men fled across the Communist-mined zone into West Germany late Wednesday, border police reported today.

Medi-Cal Reforms Advance

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A bill abolishing the "prior authorization" restrictions for doctors who provide Medi-Cal services is now before the Senate.

The bill was advanced Wednesday on a 9-2 vote by the Senate Health and Welfare Committee. It is the key measure of a seven-bill package by Sen. Peter Behr, R-San Rafael, which he said is designed to "reform" management of Medi-Cal.

Under the bill approved by the committee, physicians would not be required to obtain approval from the state Department of Health Care Services when he feels non-emergency care is needed.

Currently, doctors must get approval for further medical care when a Medi-Cal patient has used the allotted two monthly visits. The request is reviewed by a state-employed physician.

Behr told the committee the "prior authorization" system has driven many doctors out of Medi-Cal because of the paperwork and the review of their medical judgment.

"It has failed to prevent unethical doctors from cheating the system," Behr said, "and it has denied needed medical care to the poor."

Dr. John H. Jordan of the Health Care Services Department, opposed the bill, contending "prior authorization" is needed to prevent unnecessary medical care.

Sens. Jack Schrade, R-San Diego, and James Q. Wedworth, D-Hawthorne, cast the two "no votes on the bill.

At an earlier news conference, Behr said his Medi-Cal legislative package had the support of the California Medical Association, the California Hospital Association and the California Rural Legal Assistance.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Cutback Of Carbohydrates For Diabetics No Longer In Vogue

A New Yorker writes: "My son was just told he has diabetes. He went to the doctor because he was losing weight, even though he was not dieting. The doctor taught him to give himself insulin shots and gave him a diet to follow. He is allowed sugars and starches, which I always thought were not good for diabetics. Is this right?"

Restriction of carbohydrates (starches, sugars, cellulose) was in vogue 50 to 60 years ago, but there is no scientific basis for it. As a result, the diet of the modern diabetic is more liberalized and varied, and allows almost twice as many grams of carbohydrate as protein and fat. Fruits, vegetables, and cereals, including bread, spaghetti, noodles, milk, and sugar are examples of foods containing carbohydrates.

MORE RECENTLY, the American Dietetic Association urged physicians to allow diabetics to eat the same amount of carbohydrates as nondiabetics, if, and this this is a strong if, they keep the number of calories low enough to maintain normal weight. By using the usual starting formula in calculating diabetic diets, this means less fats which in turn will lessen the chance of weight gain and the development of arteriosclerosis, heart attack, and stroke.

The younger person usually needs insulin and a diet to control his diabetes. Proper nutrition alone, without insulin injections, can control the disease in many adult diabetics. In fact, many overweight older persons with slightly more than normal amounts of sugar in the urine and blood do very well if they lose weight. There is some question whether these individuals have diabetes.

THE TYPICAL diabetes that develops in children and younger adults is easy to diagnose. This is not always true of the "diabetes" that develops later in life. The laboratory tests are abnormal, but not too far off. If the condition cannot be controlled with diet, antidiabetic pills or insulin are added to the regimen. So many oldsters develop the late onset form of the disease, that some authorities believe that like gray hair, it may be normal after age 60.

(Questions on medical topice will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

MALIGNANY CHANGE

F. D. writes: What do you mean by precancerous? I thought you either have the disease or don't have it.

REPLY

Some lesions turn into cancer or undergo cancerous degeneration. Since we cannot determine when the switch is made from benign to malignant, we call the lesion precancerous until it becomes malignant.

SMART GALS

E. T. writes: Is it true that in grammar school, the girls are smarter than the boys, but boys are smarter in high school?

REPLY

Girls are smarter even in high school — at least they discover they get along better with boys by acting dumb.

DIET AND THYROID

K. C. writes: Is there a specific diet for a person with thyroid deficiency?

REPLY

No, except to eat sparingly, because low metabolism encourages weight gain. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on hypothyroidism.

San Rafael air quality yesterday:

Oxidant, clean air.

Nitrogen dioxide, clean air.

Carbon monoxide, clean air.

Smoke particles, clean air.

Other areas:

San Francisco, clean air.

San Jose, light air pollution.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches, and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come large from industrial sources, while the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

McLAIN VISITS OAKLAND

Holtzman, A's Beaten By Tigers

OAKLAND (UPI) — Denny McLain, remember him?

He's back in town today but not as an official member of the Oakland A's.

McLain, banished to the minors on May 14, ostensibly to get himself into pitching shape, jumped the Birmingham club of the Southern Association Wednesday and headed to Oakland, where he expects to find out "where I stand."

As of the moment, he is still a member of the Birmingham club and is not likely to be promoted back to the A's. At least that's what owner Charley Finley and manager Dick Williams are saying.

Finley is in the Bay Area and said he is available if McLain wants to talk. As for jumping Birmingham, Finley said it was news to him.

"I'm available if Denny wants to talk," said the A's owner, "but as far as his status is concerned we'll make the decisions."

Williams echoed his boss' statement.

"If Denny wants to work out while he's in Oakland," said Williams, "it's all right with me. He's here at his own expense. Right now we have no plans to bring him back although the reports on him look good."

It's those reports which McLain, the former Cy Young Award winner and the last pitcher to win 30 games, is using as a leverage to gain another big league shot. Reportedly, McLain threw hard and well in his last two starts and said he has accomplished what the A's expected of him in Birmingham.

"Besides," McLain was quoted as saying, "they have an

Scipio Spinks Story— 'Me And My Gorilla'

CHICAGO — Scipio Spinks was born here in Chicago 24 years ago, the son of Scipio Spinks whose father also was named Scipio Spinks. All males in the Spinks family are named Scipio. It's a family tradition. Scipio is pronounced Sip-e-oh, not Skip-e-oh.

The youngest of the Scipios now is a major league pitcher and a pretty good one even though he wasn't successful in two tries against the Giants this season, the first in Candlestick Park June 8, the second in Busch Stadium at St. Louis last Sunday.

SCIPIO AND Tito Fuentes had words in Candlestick when Scipio sent Tito into the dirt with a fast ball. "He told me to stop staring at him," said Tito. "He's crazy. Check him out. Ask Joe Torre about him. Ask Lou Brock. Ask any of his Cardinal teammates."

So a baseball writer traveling with the Giants did check out Scipio when the Giants visited St. Louis last weekend. And this is what he learned:

Scipio's closest pal is a gorilla that he bought in Houston, where he used to pitch for the Astros until they traded him to the Cardinals. Scipio says he couldn't resist buying the gorilla because, despite the fact it is a stuffed one, it tapped on a shop window as Scipio was passing by.

SOMETIMES SCIPIO calls his pet "Joe Torre," sometimes "Lou Brock," but when he wants a game ticket left for the gorilla he puts down the name of "Mighty Joe Young" on the St. Louis players' pass list.

Mighty Joe Young, wearing a Cardinal cap and uniform, sat last Sunday in a Busch Stadium box and watched his master pitch. Scipio had forgotten to bring his gorilla to Candlestick two weeks ago and he blamed his forgetfulness on the fact the Giants scored four runs off him.

The gorilla slumped in its seat when Scipio was kayoed in the eighth inning of his second appearance against the Giants. But Scipio still hasn't lost faith in his gorilla as a good luck charm.

HOWEVER, SCIPIO'S new Cardinal teammates blamed the gorilla for an 0-7 road trip and hanged him in the clubhouse while Scipio was running wind sprints. Not only did they hang the ape, they put a dagger through his heart.

Scipio was crushed when he saw his pal dangling from the rafters. "He cost me $26," said Scipio as he untied the noose and removed the dagger. "I'll love him even with a broken neck. I won't give him up."

Torre, as the team's player rep, apologized to Scipio for the lynching and assured him it wouldn't happen again. Scipio was duly grateful.

"I couldn't stand the shock of a second lynching," said Scipio and his teammates roared.

Like the Giants, the Cardinals haven't had much to laugh about this season. But Scipio has kept them loose with, of course, the help of his gorilla.

Corte Madera Plans Summer Instruction

The Corte Madera Recreation Department, in conjunction with two community organizations, will offer instructional programs in judo, basic canoeing and basic sailing this summer.

The eight-week judo course costs $13 for residents, $15 for non-residents, begins next Wednesday and runs eight weeks. The canoe course, cosponsored with the American Red Cross and Marin Canoe Club, costs $11 or $13 and runs July 10-21. Sailing, co-sponsored by the Red Cross, costs $10 or $12.50 and runs Saturday through Aug. 5.

Registration will be accepted until the opening day of the course, and is held at the Corte Madera Town Hall on weekdays.

ALL-STAR BASEBALL TONIGHT

The third annual Knights of Columbus North-South All-Star prep baseball game will be played tonight at 7:30 at Albert Park in San Rafael.

Proceeds will benefit the K of C college scholarship fund. Tickets cost $2 for adults and $1 for students and are available at the gate.

Jim Petray of Marin Catholic High School will be the starting pitcher for the South and Mike Lamb of Novato High for the North, respective coaches Dick Creighton of Drake and Ron Butori of San Marin have announced.

MEN'S 35 SINGLES

No Net Upsets In Mill Valley

In a tennis tournament, if the top-rated players are eliminated in the first round, the tournament director may be eliminated shortly thereafter, amid nasty remarks about his ability to seed the participants.

No such crisis happened in Mill Valley yesterday, as all eight of the seeded singles players in the 14th annual National Men's 35 Hardcourt Championships advanced, and only two had difficulty in doing so.

Singles play will continue and doubles play will commence today. The tournament will run through Sunday.

Top-seeded Don Kierbow of Carmichael, eight days out of the hospital, appeared to be perfectly fit as he shredded Greg Miller of Los Gatos in the first set, 6-0. Miller, however, rebounded to take the second, 6-4, and battle furiously throughout the third before Kierbow prevailed, 6-3.

Seventh-seeded Leoncito Collas, South American champion living in Carmel, trampled Sandy Walker of San Francisco in his opening match, 6-2, 6-4, but had no such easy time in his second.

Starting at 6 p.m., he was on the court more than two hours before he finally subdued Jack Movido of Chula Vista, 6-4, 5-7, 6-4.

Five players from Marin County were eliminated in first-round action.

Hugh Tierney of Belvedere lost to Terry Cooke of San Mateo, 6-4, 7-6. David Sheldon of San Rafael was blitzed by fourth-seeded Whitney Reed of Alameda, 6-0, 6-0. Bob Seymour of Mill Valley defaulted to Van Smith of Newport Beach. Jack Barone of Mill Valley succumbed to fifth-seeded Tom Brown of San Francisco 6-1, 6-2, and Keith Klussman of Mill Valley was ousted by Greg Grant of Phoenix, Ariz., 6-2, 6-3.

Like Kierbow, second-seeded Jim Landin of Littleton, Colo., drew a first-round bye. He then clubbed Don Wilson of San Francisco, 6-2, 6-0.

Third-seeded Clif Mayne of Lafayette won his first-round match by default over Larry Goldbeck of Vallejo. Fourth-seeded Reed followed up his victory over Sheldon by beating Tom Tucker of San Francisco, 6-4, 6-2. Fifth-seeded Brown fol-

DeMont's Challenge In Santa Clara Swim

The biggest and the oldest will seek to maintain an ever-dwindling edge over the smallest and the youngest this weekend in the Sixth Annual Santa Clara International Invitational Swimming meet.

The biggest, personified by 6-foot-4, 215 pound world-record holder John Kinsella of Indiana University, and the oldest, represented by 25-year-old former world-record holder Mike Burton of the Arden Hills Swim Club of Sacramento, are taking frequent looks over their wide shoulders at 16-year-old Rick DeMont of Terra Linda.

DeMont, competing for the Marin Aquatic Club, will challenge this duo, as will another rising star, Jack Tingley of Pasadena, in the 1500-meter (long course, 50-meter pool) freestyle event at Santa Clara. The prestigious International meet is an important stepping stone toward the U.S. Olympic Trials, Aug. 1-6 in Chicago.

DeMont was third behind Kinsella and Burton at the short course (25-yard pool) National Amateur Athletic Union meet in Dallas in April. The 155-pound high school senior edged fourth-place Tingley there by two seconds, the the Southern California junior college student has since bettered his time slightly, setting up a potentially tempestuous battle over the near-mile distance.

DeMont will lead a squad of eight Marin A.C. swimmers — five women and three men — to the famous Santa Clara convergence.

According to coach Don Swartz, DeMont's 1,500 is by far the best chance for a local placing. Rick's other events, the 200 and 400 free, are a little short for his best performance, according to his trainer, but are nevertheless possibilities for placing.

Swartz commented, "We are not tapering for this meet at

15 Marin Auto Race Drivers At Laguna Seca

Sponsor Joe Huffaker was the justice of the peace who wedded Woodner and Mueller, former blistering rivals. Both will drive Huffaker cars at Laguna Seca — Mueller in the E production division and Woodner in the F production.

Giants' Bryant Blanks Cubs, 4-0

CHICAGO (UPI)—A blowing Nor'wester carried the sweet smell of success to Ron Bryant and the San Francisco Giants.

Aided by a brisk 17-mile an hour wind blowing against the batters, the Giants southpaw handcuffed the Chicago Cubs on only two singles for a 4-0 victory Wednesday.

The robust breezes drove at least three potential homers into the hands of Giant outfielders, and Bryant was the first to admit it.

"Jim Hickman, Billy Williams and (Carmen) Fanzone hit balls that would have gone out of the park on an ordinary day but they couldn't battle that wind," said Bryant, now 44.

"The batters know I'm a fastball pitcher and you need a little bit of luck to win a game like this one. When the Cubs weren't trying for homers, they were hitting them right where somebody was."

Bryant gave up a first inning single to Don Kessinger and was touched for a single in the eighth inning by Williams in notching his first shutout of the year.

Today the Giants are idle. They open a three-game weekend series Friday night in San Diego.

San Francisco scored a run in the second off loser Milt Pappas (5-5) on consecutive singles by Dave Rader, Alan Gallagher and Tito Fuentes.

Bryant walked five and struck out two. He suffered control problems in the second and fourth innings but each time retired Pappas for the third out.

Orioles' Pitching Falters In Defeat

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Just when it seemed time for the Baltimore Orioles to start sewing things up, their pitching staff has started to unravel a bit.

The Orioles ran off eight straight victories last week with each member of their "big four" recording two victories and it seemed as if the club was getting ready to take control of the American League pennant race.

But the Orioles suffered their third loss in their last four games Wednesday night when they lost 6-3 to the California Angels and enabled the Detroit Tigers to take over sole possession of first place.

The Orioles rallied for two runs in the top of the seventh to take a 3-2 margin but reliever Doyle Alexander couldn't get anybody out in the bottom of the inning and the Angels pushed across four runs to wrap up the contest.

Alexander, pitching for Chuck Dobson who was lifted for a pinch-hitter in the top of the inning, gave up a pinch single to leadoff battle Mickey Rivers. Alexander then fumbled Sandy Alomar's sacrifice bunt and gave up Ken Berry's runscoring single that tied the game 3-3.

After Vada Pinson was walked intentionally, manager Earl Weaver brought in Eddie Watt but Bob Oliver tagged him for a two-run single that decided the game. John Stephenson then singled in an insurance run.

In the other games, Boston edged Texas 10-9 in 11 innings, Chicago topped Milwaukee 9-3, Detroit beat Oakland 5-2 and Cleveland edged Minnesota 4-2. The Kansas City at New York game was rained out.

Rico Petrocelli got only one hit against Texas but he drove in six runs. He hit a grand slam in the fifth inning to account for most of them. But the Red Sox didn't win until the 11th inning when Doug Griffin hit a bases-loaded single. The Sox, who once trailed 7-1, tied it 9-9 in the ninth when Carl Yastrzemski, who had five hits, scored from second when the Rangers made two errors when Petrocelli hit a sharp grounder to short.

Ray Fosse and Graig Nettles hit homers to back the eight-hit pitching of Gaylord Perry as Cleveland topped Minnesota. The victory snapped a two-game losing streak for Perry as he bested Bert Blyleven.

Redwood-Area Pop Warner Grid Signups Taken

Boys from ages 10-14 who are interested in participating in the Redwood High School-area Pop Warner fall football program may still become involved.

According to C.W. Holland, publicist for the program, boys who missed the original June 3 signup are still encouraged to join the youth league.

The "Junior Giant" team is for boys 12-14 years of age and weighing between 90 and 125 pounds. The "Gremlins" are youngsters 10-12, and from 70 to 105 pounds. No boy may have graduated from the eighth grade.

Interested persons should contact John J. Ongaro in Ross immediately.

Marin Girls Triumph In Berkeley Net

Miss Zarraonandia defeated Amy Morris, 6-2, 6-1, while Miss DeMartini thumped Gloria Faltermeier, 6-1, 6-1.

Leslie Airola of Tiburon was beaten by Brenda Garcia in girls 18, 6-1, 6-0. Henry Jacobson of Tiburon defeated Neal Kahatsu in boys 16, 6-4, 6-2.

open spot on the roster, so I don't understand why I'm not being recalled. I want to talk about the situation with somebody."

Williams has nine pitchers and said that's all he needs right now. He added his starting rotation is set all the way to the All Star game break and there really is no place for another starter.

Since McLain is a starter and not adapted to relieving, there seems little for him to do except to go back to Birmingham and wait.

Meanwhile, while McLain seeks to untangle his life, the A's are enjoying a day off, their only one for the next 31 days when they play 33 games.

Wednesday night they dropped a 5-2 decision to the Detroit Tigers and saw their lead in the American League shaved a game to four. Ken Holtzman, McLain's roommate at the start of the season, went the distance and dropped his fifth decision compared to 10 victories.

The Tigers reached Holtzman for eight hits and it was a big double by Bill Freehan in the eighth that broke the game wide open. Freehan doubled to right center with one out and the bases loaded to chase across two runs and when Reggie Jackson booted the ball a third run scored.

That was more help than Tom Timmerman needed to gain his sixth victory in 11 decisons. Timmerman said he hasn't had much luck against the A's in the past but he stopped them on five hits this time.

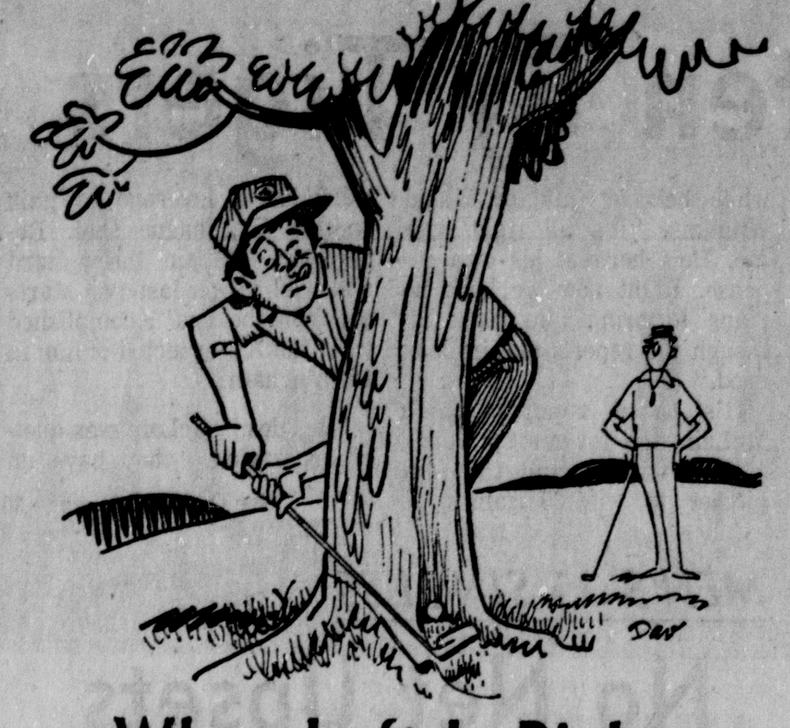
TREVINO TALKS GOLF



When Left Is Right

By LEE TREVINO

There are times when you've got to be a switch-hitter. I used to practice left-hand shots at Hardy's in Dallas by turning the club over.

It finally paid off in a Ryder Cup match against Brian Huggett of England — probably the greatest shot I ever hit.

My ball was nuzzling a big tree where I couldn't get to it right-handed. The hole was a dogleg right, with the green 125 yards away. So I moved over on the wrong side, took a cut and hooked the ball around some trees and on the green. I two-putted to win.

I suggest that most players use the back of their putter to advance a ball left-handed. The secret is this: Keep your head down. Most guys look up and fan the ball.

If there's any way to hit it in your natural manner, even if it means standing on one leg, the percentages are with you. On this kind of shot you don't expect to move the ball far from either side. It's a percentage game.

If you can waste one stroke and escape with bogey, take it. Getting fancy can cost you a seven. And the only place those babies can help you is in Las Vegas.

Two Boxing Bills Passed By Senate

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

SACRAMENTO — The Senate voted final legislative approval last night to two measures aimed at protecting boxers from excessive physical abuse in the ring and financial abuse from their managers.

On 34-0 votes, the Senate sent the measures — part of a four-bill package by Assemblyman Vincent Thomas, D-San Pedro — to the governor for signature.

One of the bills would require referees to penalize a boxer who struck another with a rabbit or kidney punch by at least a fraction of a point in the scoring of the fight.

The other measure would require boxing managers to file quarterly financial statements with the state Athletic Commission concerning the division of a purse a fighter won.

SAN FRANCISCO — Gary Lavelle of Phoenix, the San Francisco Giants' Pacific Coast League farm club, is the league's leading pitcher among those who worked 70 or more innings through last Sunday, league statistics showed today. Lavelle had a 3.04 earned run average. Former Giant Mike McCormick, who "un-retired" yesterday and joined Hawaii, was fourth at 3.67 as a result of a previous stint at Phoenix.

CAPE CORAL, Fla. — The University of Texas, with par-beating performances by Tom Kite and Ben Crenshaw, took a solid lead into the second round of the 75th annual National Collegiate Athletic Associate Golf Championship today.

MUNICH, Germany — The Olympic Organizing Committee and the sports clothing manufacturer "Adidas" have started a bitter pre-Olympic feud over three stripes.

The three stripes are the trade mark of the Herzogenaurach shoe firm and have been banned from all clothing of athletes and officials during the Munich Olympics by the International Olympic Committee (IOC).

In an official statement "Adidas" alleged the move was one-sided. It said other companies providing time keeping equipment and computers for the games would be allowed to show even their full names during the Games.

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Graybeard, a 73-foot ketch from British Columbia, had completed 889 miles by Wednesday as winds increased on the seventh day of the 3,571-mile Transpacific Tahiti Yacht Race.

Graybeard is from the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club.

The handicap leader was Pen Duick III, a 57-foot French sloop which was 825 miles out.

SHARON'S MOMENT OF TRUTH

The moment of truth is coming.

Sharon Walsh of San Rafael, Marin County's chance for international women's tennis fame, will find out just how good she is — or isn't — next Wednesday when she meets powerful Billie Jean King in the All-England Championships at Wimbledon.

Each player drew a bye in the first round and the two will play each other in the second. They have never met before according to Sharon's father, photographer Les Walsh.

Miss Walsh played twice earlier this week in the Queen's Tournament in Britain, defeating Lita Liem of Indonesia Monday and losing to Britain's Virginia Wade Tuesday.

Gibson Wins 211th, Tops Cardinal Mark

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Don't tell Bob Gibson about Jesse (Pop) Haines—or any of those other old-timers either.

Gibson, perhaps baseball's angriest righthander, became the St. Louis Cardinals' winningest pitcher ever Wednesday night by limiting the San Diego Padres to three hits over seven innings while Moe Drabowsky finished up to preserve the easy 14-3 victory.

The victory, Gibson's fifth straight, gave him a lifetime total of 211—one more than Haines, the Cardinal pitching star of the 1920's who was elected to the Hall of Fame in 1970. But Gibson didn't seem to really care about that.

"I've been aware of that mark ever since last year when I reached 200 wins," Gibson said. "But up until then I didn't even know who Pop Haines was since I don't usually go around looking in record books.

"Whenever they have those old-timers games, I never go out there because all they do is sit around and talk about the old days and I'm not like that," Gibson added. "To me, selfsatisfaction is the most important thing because even if you do well someone will always say you're no good."

Elsewhere, in National League action, Cincinnati supplanted Houston in first place in the West by defeating Montreal 6-4 while the Astros were losing to the New York Mets 5-4. Philadelphia edged Atlanta 5-4, San Francisco snapped the Chicago Cubs' seven-game win streak 3-0 and Los Angeles topped Pittsburgh 5-3 in 10 innings.

The Cardinals unleashed their highest run production of the season as Joe Torre, Lou Brock and Gibson all drove in three runs apiece. Torre smacked his ninth homer of the season and Gibson also homered for a little "self satisfaction."

Tommie Agee, a frequent goat during the recent New York Mets' road slump, redeemed himself by snapping an 0-for-20 dry spell with an eighth inning double and then scored the winning run on an error by Tommy Helms as Houston slipped a half-game behind Cincinnati.

The Reds parlayed a two-run triple by Pete Rose and a bases-loaded single by Tony Perez to defeat Montreal. Gary Nolan won his ninth game of the season but needed relief help from the Tom Hall and Clay Carroll.

Mike Ryan, a late-inning replacement, delivered a two-run double in the ninth inning to give the Phillies their win over Atlanta in a see-saw game that saw the score change six times. Ryan's game-winning hit came after Braves' reliever Cecil Upshaw had loaded the bases with three straight walks.

Casper Seeking 4th Western Open Win

NORTHBROOK, Ill. (UPI) — Billy Casper, rounding into form after an early-year slump, was to begin shooting for his fourth championship today in the Western Open — the tournament in which he earned his first professional paycheck 17 years ago.

Casper and defending champion Bruce Crampton head a field that includes seven of the year's top 10 moneywinners but is missing such key names as Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino and Arnold Palmer.

If Casper can score a fourth Western Open victory this week, he would move within one of the illustrious Walter Hagen, who won this tournament five times between 1916 and 1932.

But, Casper concedes, his fondest memory of the tournament came in 1955 at Portland, Ore., when all he did was tie for last place among the 72-hole survivors — and thus earn his first paycheck as a professional.

That check was for considerably less than the $30,000 the winner will get this week from a purse of $150,000 at the 6,716-yard, par-71 Sunset Ridge Country Club course.

Among the top money winners for the year in the field of 147 are Jerry Heard, George Archer, Tom Weiskopf, Crampton, Bobby Mitchell, Bob Murphy and Chi Chi Rodriguez.

The field will be cut to the low 70 and ties following Friday's second round for the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday. In case of a tie, there will be a sudden death playoff.

A suburban couple, whose home borders Tanglewood Country Club where the Cleveland Open is played, has filed a suit to halt the golf tournament.

The suit, filed Wednesday by Mr. and Mrs. Murray G. Fox, charged that spectators at the tournament would trespass on their property.

A hearing on the petition was scheduled for today.

Novato Post 540 Falls To Napa, 2-1

Napa spliced together a single, two infield outs and another single to score a run in the bottom of the ninth inning to defeat Novato Post 540 yesterday, 2-1, in an American Legion baseball game in Yountville.

Ken Siler pitched a five-hitter for Novato but took the defeat, fifth for Novato in seven District 5 games. Greg Mazeres doubled home Novato's lone run.

Rec Area Budget Boost Protested

Following an often bitter debate over escalating salaries, the Strawberry Recreation District has adopted an $84,495 preliminary budget for 1972-73, including a $2,000 raise for recreation manager David E. Roberts.

The tentative budget drew the wrath of many residents who claimed the Strawberry area didn't need and couldn't afford an $8,000 increase in the district's spending program.

According to the district's attorney, Stephen H. Kauffman, the current tax rate of 56 cents per $100 assessed valuation may drop with next year's budget — despite the increased spending — due to a recent upward reassessment of property which will increase tax revenue.

When the budget came up for a vote last week, board chairman Carl L. Schaefer cast the only negative vote. He said the budget called for more spending than the district could afford.

A proposal to boost Roberts's salary 50 per cent, from $10,000 to $15,000, after one year on the job, accounted for the most bitter moments of the heated budget hearings. Several taxpayers questioned the need for such a costly position in a district the size of Strawberry's.

The board finally agreed on a compromise figure of $12,025 for Roberts. He will earn an additional $750 from the district if he continues to serve as clerk of the board.

Despite some objections, the board also adopted proposed 50 per cent increases in retainers for the board's architect and attorney. Architect J. Martin Rosse was slated for an increase from $600 to $900, while Kauffman was scheduled for an increase from $1,200 to $1,800.

An additional $1,000 was allotted as a subsidy to the Strawberry Area Community Council to help defray publishing costs for a master plan it has prepared. The $1,000 subsidy drew the protests of some residents who claimed the council was concerned with an area broader than the recreation district.

The final budget included $19,050 for salaries; $28,395 for operations; $1,800 for capital expenditures; $23,250 for the bank loan on the community center, and $12,000 for reserves.

The district also will spend $2,140 for payments on Flood Control Zone 1 bonds.

San Rafael Pay Raise Agreement

The San Rafael City Council last night came to an agreement with the city's nonsafety employees for 3.5 per cent cost of living salary increases which would add $48,300 to the city's proposed $5.4 million operating budget for 1972-73.

City Mgr. James H. McCown said the agreement was reached in a closed session with representatives of the city's "miscellaneous employees," who are those other than members of the fire and police departments.

The council has been unable to reach agreement with these two departments, McCown said, and has set another negotiating session for 8 p.m. Monday in city hall. This meeting also will be closed to the public.

McCown said that policemen are asking that the salary schedule be readjusted with higher pay for sergeants and lieutenants. Firemen want the same pay as the police, he said.

Morningside Court Burglary Hearing Set

A slightly built man with a purplish black eye, who has been linked to about 50 burglaries in San Anselmo's Morningside Court area, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a count of burglary and another of obstructing a police officer.

David Richard Massagli, his face battered from an effort to escape police when he was arrested Monday, stood quietly as his plea was entered and Judge David R. Baty set a preliminary hearing for Aug. 1.

The 33-year-old man was arrested early Monday hiding in the kitchen in the Laura Ratto residence at 30 Broadmoor Avenue. San Anselmo police said he had been seen creeping through the back yard of the residence.

Massagli briefly escaped officers by leaping, while handcuffed, through the side window of a patrol car after butting an officer with his head. He was recaptured after a short chase on foot.

Police subsequently searched his home at 23 Brookside Drive and found loot that would fill a dozen pickup trucks and worth in the neighborhood of $60,000.

Chief Raymond R. Buchignani said that none of Massagli's alleged burglaries took place more than 10 blocks from his home, but said he apparently was involved in about 50 burglaries since 1969.

The loot was stored at his house and never sold, although he was unemployed, police said.

Among the property recovered was a rare collection of fossils, seashells and scientific books belonging to a College of Marin professor, 13 television sets, 30 cameras, five air conditioners and hundreds of other items which will be on display for residents of the neighborhood to look through from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily through Saturday.

Police said Massagli, who doesn't have a car, carried all the items home by foot, but apparently didn't arouse the suspicions of his mother. She told police her son said friends had given him everything.

- Sealed side-terminal battery. Terminals are sealed to prevent corrosion buildup.
- An advanced emission control system so we can all breathe a little easier.
- A front seat and shoulder belt system with reminder light and warning buzzer so you won't forget to buckle up.
- A hidden antenna in the windshield when you order a factory-installed radio. It won't get bent, folded or mutilated by vandals and garage doors.

You also can take comfort in Impala's traditionally high resale value. Which is another reason why Americans have bought more Impalas than any other car on the road—over 10 million so far.

What a '72 Chevelle has that your old one doesn't.

- A larger standard 6-cyl. engine (250 cu. in.). And all Chevelle engines now run on no-lead, low-lead or regular gasoline.
- Side-guard door beams—like those guard rails you see along the highway—are in the doors of every new Chevelle.
- An advanced emission control system that's helping to fight pollution.
- Corrosion-resistant, fully aluminized tailpipe for long life.
- Front seat and shoulder belt system with reminder light and warning buzzer. Just a gentle reminder that you should buckle up.
- A sealed side-terminal battery. With the terminals sealed, corrosion is less apt to build up and rob you of starting power.
- Long-lasting bias belted ply tires. Tire performance is improved because the twin belts keep it from squiggling away on the pavement.
- A refined Delcotron generator gives you improved reliability and greater durability.
- When you order a new Chevelle with a factory-installed radio, you get the antenna in the windshield. Safe from vandals and garage doors.

The '72 Chevelle has some other things going for it, too. Like its traditionally high resale value. Like being named the "Best Intermediate Sedan" in the annual Car and Driver Readers' Choice Poll. And being the most popular car in its field year after year after year.

Chevrolet. Building a better way to see the U.S.A. Chevrolet

Remember, buckling your seat and shoulder belts is an idea you can live with. Buckle up.

OTHER PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

Recently Launched Novato Bike Shop Now Is Open Every Day

Novato now has a bicycle shop that is open seven days a week, from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Marin Sport Cyclery was launched two months ago by Bob and Blythe Carver of Piedmont at 1514 Grant Avenue. The shop specializes in the 10-speed, but also carries bicycles for the entire family, from play bikes to three and five-speeds. Carver plans to stock a full line of racing gear including race clothing.

Carver was a stock broker with Dominick and Dominick in San Francisco for two years until he left Montgomery Street to go into the bicycle business. The Carvers plan to move from Piedmont to North Marin or Petaluma to be closer to their new shop.

Mechanic at Marin Sport Cyclery is Thomas Neff of San Francisco, who has been cycling and racing for 15 years. Neff plans to move to Fairfax.

CALIFORNIA LAND Title Co. announced the appointment of Donald A. Leaf of Novato as executive vice president and manager, and Charles Bennett of Mill Valley as vice president and assistant manager for its Marin County operations.

A native of Marin, Leaf has 18 years experience in the title business in Marin, the last six years as manager of Western Title Guaranty Co. of San Rafael. Bennett has been in the title insurance business in Marin for 10 years. Both are active in community service and civic organizations.

BRUCE O. SMITH of Novato has been named product development manager for Airco Viking of Berkeley, a diversified company which produces alloys, industrial gases, welding and cutting equipment and other metal products.

Smith, former sales manager for Bergman Manufacturing Co. of San Rafael, has had 26 years of experience in sales planning and sales management.

HAVING TROUBLE getting the barbecue charcoal started?

A San Rafael firm called Cal-Pacific Distributing Co. on Lisbon Street (Post Office Box 2641, San Rafael) claims it has the perfect answer to your barbecue problems.

Smith Leaf

Cal-Pacific distributes a new barbecue starter called Fire-Stix, described as the safest, most dependable and trouble-free method yet devised. For a hibachi barbecue, place two Sire-Stix (each smaller than a matchbook) atop the charcoal and light them. For a 20-inch barbecue, use four Fire-Stix. The coals are ready for cooking in less than 25 minutes.

Salesmen guarantee that Fire-Stix is non-poisonous and can be eaten without ill effect. They are non-explosive, burn without sparks, contain no harmful chemicals, and resist deterioration. They are sold in supermarkets and hardware stores.

MIX 'N MATCH, a women's dress shop at Novato Fair Shopping Center, will be leaving Novato after 18 years.

Owner Leon Siegel of San Rafael closed his Vacaville store and is having a close-out sale at his Novato shop near the Safeway store. However, he will continue to operate his Mix 'N Match store at 1208 Fourth Street in San Rafael and a warehouse at Northgate Industrial Park.

Mrs. Alice Worrell of Novato, manager of the Novato shop, helped open the store almost 18 years ago at the original location on Grant Avenue.

DAVID JACOBSON, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Jacobson of San Rafael, has been awarded a $1,500 seminary graduate scholarship by Lutheran Brotherhood, Minneapolis-based fraternal insurance society. Jacobson is a 1972 graduate of Concordia Seminary, St. Louis.

FIVE MARIN residents participated in a tax planning forum Tuesday evening at television channel 7, KGO, by the San Francisco Chapter of the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences.

Moderator was Charles J. Root Jr. of San Rafael, a financial planning consultant for The Bankers Life. Panelists were George Schrohe of Kentfield, president of Management Design; Gustav Scherer of Mill Valley, account executive with Thomson & McKinnon Auchincloss Inc.; San Rafael attorney P. Roy Vallarino, and Edward Ghirardo of San Rafael, certified public accountant.

DONALD M. F. PATTERSON Jr. of Inverness has joined Grubb & Ellis Co. at its Greenbrae office. Patterson was with Reynolds Real Estate in Terra Linda for the past year and was in the field of marketing and electronics before that.

BURRELL URBAN WEBER of San Rafael completed a seminar at The Hartford Advancement Center at Hartford, Conn. He was one of 16 employees selected to participate in the seminar, which provided information on current industry trends and job-related skills.

MAXINE CONKLIN of Corte Madera has been named color coordinator and wallcovering consultant at Robert Kunst Paint Center at 4184 Redwood Highway, San Rafael.

Mrs. Conklin was formerly with Gerald's Paint and Wallpaper in Los Angeles and more recently with Dunn-Edwards in Daly City. She will be at the Kunst paint center five days a week and on Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. and will be available by appointment to go to a customer's home to assist with decorating or color problems.

JOE H. STEWART Jr. of Corte Madera has been accepted for membership in the Real Estate Certificate Institute Division of the California Real Estate Association.

Donald A. Beacock, president of the Marin County Board of Realtors, said membership is based on completion of formal courses of study at colleges and universities to increase knowledge in real estate and meeting experience requirements.

Ladd, Northern In Gas Hunt Agreement

DENVER (BW) — Ladd Petroleum Corp. has entered into an agreement with Northern Natural Gas Co. to conduct a four-year hunt for natural gas reserves.

The exploratory drilling program will be centered on deeper, less extensively explored gas provinces of the Delaware and Anadarko basins in Texas and Oklahoma.

A Rally On Market In Late Trade

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market rallied late today but still closed lower or mixed in moderately active trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Prices were lower in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange.

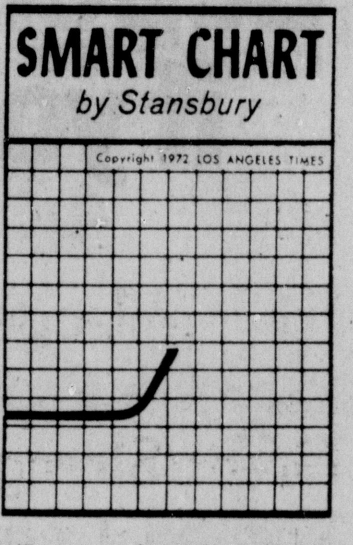
Analysts noted some stock prices had reached a depressed level and investors might have gone bargain hunting late in the session.

There still is considerable concern in the market over inflation and the international monetary situation.

In addition the British pound has weakened, causing a slide in the dollar on European markets. Analysts said this has led to speculation the Smithsonian agreement may lose its effectiveness, thus touching off another international monetary crisis.

Air Traffic Gains

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Air Transport Association reports passenger traffic flown by the U.S. scheduled airlines on both domestic and international routes in January was up 11.5 per cent over January, 1971. Traffic on the domestic trunk airlines increased 10.4 per cent in the 1972 month.



"Last month we introduced long-term financing for our retail meat customers."

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Random Selection, Random Results

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I randomly bought shares of International Industries (NYSE), American Pacesetter (P.C.E.) and Canada Southern Petroleum (P.C.E.). Could you give me any current information on these stocks? — P.K.

A. American Pacesetter, a Westcoast real estate developer, reported a six cent-a-share loss on sales of $19 million for 1971. With shares selling below $1, there is little to be gained from selling, unless you wish to establish a tax loss. Canada Southern is well worth holding on the basis of its exposure in the Arctic oil play.

International Industries appears to be working through its financial difficulties. Company has omitted paying six consecutive dividends on the Series A cumulative preferred shares, allowing shareholders to elect three members to the board to serve until dividends are paid up.

A plan to pay off these dividend arrearages has been approved by directors. The plan calls for payment of about 400,000 common shares for the $2.7 million owed.

In the 1971 fiscal year ended August, a $5.32 a share deficit was reported. First half sales through February gained 41 per cent to $40 million and the deficit was held to 6 cents a share. Several loss and marginal operations have been disposed of and according to management, operations are turning the corner.

In the future, may I suggest that you determine your investment needs and select stocks that fit your goals.

ABAG Amendments Shelved Till '73

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Pending amendments to legislation which would force all cities and counties in the nine-county Bay Area to belong to the Association of Bay Area Governments will be shelved until next year, their author said yesterday.

Assemblyman John T. Knox, D-Richmond, agreed to introduce the ABAG-sponsored amendments to give them widespread circulation, but has not committed himself to accept all of them in a 1973 bill he is planning.

Knox's staff said he will hold Bay Area hearings this fall on the amendments to get public reaction to them. The amendments are being drafted to his AB 220, a bill previously limited to minor amendments of the regional planning law.

The amendments would make ABAG itself a regional planning district if approved by two-thirds of the city council's county boards of supervisors in the region. Once formed, membership would be mandatory.

Cities and counties would be required to conform to ABAG's regional plans, which now are only advisory.

No Boost In Petaluma Buses

East Petaluma commuters have been told that no improvement is planned in bus service for the area by the Golden Gate Bridge District.

Jerome Kuykendall, district transportation developer, told the Petaluma Valley Homeowners Association Tuesday night he foresaw no additional buses to upgrade service in the area.

Association publicity chairman Cheryl Heringer said that although 20 new buses will be available in August there is no guarantee that any could be used to bolster Petaluma service.

Association members said they would continue to press for improvements and complained of parking problems since no neighborhood pickups are made.

Senate Acts On Agency Vote Plan

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Long-stalled legislation to allow county supervisors on the Bay Conservation and Development Commission to designate alternates to vote in their place has cleared the Senate Local Government Committee.

The bill, SB 181 by Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, was asked by the Commission because supervisors often miss meetings and jeopardize its ability to muster a quorum. Supervisors originally had the power to appoint citizens as alternate commissioners, but lost this power in 1969 under an amendment by former Sen. John F. McCarthy, R-San Rafael.

McCarthy's amendment limited alternates to fellow supervisors, which proved too restrictive, according to the commission.

Both the Sierra Club and the committee's chairman, Milton Marks, R-San Francisco, had objected that citizen alternates would not be as responsive to the public as elected officials.

Marks voted for it after getting Behr's agreement to an amendment limiting alternates to "public officials." It was an amendment with virtually no effect, Behr said, "so I accepted it gleefully."

Behr said the amendment still would allow supervisors to appoint a citizen as commission alternates just so long as the citizen held any appointed office. A member of the county planning commission, for example, could be an alternate under the amendment, the senator said.

The bill went to the upper house floor.

Petaluman Is Winner Of Best In Show Honors

Sculptor William Jaqwith Evans of Petaluma has won best in show honors at the artrium art show which opens at 7:30 p.m. today in Doyle Hall at Santa Rosa Junior College.

Other Marin and Southern Sonoma art winners include Glen Himburg of Mill Valley, first and second place in jewelery, and Barbara Woldemar of Corte Madera, first place textiles.

The art show will continue through Sunday. Other events will include folk dancing, puppet shows, performances by the Santa Rosa Ballet Company, Santa Rosa Players' Childrens Theatre, Sonoma County Concert Band, Joseph Fiala Woodwind Ensemble and Baroque Sinfonia.

Two-Wheelers May Outnumber Marin's Autos

The four-wheeled automobile,' the main source of transportation in Marin County, is facing serious competition from the two-wheeled bicycle.

In fact, the two-wheeler may have passed up the four-wheeler in the actual number of vehicles in the county, although no accurate bicycle count is available.

Marin's car registration for 1971 totaled 112,538 automobiles and 12,861 trucks, for a total of 125,399. Informal estimates place Marin's cycling population at three-fourths of the county's total of 207,000, or about 155,000 perons.

As recently as 1968, youth in Marin were quoted as saying high school students "wouldn't be caught dead riding a bicycle to school."

FAD CATCHES ON

Even as such assertions were being made, the bicycle fad had caught on and was engulfing the population.

In 1965, only a half dozen bicycle shops were listed in the Marin County telephone directory. This rose to eight shops in 1969, 11 in 1971 and 20 shops listed in this year's directory.

The lowly two-wheeler, shunned like the plague a few years ago, is now a beloved companion for all ages from the toddler to grandma.

Some bike enthusiasts contend that the cycling fad has already peaked and is on the way down, but most observers feel that bicycling is still the rage and is here to stay.

At least, that is the assumption on which the Marin County Parks and Recreation Department, with the cooperation of various cities and other governing agencies, is continuing to improve what is still only a sketchy county bicycle path system.

BIKE PATH SYSTEM

A countywide bike path system does exist, with 215 miles of bicycle paths outline on the map. However, the bulk of these "bike paths" represent existing streets and highways that are mainly for automobile use. Only about 15 or 20 miles are signed bicycle routes that provide relatively safe riding.

Pierre W. Joske, county parks and recreation director, and Don L. Rolph, county park planner, gave this report on the current status of bicycle paths.

Cyclists can ride from San Francisco over the Golden Gate Bridge and get off at the special bicycle offramp built by the Golden Gate Bridge District onto Conzelman Road, the military road in Fort Baker. This leads through Fort Baker into signed city streets in Sausalito. From about Gate 4, a city bicycle path heads north to the Sausalito Bait Shop area, where the county path connects Sausalito with Dolan's Corner in Mill Valley.

The cyclist must then ride alongside city and county streets to continue north into Corte Madera over Corte Madera Grade or east over Alto interchange and onto Tiburon Boulevard. One of the best bike paths in the county starts from Blackie's Pasture near Trestle Glen and continues into downtown Tiburon with a first-class black topping riding lane.

There is no short, easy ride from Mill Valley into Corte Madera. The cyclist must either take the steep old county highway (Corte Madera Grade) or make the Paradise Drive loop and come out at Corte Madera Wye.

BACK STREETS

From Corte Madera northward, the cyclists use existing back streets of Larkspur, Kentfield, San Anselmo and San Rafael. At San Rafael, the bike rider may take the San Pedro Road loop around China Camp and come out at the Civic Center or head directly over Puerto Suello Hill into Terra Linda.

At Marinwood, the cyclist runs into a major north-south

Ten Interesting Outings Offer Variety To Marin Bicycle Fans

Experienced cyclists recommend the less-traveled rural roads for family bicycle rides. Here are some localized bicycle trails recommended by the Mill Valley Cyclery:

1. Bear Valley Trail — Ten mile-round trip. Excellent family ride. Hikers and bikersonly. No food or drink available. Breathtaking view at ocean end. Leave car at Point Reyes Park headquarters near Olema. Free trail maps.

2. Nicasio Loop — About 20 miles, mostly level, light traffic. Be sure to go clockwise (Nicasio to San Geronimo to Taylor State Park, Tocaloma to Platform Bridge Road to reservoir to Nicasio) to take advantage of prevailing winds. To avoid heavy traffic, ride inside state park from park entrance to swimming hole.

3. Paradise Drive Loop. — About 20 miles, hilly. Begin at the Strawberry Shopping Center, south on frontage road parallel to Highway 101. Left on Seminary Drive, follow lagoon to Strawberry Drive. Follow this to Tiburon Boulevard. Right one block to traffic light. Turn right, ride on frontage road (Greenwood Road) until it joins Tiburon Boulevard again near Trestle Glen. Stay on Tiburon Boulevard. (Walk bikes uphill if traffic is heavy — caution here!)

Either ride straight into Tiburon or turn right on San Rafael Avenue. Either stay on San Rafael Avenue or stronger riders turn right on West Shore Road and up steep hill to Belvedere Road into Tiburon. From Tiburon stay on Paradise Drive to Paradise Beach County Park (restrooms, picnic facilities, fishing and swimming). On to the firehouse at Trestle Glen Boulevard.

4. Stinson Beach-Bolinas — About seven miles, very flat. Heavy weekend traffic. Passes Audubon Canyon Ranch bird sanctuary.

5. Cascade Canyon Loop — About seven miles. Begin hilly ride at Mill Valley Cyclery. North on Miller Avenue to center of town. Left on Throckmorton to Old Mill Park. Right on Cascade after bridge. Stay on this all the way for slow, gradual climb to end of paved road. Right on Lovell to stop sign. Right on Elma, left on Throckmorton past stop sign. Right on Ethel to Montford, then left to Mill Valley Cyclery.

6. China Camp Loop — Ten to 12 miles, flat to rolling hard surfaced road. Nice scenery, little traffic, excellent family ride. McNear Beach Park enroute offers swimming and picnic facilities. Begin at Marin County Civic Center and ride east on North San Pedro Road. Circular route returns to Civic Center.

7. Angel Island — Several miles of hard surfaced roads. Hilly, no cars. Picnic area. Spectacular views of San Francisco and bay. Ferry leaves Tiburon at Windjammer restaurant. Call Angel Island State Park Ferry for information.

8. Ross To Fairfax— Six mile-round trip. Flat, safe, excellent family ride. At Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross, turn on Lagunitas Road one block and leave car near school. Cycle on Shady Lane to Bolinas Road and follow the bike route signs. Route ends near Marin Town and Country Club in Fairfax, open to the public for swimming, picnicking, barbecue, tennis etc.

9. Tennessee Valley Road — Three to four mile round trip. Excellent family trip. Hard surface rolling road. Little traffic, nice scenery. Start at Peace Lutheran Church parking lot off Shoreline Highway.

10. Sausalito-San Francisco via Ferry and return via Golden Gate Bridge — Free auto parking at Golden Gate parking lot off Bridgeway on Harbor Drive. Bike to ferry landing in downtown Sausalito (Anchor Street). After debarking at San Francisco Ferry Building, follow map for return to Sausalito over Golden Gate Bridge.

BREEZING ALONG — Mr. and Mrs. Donald Loomis and son John of Belveron Gardens are typical of the thousands of families that are discovering the back roads and trails of Marin via the two-wheeler.

County Bike Paths Growing For Riders

bottleneck. There is no route along Highway 101 at that point, and the cyclist must detour along Lucas Valley Road to Nicasio Road, up Petaluma-Point Reyes Road and into Petaluma.

From Petaluma-Point Reyes Road, a cyclist can double back into Novato via Novato Boulevard, but Highway 101 from Novato to Sonoma County is dangerous for bicycles.

PROJECTS UNDER WAY

Here are some of the current projects underway to make cycling safer and more enjoyable:

1. Novato to Stafford Lake. Plans for a bike path (blacktop six to eight feet wide) two and one-half miles long, from Sutro Avenue to Stafford Lake County Park, are out to bid and should be completed this summer.

2. Corte Madera Creek. Plans are also out to bid on a mile and a quarter path along the creek bank from Bon Air Bridge to College Avenue in Kentfield.

3. At Fort Baker, the Army has paved Conzelman Road (formerly dirt road), to provide a smooth connector between Golden Gate Bridge and Sausalito.

Possible bicycle projects in the future include:

1. A bike path from Lomita Drive at Alto to Casa Buena Drive in Corte Madera, alongside Highway 101. This would provide a shortcut for those who now push their way up Corte Madera grade or take the circuitious Tiburon Boulevard-Trestle Glen-Paradise Drive route.

2. College Avenue to Ross Commons — through College of Marin grounds, along the creek to Ross.

3. A bike path along Highway 101 from Miller Creek Road in Marinwood to Nave Drive in Ignacio. This would be unnecessary if Las Gallinas Avenue in Marinwood is extended northward to tie into Alameda del Prado.

4. A cooperative venture with Marin Municipal Water District for a 22-mile route from the Marin Civic Center to Point Reyes Seashore headquarters. Such a path would follow Freitas Parkway in Terra Linda over the hill to Sleepy Hollow, Butterfield Road to Van Winkle Drive, then follow the water district pipelines to Smith Saddle tanks and over the old narrow gauge railroad right-of-way to White's Hill. An overpass at White's Hill would take the cyclist to Meadow Drive in Woodacre, Forest Knolls, and a separated path alongside Sir Francis Drake Boulevard to Lagunitas, where the path would pick up the old railroad right-of-way to Taylor Park and Tocaloma, then follow the creek to Bear Valley Road.

Any of these proposals, where county time or expense is involved, would require approval from the Marin County Board of Supervisors.

Meanwhile, path, no path or partial path, Marin's bike population is on the move, pedaling and pushing out in all directions in search of fresh air, sunshine, and elbow room.

Driving At High Altitude

A sudden splitting headache, shortness of breath, rapidly rising pulse, and repeated yawns are all symptoms that tell a driver that high altitudes don't agree with him.

Should you become affected in mountain country, points out the National Automobile Club, you would be wise to remember that such symptoms impair driving ability and must be fought with rest.

At the first safe spot, park your car, lock the doors, open two or more windows, and get 30 minutes or longer of sleep. When you resume driving, leave some windows open and play the radio, sing, or provide some other distraction. And do keep your eyes moving.

Some Tips On Running Your Boat

At first glance, steering a boat seems to require exactly the same strategy and technique as does steering an automobile. But how does it differ?

Trial-and-error runs by the automobile driver who recently joined the ranks of boating novices, according to the Automobile Club, reveal that a boat's back end responds first to a turn of the steering wheel. And exactly the opposite holds true for the automobile.

On your first runs and all the others to follow, remember the aforementioned important point. When you want to take your boat out, push the boat away from the pier or leave the pier at a slight angle until clear. That way you can save that pier and your boat from bearing telltale scars of your unwitting misdeeds.

Six Bay Area Plants Among Leaders in Recycling Glass

Six Bay Area plants accounted for 14 million of the more than 211 million used glass containers that were reclaimed and recycled into new bottles and jars during the first three months of 1972, it is reported by the Glass Container Manufacturers Institute, which has its western headquarters in Oakland.

This compares with 96 million bottles and jars collected by the public in the January-March quarter of 1971. The Institute also reported that more than 1 billion bottles have been recycled into new glass containers and other secondary products since the reclamation program began about two years ago.

Nearly 100 glass container plants of GCMI member companies in 25 states have paid more than $5 million to the public for over 250,000 tons of refuse converted into useful products, the report said.

"This unprecedented volume of recycling is the result of enthusiastic public response arising from growing concern with environment problems," Richard L. Cheney, president of GCMI, said.

Boy and Girl Scout troops, Jaycees, 4-H Clubs and conservation groups have been among the most active of the many citizen organizations participating in the bottle roundup.

Most of the reclaimed bottles and jars are crushed into cullet and melted in glass furnaces to make new glass containers. Others have been recycled on an experimental basis into such potentially useful products as interior wall panels, terrazzo tile flooring, glass wool insulation, bricks and glasphalt, a new blacktop paving material

Cheney emphasized that the glass container industry conceived the present bottle reclamation program as "an important step — but only a step — toward our long-range goal, which must be the recovery of recyclable wastes on a mechanized basis."

GCMI member companies in the Bay Area are Brockway Glass Co., Oakland; Owens-Illinois with plants in Oakland and Tracy; Glass Container Corp., with plants in Antioch and Hayward, and Anchor Hocking Corp., San Leandro.

SUMMER BARBECUE GUIDE

OUTDOOR GOURMET TREAT — Fresh trout wrapped in bacon and brushed with a sauce of white wine and butter is an unusual barbecue specialty for the warm summer days ahead. Sprinkle the trout with chopped almonds and Parmesan cheese just before serving. Spreading the charcoals about an inch apart after the fire is going will prevent flame-ups while grilling.

It's Time To Move Kitchen Outdoors

Let's eat out — on the patio. Summery weather, even if the calendar says spring, calls for the family and friends to move outside for meals.

Whether you do an elaborate garden barbecue to entertain the friends and neighbors or a more paper-plate style of eating out, the fun is the same.

First, dust off the barbecue, wipe the grill clean if the cat hasn't already given it a good going-over, and get out the barbecue mitt and long fork, spoon and spatula, or tongs.

Charcoal briquets should be in good supply, and an electric charcoal starter will keep the chef from flaring up before the barbecue does. Otherwise it's matches, paper and fire-starting fluid, which must be handled very cautiously to avoid dangerous burns.

It's a good idea, too, to keep a sprinkling can of water handy to douse flame-ups or sparks. Expert barbecuers say the secret of a good barbecue fire is to use charcoal sparingly, start the fire a good 20 minutes ahead of cooking time and to move the briquets about an inch apart once they are ignited to prevent big flames. Not too much fire is needed to barbecue for small numbers of people.

What to cook? Everybody does the hotdog or hamburger, beans and salad dinner at least several times a summer, so you know it's still popular. Especially with the children.

What else? Lamb, beef or pork roasts are excellent if you have a rotisserie and they don't take much tending. They do take long cooking, however.

You can do a rotisserie style beef rib eye (Delmonico) roast in 1½ to 2½ hours, depending on how done you like it and the size of the roast. Insert the rotisserie rod lengthwise into the center of the roast, as well balanced as possible. Then tighten the spit forks.

Insert a meat thermometer so that it goes through the thickest part of the roast but does not touch the metal rod. Cook at moderate temperature — over ash-covered coals — to desired doneness. The thermometer will register 140 degrees for rare; 160 degrees for medium, and 170 degrees for well-done meat. A four to six pound roast cooks well this way.

Broiled Porterhouse beef steaks are good done on the grill without the rotisserie. Order them cut one to two inches thick. Salt and pepper them and place them on the grill, which is about three inches from the heat.

When one side is browned, turn carefully so juices don't escape and finish cooking the second side. Season and serve right away. Two-inch cuts take about 30 minutes for rare and 40 minutes total for medium. One-inch cuts take only about 15 to 20 minutes all told for rare, and 25 minutes for medium.

There's a tangy salad that goes well with this —tossed in a large bowl.

Combine four cups of torn iceberg lettuce, three cups torn fresh spinach, an eight and one half ounce can of diagonal cut green beans, drained; an 11 ounce can of mandarin oranges, drained; one small onion sliced into thin separated rings. Toss lightly and add bottled sweet-and-sour salad dressing just before serving.

Maybe you prefer fresh trout on the grill and are lucky enough to have some. Baste fish with a wine and butter sauce and it will be even better.

First, wash and dry trout; season with salt and pepper. Wrap a partly-cooked slice of bacon around each fish. Place on grill over hot coals. Brush with a mixture of four tablespoons butter melted and one cup of dry sauterne or catawba wine (for four fish). Repeat about three times during the cooking time — about 15 minutes depending on the hotness of the fire. Turn fish once during this time, again basting. When trout is almost done, sprinkle on a small amount of grated Parmesan cheese and chopped almonds. Leave on the grill until the cheese melts.

Maybe you'd rather try barbecued kabobs made with lunch meat, good for either lunch or patio supper. They're skewered and cooked over the coals.

To serve six, take two cans (12 ounces each) of luncheon meat and cut in halves lengthwise, then cut each piece into six cubes. Gather green pepper squares, small boiled onions, cherry tomatoes and whole mushrooms and thread a combination of ingredients on skewers.

Combine eight ounce can jellied cranberry sauce, juice of one lemon, one-fourth cup melted butter and one-quarter teaspoon grated lemon peel. Put one tablespoon minced onion into one tablespoon water to soften. Then add to above glaze mixture.

Brush over kabobs, and broil them over gray coals for 10 minutes on each side, brushing with the glaze every few minutes. Serve on a toasted hero loaf, closing split bun on the skewered food and drawing out the skewer.

Pre-Season Checkups Avert Travel Hitches

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — While you're checking over the gear you'll use when you get to your favorite recreation spot this season, don't forget to check out the gear that has to get you there, reminds the Tire Industry Safety Council.

"Your camper and trailer tires have probably been stored as long as your recreation equipment," says Council chairman Ross R. Ormsby, "and a flat could spoil the fun as easily as a leaky boat."

When you inspect your recreational vehicle tires if the tread groove depth is 1/16 inch or less in two or more adjacent grooves they should be replaced.

This is the legal minimum in many states, and now is a good time to estimate if your remaining tread groove depth will last you through the season before it reaches the minimum safe level of 1/16.

Always carry a spare tire and wheel and include it in your inspection, insuring it is also properly inflated and you have the necessary tools for changing. Acquiring a special size tire may not be possible if you travel to remote areas.

When you load up, insure the weight is equalized side to side and properly distributed fore and aft. When properly inflated this will promote even tread wear.

Normally you'll want tires capable of higher inflation pressures that standard passenger car tires to handle the heavier loads of these recreation vehicles.

Check your dealer or owner's manual for size and inflation recommendations.

Remember, when a heavy trailer is being towed it can possibly reduce steering ability of the towing vehicle, requiring extra caution on the part of the driver.

The rear tires on the towing vehicle act as a fulcrum, or center of total pulled weight distribution. The normal load on the front tires is lightened with resulting decrease in deflection and contact area.

Inspect your tires regularly for foreign matter imbedded in the tread which could penetrate the tread and cause flats or other costly damage, especially if you run on rough roads.

And watch for overheating in smaller trailer tires. They can turn up to 80 per cent more revolutions per mile than those on your towing vehicle.

The Tire Industry Safety Council offers free of charge a Recreational Vehicle Consumer Tire Guide containing information on the care and maintenance of recreational vehicle tires, and proper load and inflation tables. The guide may be obtained by writing to "Recreation," Box 726, New York, N.Y. 10010.

After mulling over possible attractions to visit on your next motoring trip, you would gain much from including one of historical interest.

Such an attraction, according to the National Automobile Club, is "El Alisal" or "The Sycamore," an unusual house built in northeastern Los Angeles by an unusual man.

In 5 minutes
it had better turn into a station wagon.

When something tells you to break camp fast, the Volkswagen Campmobile is an easy camp to break.

The tent folds up in four minutes and the roof clamps shut in 10 seconds. Which leaves you 50 seconds to tidy up inside. Before the tide comes in outside.

Time enough to open all the curtains. Put the milk in the icebox. Rinse your coffee cup in the sink. Make the dining room table disappear. Turn the full-length double bed into a seat.

And that's it.

You're ready to head for higher ground in a VW-type station wagon with all the VW-type virtues:

An air-cooled engine that presses down on the rear wheels, giving you extra traction in snow. And sand. (We got you into this mess. And we'll get you out of it.)

Gas economy. Up to 23 miles on a gallon of regular.

So if you go home empty-handed in a Campmobile, you're really empty.

INDUSTRY DEFIES DROUGHT

Pool Builders Predict Wet Year

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The blue Pacific and its smooth strand of beaches are tough competition, but the swimming pool industry has done more than just keep its head above water.

If anything, the early appearance of summer weather in the Golden State has assured some 500 Southern California pool construction firms of the "wettest" year ever.

Time and technology — and a healthy new respect for creativity in concrete — have done wonders for this leisure industry, especially in Southern California, the undisputed cradle of the pool world since the 1950s.

Years ago Liberace made quite a splash with his unique piano-shaped pool, and Hollywood's blonde goddess Jayne Mansfield spent a small fortune on a pool contoured like a heart. But those days are past when only celebrities could indulge their hot weather fantasies.

Today the homeowner with a good job, healthy credit and the capacity to shoulder the monthly financial demands of a pool can put a "beach in his backyard" for under $4,500 with a few accessories thrown in.

Put an accent on "few."

Often the load of poolside extras magnify the final cost to more than the pool itself. And by winter the perspiring new owner wonders if a second mortgage can pull him from deep water.

"A lot of people don't realize they're in for $50-$100 monthly payments for the rest of their life," says Ken Bourguignon, a partner in Dotkin Pools in San Fernando Valley.

"Pools aren't cheap, and though I shouldn't say it, they're the worst investment. But if customers want them, I'll build them."

Bourguignon, whose custom firm has one of the busiest schedules, owns a $17,000 pool in which he and wife swim only about six times a year. He figures it costs $500 a dunking.

Pools ordinarily require a month to build — from the first city inspection to the last — but many clients can't wait. Most builders have seen clients so fevered to dive into their own pool "they practically want to drive it from our showroom."

This same fever among the summer trade too often causes customers to gullibly enter into shaky agreements drawn up by aggressive commission salesman.

"People want to believe the builder who is cheapest, and they must convince themselves the salesman is honest. Then, when they get burned it reflects on the entire industry," says a spokesman for Anthony Pools.

Prospective pool owners got a break in March, though. The state legislature passed a law allowing them to break a deal within three days if they're not satisfied.

Jack Butefish, president of the Southern California Swimming Pool Association, concedes builder competition occasionally gets "aggresive and immature" to the point of "bad-mouthing" the opposition.

"It's a consumer era now and there's all sorts of new rules. The offending builders have never had to play the new way," he said.

"Swim now, pay later — much later," capsulizes the pool business in 1972, a time when banks and savings and loan firms are jockeying to attract the "discretionary dollar." Interest rates have been whittled, the economy is flexing and magazine ads for home improvements are blooming like wildflowers.

Pool loans don't have to be paid out for 10 years, and the first payment is not due for 90 days.

This year some 12,000 Californians will take the plunge. Already pooldom's Big Ten — including Anthony's, Blue Haven and Sunset Pools — have recorded a 64 per cent increase in first quarter orders over 1971. Some 2,900 permits have been issued in Southern California so far compared to 1,762 last year at this time.

When the searing Santa Ana winds spill into Southern California, it's clear why the San Fernando Valley leads the nation in pools built. In Orange County the same brisk activity is due to new home building.

The valley alone has 53,000 pools. Yet Palm Springs, with its wealthy year-round population, has perhaps the highest per capita number of pools in the U.S. — one home in five is equipped.

When Buster Crabbe was still swimming laps, and Dorothy Lamour had a sarong, pools were rectangular because old-fashioned concrete forms had to be poured.

But gunnite, a concrete mixture sprayed from airguns, revolutionized the industry in the early 1950s and pool geometry really took shape — tear-shaped, kidney, oval, round. The technique also reduced pool costs for white collar salaries. Today there are far more than 250,000 pools in California and the majority are quickly constructed with gunnite.

One of the more distinctive in Southern California perches on a hillside terrace in Encino overlooking San Fernando Valley. Owned by Irv Robbins, owner of the Baskin-Robbins Ice Cream franchise, the pool is distinctively shaped like a cone.

"If I had a larger property," Robbins tells visitors, "I'd have had a double scoop pool." Jetliner crews often point out the pool to passengers as they fly low into Los Angeles.

A young Inglewood foot specialist, Jerome Tirsch, spent $12,000 for a unique foot-shaped pool-the "big toe" contains a smaller, frothy therapy pool.

Southern California's love affair with backyard bathtubs is legend, and at 5,000 feet the Santa Monica Mountains wink with the tiny blue sequins of hundreds of pools.

One hilltop dweller, Lakers basketball star Wilt Chamberlain, recently built a million-dollar home and sank $160,000 into a freeform pool. It winds like a moat into the house.

"You can even swim into the living room for a cocktail," muses Bourgignon, whose valley firm designed the pool.

Not to be outdone, Playboy's Hugh Hefner has taken up in residence in a Tudoar-style mansion in Beverly Hills, spending $250,000 on a vast, boulder-edged pool laced with streams, six waterfalls and goldfish ponds.

There's also a Hefnerian underwater grotto with psychedelic lights, and hi-fi music. "If cost is no object, we can do it," is the motto of the valley outfit that designed the Playboy playground.

And, if you're going to throw a party, be sure to invite HarryClaus in the valley. The popularcomic illustrator rents huge, full-colored murals for the bottom of your pool — his 17-foot nude is a favorite, or there are birthday cake designs or a giant beer labels.

Veteran Outdoorsman Recalls When Back Packs Were Heavier

"Believe me," says William B. (Bill) Evans, veteran climber and backpacker, "backpacking was not regarded as 'pleasent recreation' 60 years ago!"

Evans, a friend of the Mountain House, hiking and camping store in Kentfield, looks with amazement on the new lightweight, compact, quality gear available today for treks in the "Bush." He remembers very different equipment that he had to cope with as a young British engineer doing topographical surveys in British Columbia.

He recalls that crews went "in" for periods of eight or nine months at a time. Once embarked, there would be no contact with the outside world — as he puts it: "no wine or women for temptation and grief!" All equipment needed, plus whatever might be needed for repairs, had to be carried in.

Food and tents were brought in by a pack train of horses or mules. When trails had to be cut; trail-makers brought in axes, saws, wedges, sledges, etc; and when this was so, each stage of packing in had to be done in relays, first food, then individuals with their packs, and sometimes days later, the heavy tents.

Since much of the surveying was through cold rain forest, clothes and rain gear were quite heavy. Mackinaws were worn for shirts; boots were knee-high. Rain pants, "tin pants," were made of paraffined duck cloth. Tarpaulins were of this same waxed duck and very heavy.

Reading and poker were the main diversions, so books and cards were carried in. "Liquor was absolutely taboo. A drink and you went down the trail to boat-head!"

"Sleeping bags were not used in those days, and they were viewed with suspicion. It was alleged you might get too hot in them and then could only open up and be too cold. Blankets were used, usually Hudson Bays. Sheets were not."

Individual packs were made by wrapping your things in one of the heavy waxed tarps, then cinching it up with a leather harness which included shoulder straps. Says Evans: "Another way to carry the pack was to make the ancestor of all modern packs: The old corrugated iron washboard with the pack roped on. Metal eyelets were spaced on the wooden side slots and the pack fastened to the board by lacing through them. We made these pack boards ourselves." Many used trump-lines to the forehead, thus transfering some of the load to the neck. These packs would weigh anything from 70 to 125 pounds. A good squaw with a trump line could do 200 pounds. "But," says Evans, "we weren't good squaws!"

In contrast to the back-packing of the early 1900's, Christie Fairchild of the Mountain House and Evans compared a 20 pound pack in which tent, sleeping bag, foam pad, warm clothes, rain clothes, food, cooking gear, and incidentals, — all light and compact — carry in one simple shoulder pack scientifically designed to carry the weight most comfortably by the bearer.

Today's improved fabrics and equipment make backpacking a pleasure. The experienced hiker can go for weeks in the back country with no heavier load then 35 pounds. Dehydrated foods, light durable metals, compressable down garments and sleepers, strong but light nylon fabrics — all work together to make today's back-packing deluxe the supplier said.

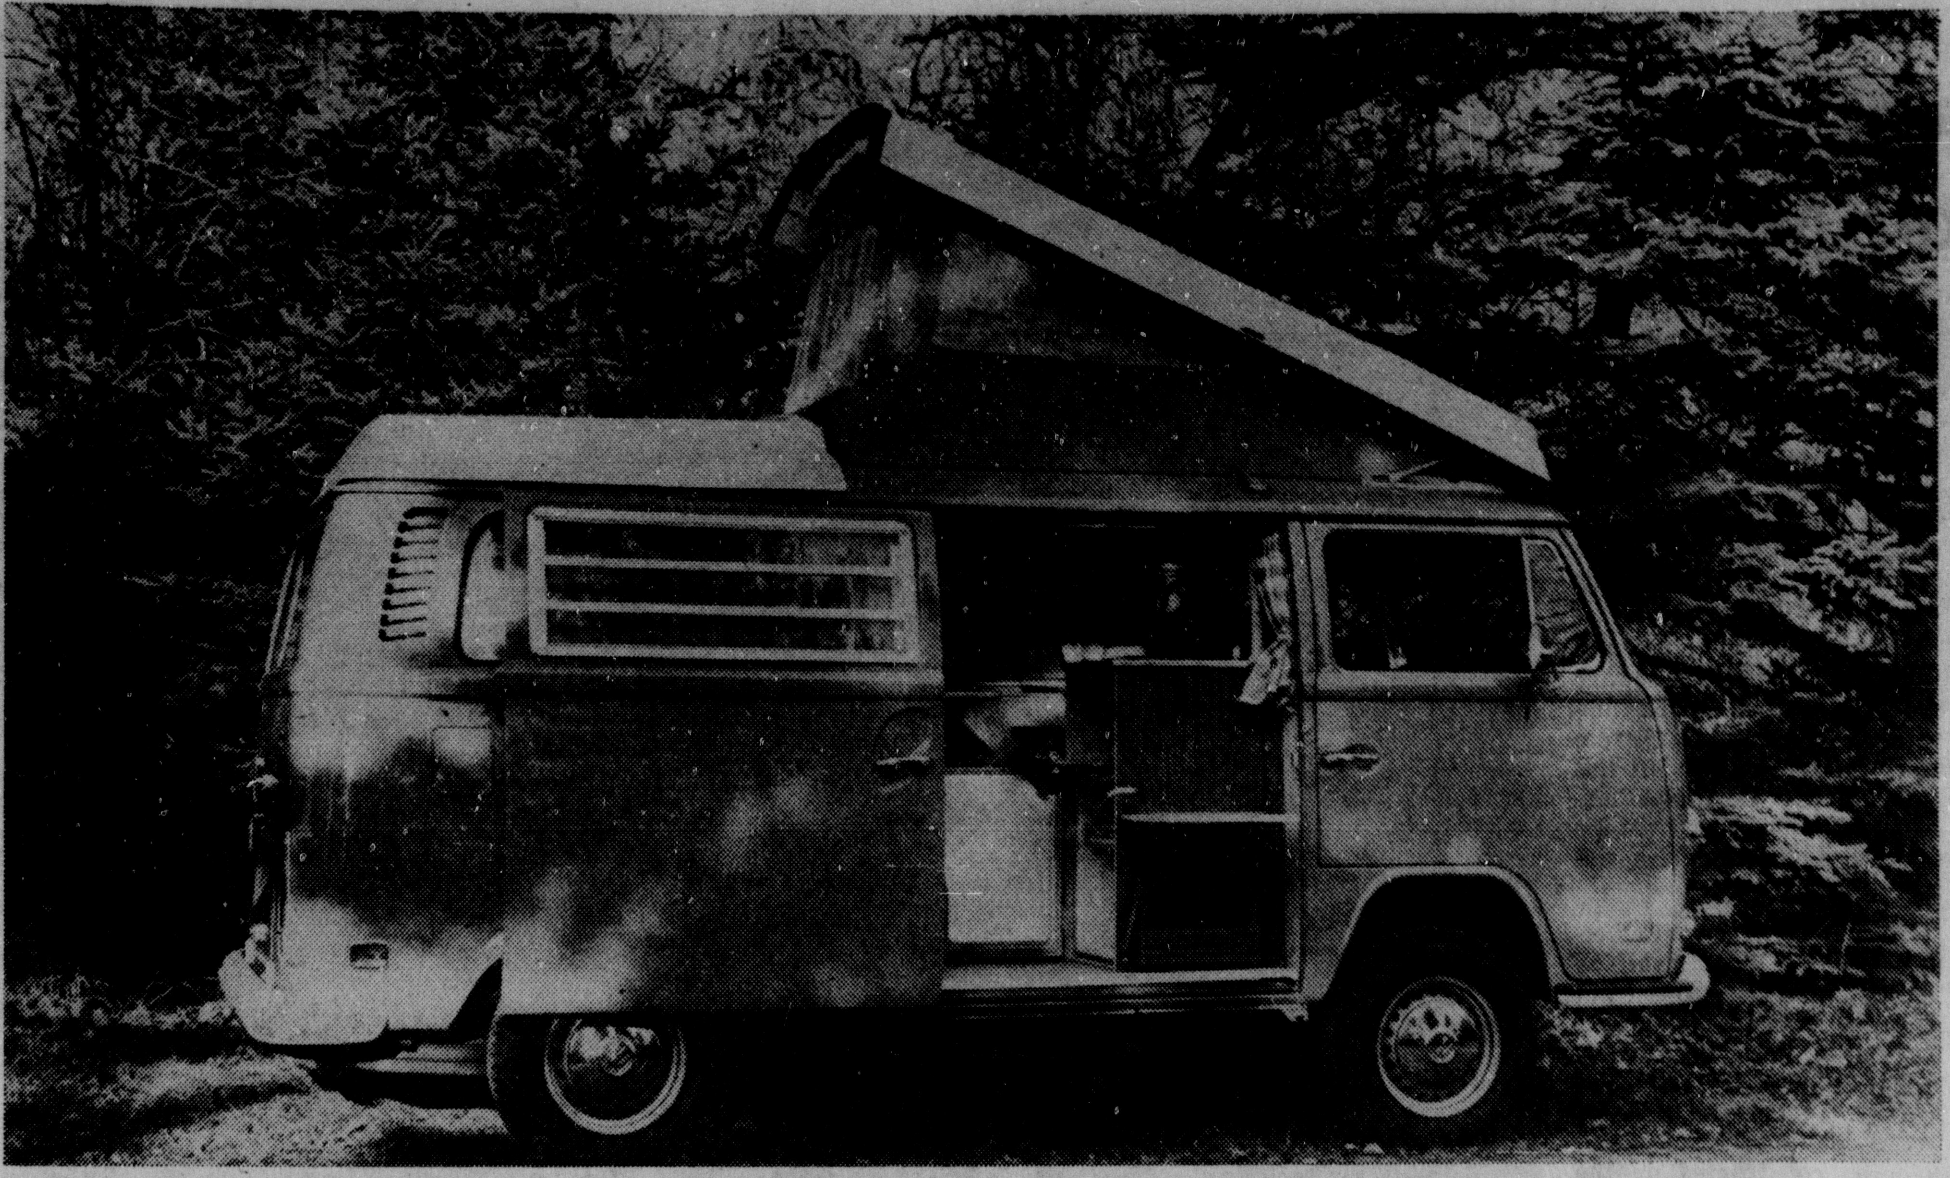
Camp On Wheels Has Charm



VERSATILE CAMPMOBILE — Powered by a new 1700-cc twin-carburetor engine, Volkswagen's 1972 Campmobile rates as one of the most versatile go-anywhere vehicles on the road — serving variously as living room, dinette, kitchen and bedroom while on vacation and as a family auto the rest of the time. Designed to "sleep" two adults and two children, the Campmobile's optional pop-top provides a five-foot-long upper berth for a third child.

Volkswagen's Campmobile goes the vacation hideaway "three better." It not only provides living and sleeping space for a family of four or five, but does it wherever and whenever the owner wants and then promptly switches back to work-a-day use with the turn of its key.

One of the most versatile vehilces on the road, the VW Campmobile's 7.3-inch road clearance and rear-wheel traction enable it to reach spots far off the beaten track — and deliver a sedan-like ride in the bargain with its independent torsion bar suspension. That means that it can turn almost any spot into a secluded hideaway. About all it takes to work its magic is a map leading to the coast, mountains, woods or whatever — and the time to drive there.

Heart of the Campmobile is VW's new 1700-cc twin-carburetor rear engine which delivers nearly 25 percent more power than last year's model. That means faster get-up-and-go under all driving conditions, including improved hill-climbing performance.

Only about 15 inches longer than the familiar VW Beetle, the 1972 Campmobile — built on the same chassis as VW's bus-like Station Wagon — serves variously as living room, dinette, kitchen and bedroom while on vacation and during weekend get-aways. The rest of the time it serves as a family auto — for shopping, driving to the commuter train station and other routine duties.

The vehicle's compact "kitchen" area is equipped with a 1.6-cubic-foot insulated ice-box, 7½-gallon water tank, pump-equipped stainless steel sink which is recessed into the top of the ice-box cabinet and a collapsible utility table. Hinge-mounted to the wall of the ice-box cabinet, the table covers a two-shelf "pantry," swinging up into position to hold a camp stove.

Power for interior lights is drawn from the vehicle's 12-volt battery while power for 110-volt electrical appliances is supplied from the outside through a socket installed in the outer wall of the vehicle itself.

At night the vehicle turns into sleeping quarters for four with a full-width 76-inch long double bed for two adults and smaller berths for two children. An optional "pop-top" which literally raise the Campmobile's roof provides a five-foot-long "upper" for a third child.

The "pop-top" itself is equipped with screening material to shut out insects while a snap-on collapsible screen also is provided for the vehicle's four-foot-wide rear door. All windows are curtain-equipped for inside privacy, the louver-type center windows on each side also equipped with screens.

Optional in addition to the "pop-top" roof is a free-standing tent which can be left behind at a camping site whenever the vehicle is driven off on a short trip. In use, the tent provides a screened-in "living room" or extra bedroom measuring nine feet eight inches by six feet six inches.

Easy-to-clean polyvinyl flooring is used wall-to-wall inside the Campmobile while both interior wall and ceiling paneling is backed by fiber-glass insulating material.

Braking power was increased for 1972 through the addition of larger rear-wheel brake cylinders. Already equipped with a power-assisted braking system for quick, easy stops, the 1972 Campmobile features radial ply tires as standard equipment.

As with all new Volkswagens, the Campmobile is backed by a 24-month or 24,000-mile — which ever comes first — warranty and is delivered with coupons good for free VW diagnosis at 6,000-mile intervals during their first 24,000 miles of operation.

Practice Safety From Start

Starting your car without first taking certain safety precautions means leaving yourself wide open for a traffic accident that can maim or kill you.

Before you turn on the ignition, advises the National Automobile Club, adjust your seat so that you're four to eight inches from the lower rim of your steering wheel. Now check your posture. You should be sitting up straight. And don't forget to snugly fasten your seat belt.

Check traffic to enter it safely and you're on your way.

Some Safe Braking Rules

Consistently jamming even the best of car brakes down and holding them there can burn out your brakes, endanger your life.

Detecting road hazards far ahead of you and making prompt decisions, advises the National Automobile Club, leaves you enough time to stop your car by the proper means of "pumping" your brakes with a series of impulses in diminishing cadence. So stay alert.

Never jam on your brakes. Apply them only as hard as necessary for a safe stop.

Use Car Polish For Protection

Polish your car periodically to avoid traffic film, that discolored surface that convinces the motorist that the car finish is gone.

This film, according to the National Automobile Club, is a combination of oil-laden exhaust fumes and ordinary dirt and dust that is in the atmosphere.

Polishing is a sure preventive.

Crater Lake First

First white man to see Crater Lake in Oregon, according to the National Automobile Club, was prospector John Wesley Hillman in 1853.

Tehachapi Cattle Ranch Slated To Become Huge Resort Mecca

I-J Special Report

TEHACHAPI — Work is well under way on a huge, new development in the Tehachapi Mountains, 110 miles north of Los Angeles. The 26,000-acre project, known as Stallion Springs, will be a mountain-valley recreational community with heavy accent on Western-type amenities, designs and decor.

Stallion Springs' first phase — comprising 1,786 salable lots on 3,680 acres — is largely in the Cummings Valley, about 16 miles west of Tehachapi. The property, which has an average elevation of more than 4,000 feet, is owned by Benguet California, Inc., a subsidiary of Benguet Consolidated, listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

Homesteaded origianlly by settlers in the 1870s, the property was purchased by Benguet California in October, 1969, from Rex Ellsworth, well-known California horsebreeder and race horse owner for $3.4 million in cash. Stallion Springs was used by Ellsworth as a cattle and horse ranch.

The master plan for Stallion Springs was developed by Herman D. Ruth & Associates, well-known city and regional planning consultants of Berkeley. Construction on the first phase began in November 1970.

Among facilities already built on the property is Ranch Headquarters, a 15.5-acre complex of modern buildings. Included are a large rodeo ring with seating for 1,000 persons, barns, corrals, a show ring, blacksmith shop, tack rooms and a gymkhana.

Under construction are a lodge for overnight guests, an 11.4-acre lake and an 18-hole championship golf course. A modern highway leads into Stallion Springs from Tehachapi.

The 30 room lodge on a high hill near Ranch Headquarters is expected to open in April. An additional 25 rooms are planned. Designed by Edward H. Fickett, FAIA Los Angeles architect, the lodge cost more than $1 million for construction and furnishings.

The two-level structure will have a 114-seat dining room and a cocktail lounge with seats for 50, both with panoramic views of the golf course, Ranch Headquarters and other parts of the valley. Contractor on the lodge project is the Tumblin Co. of Bakersfield.

Horse Thief Golf and Country Club — named after nearby Horse Thief Flats, once a mecca for outlaws — will remind golfers that honesty is the best policy on the links. The course is scheduled for completion in October, 1973.

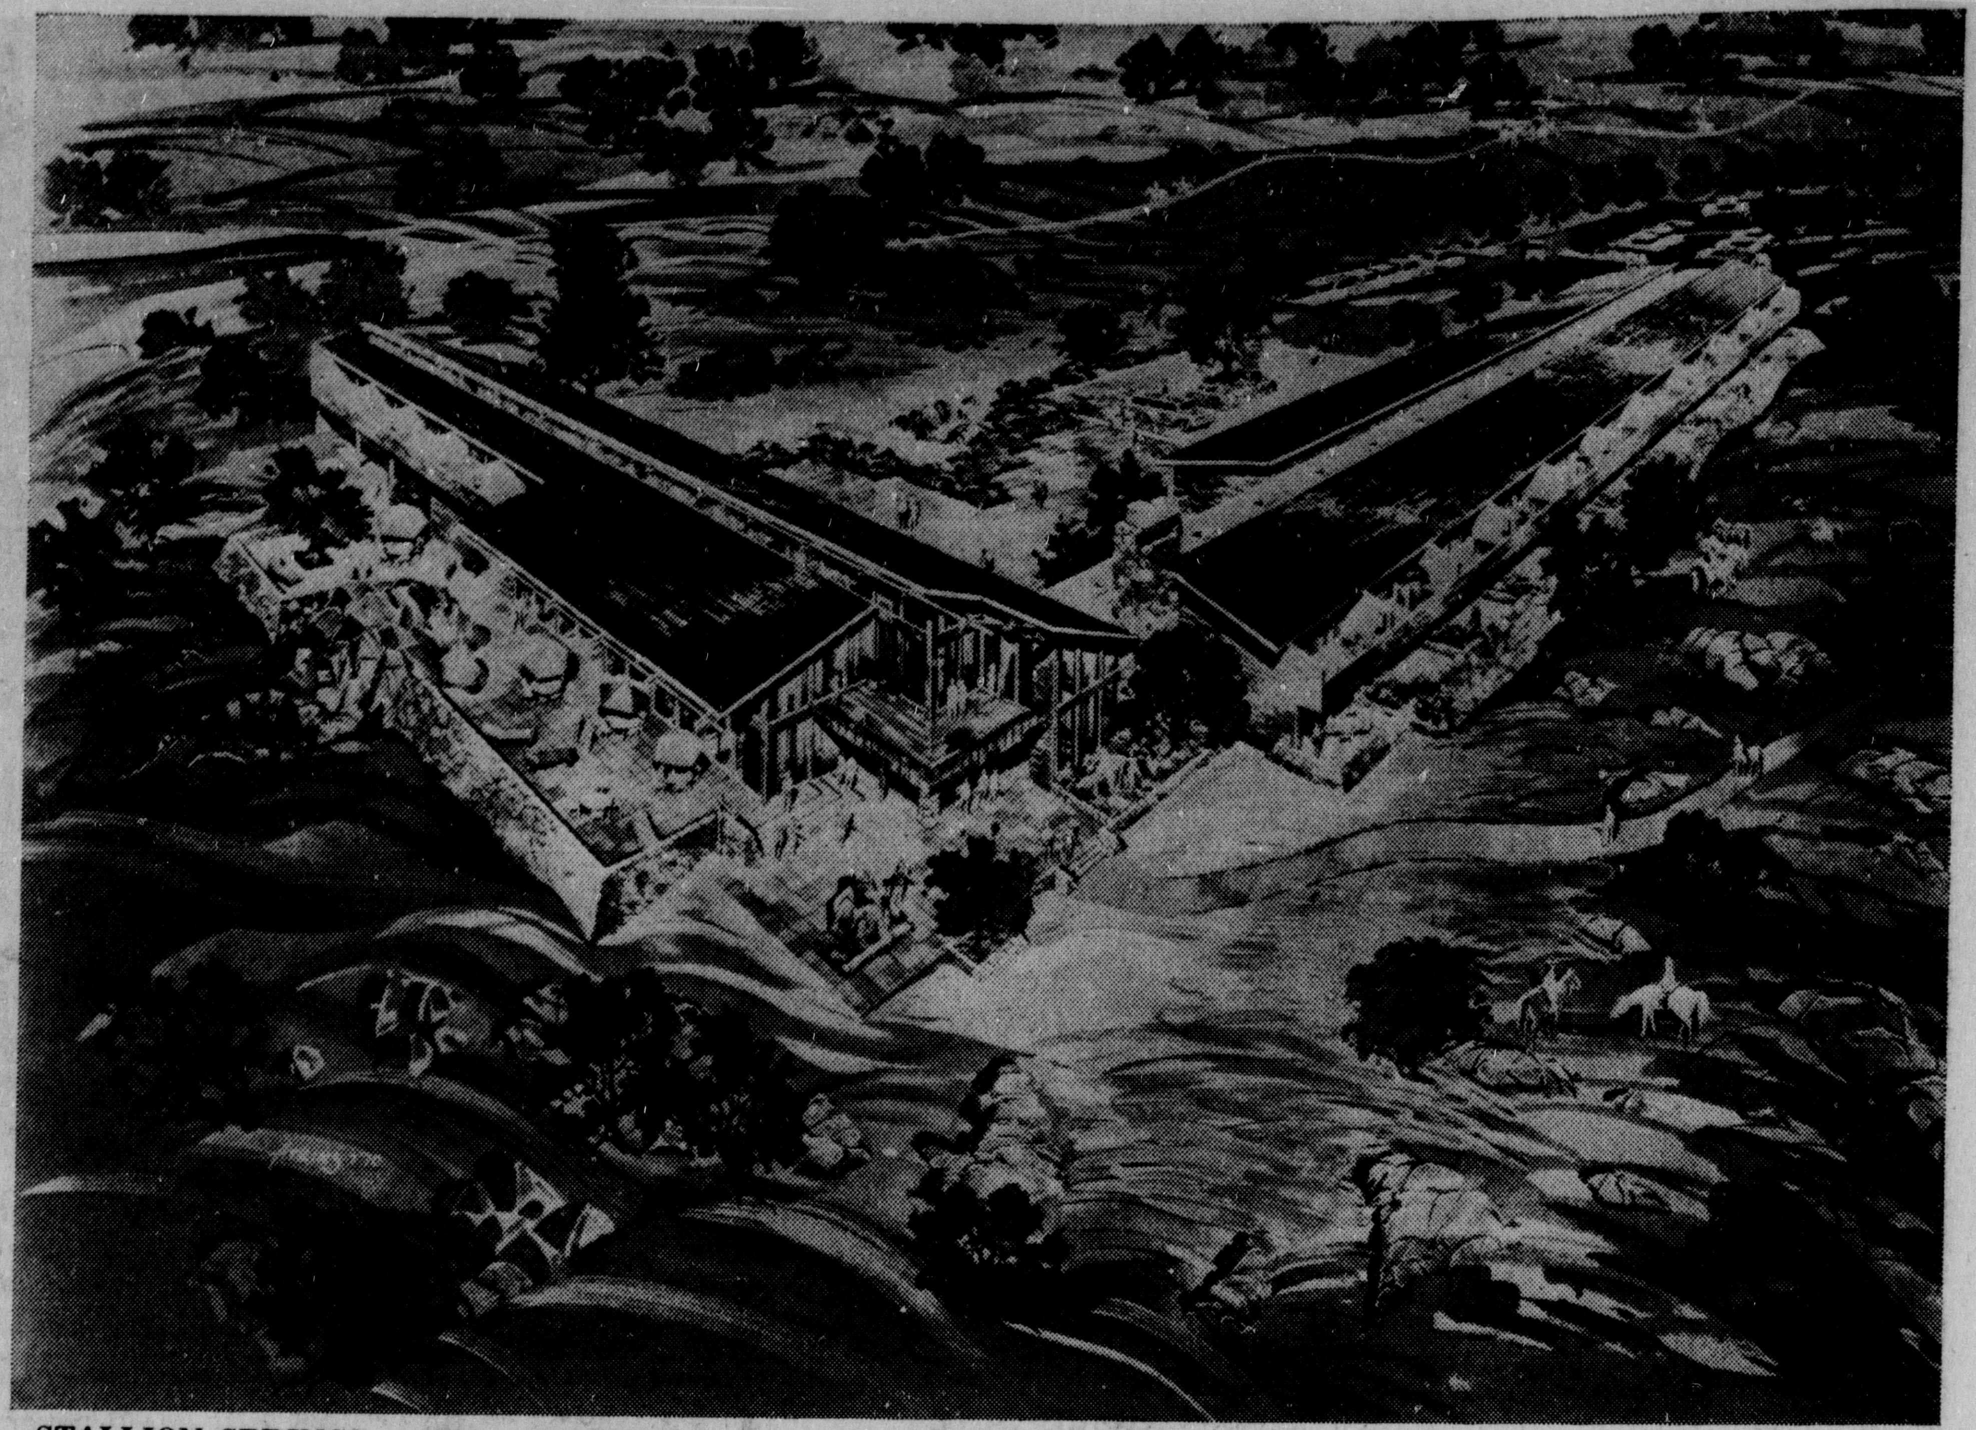
Most of the residential lots in the first phase are zoned for single-family use and range upward from one-third acre to 15 acres, with prices starting at $4,500. A single-family one-third acre lot, fronting on the golf course, averages about $14,220. Just over 100 lots in this phase are zoned for multi-family lots range upward from $20,000.

Construction has begun on a water distribution and sewage collection system for the "immediate construction" area. Work is expected to start this spring on the Tehachapi-Cummings Valley pipeline from the Cifornia Aqueduct, which will serve Stallion Springs.

Executive of Benguet California believe that Stallion Springs' main sales appeal will lie in the second-home market, particularly since the area is only a short drive from Los Angeles. To this end it is expected that model tomes will soon be constructed on the property on a limited basis.

Benquet, according to H.B. Jones, project manager for Stallion Springs, is the principal developer of Freeport/Lucaya on Grand Bahama Island in the Bahamas.

"Since 1955, we have, in the Bahamas, developed an island city with a present population of more than 20,000."



STALLION SPRINGS — This 26,000-acre mountain-valley recreational community is being built and developed by Benguet California in Tehachapi. Facilities will include a golf course, overnight lodge, lake and a complete ranch headquarters with rodeo ring, barns, corrals and a blacksmith shop.

Growth Of Mobile Homes On Rise

The number of mobile home spaces in California has dramatically increased over the past two years in what may be a prelude to record mobile home growth, according to Crocker Bank.

Since 1970 mobile home spaces in the state have increased by 58,000, compared to a gain of 28,000 between 1968 and 1970.

Crocker Bank estimates that California mobile home parks are now adding 30,000 spaces each year. This represents an annual net gain of more than 10%.

There are approximately 281,000 spaces in California mobile home parks at this time, the bank estimated. This compares to 223,000 in 1970 and 195,000 in 1968.

"Southern California especially is a mecca for mobile homes," said James M. Herrera, assistant vice president of installment credit administration in Los Angeles. He coordinates the bank's mobile home portfolio for the entire state.

"California has the climate, geography and life style for this type of living, more so than most areas of the country," he said.

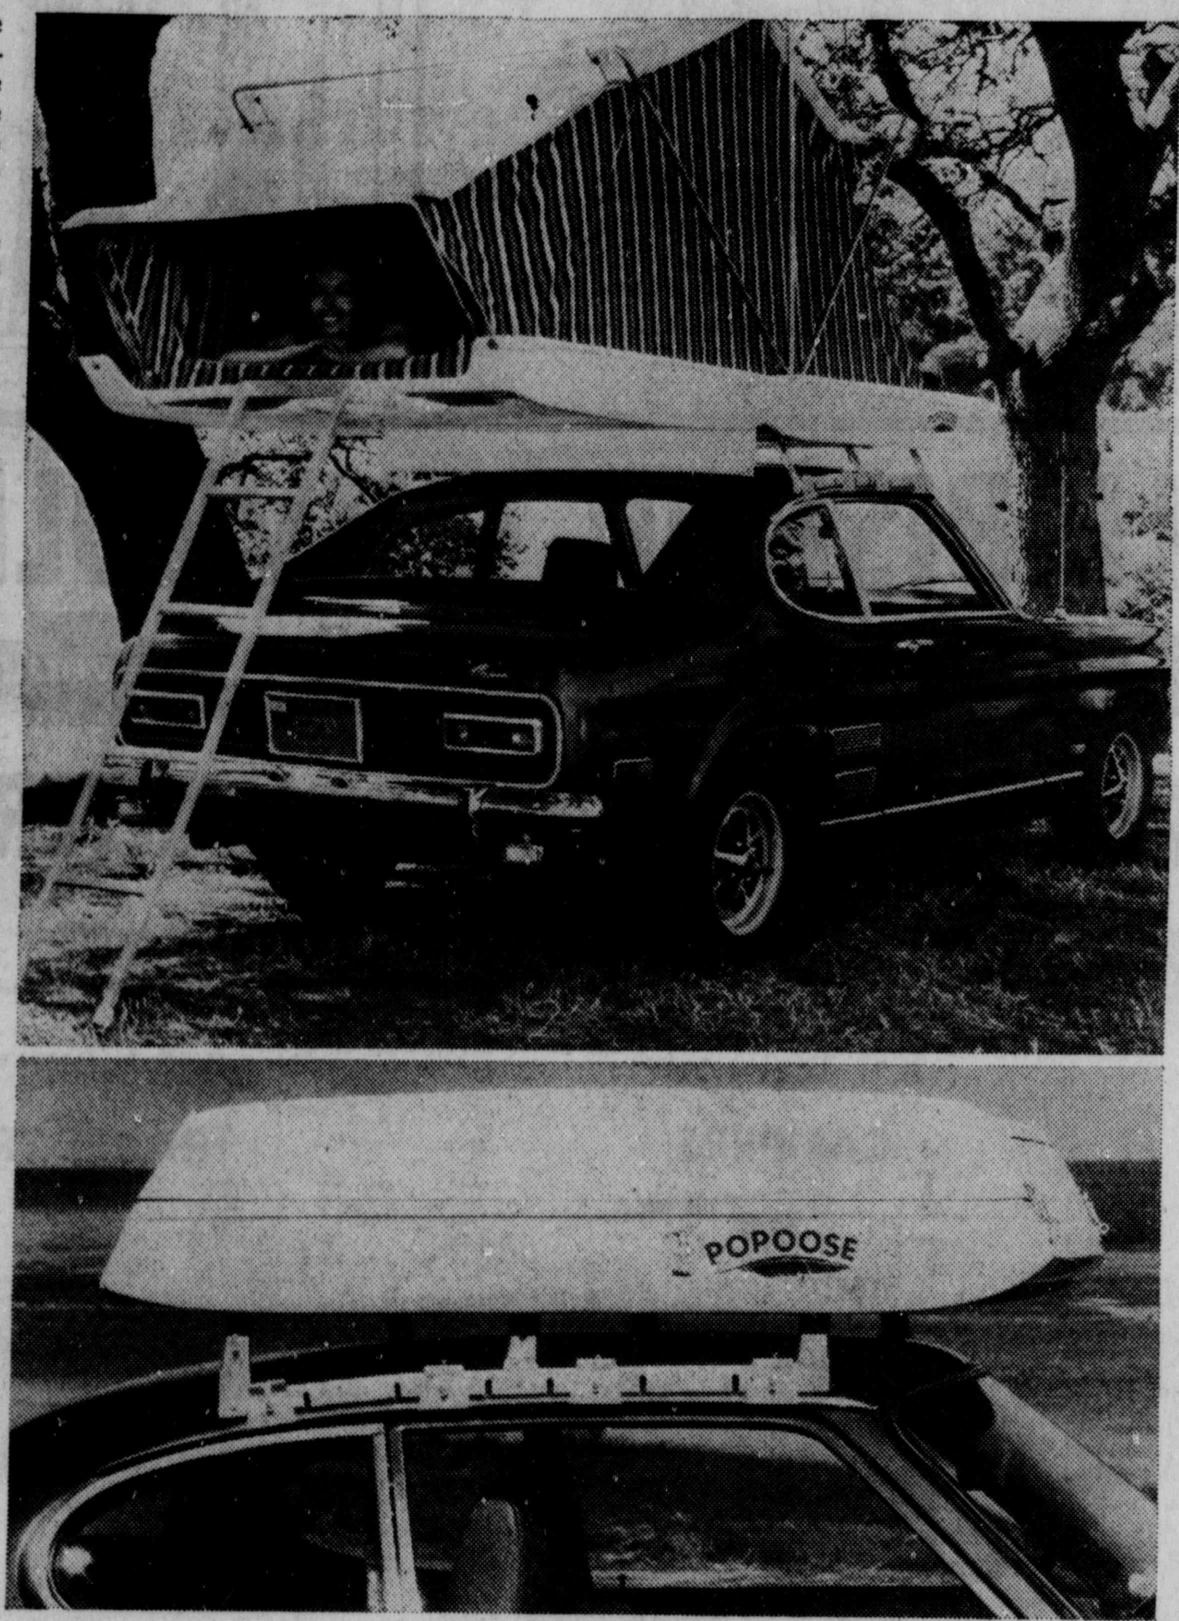
While mobile home sites are found in all parts of California, Southern California contains the heaviest concentration. Crocker Bank lists leading counties as Los Angeles, San Diego, Orange and Riverside. In Northern California, the leading counties are Santa nd Sacramento.

The rising number of mobile home spaces is the result of consumer demand, a sharp increase in number of parks, and a trend toward larger park size, the bank's research shows.

About 5,500 parks now operate in the state, each averaging 52 spaces. In 1968, only 4,300 parks were operating, each averaging 45 spaces. New parks being constructed today usually contain 200 spaces.

Along with the increase in the number of mobile home sites, the industry is witnessing a corresponding rise in mobile home sales, said Herrera.

"Last year was a record sales year of about 28,000 units and 1972 will surpass that. Lack of new spaces was a limiting factor in 1969 and 1970, but now thousands are available, he said.



TRAVELING TENT

Popoose, a rugged, yet lightweight fibre glass shell that easily mounts on most cars and trucks, pops open to form an all weather tent, complete with a foam rubber mattress. Hinged to open and close in seconds and including an access ladder, the Popoose travels at a compact 12-inch high plus rack that fits any auto roof and clamps to the rain gutter. It weighs just 125 pounds and lifts on and off auto with small hoist that also doubles as storage rack in garage rafters. It retails for under $500. Popoose is available at DeLong Chevrolet, Leon C. Felton Volkswagen, Dexter Toyota and Empire Chevrolet.

Barbecue Grills Come In Many Prices From 99 Cents To $200

By JOSEPHINE RIPLEY
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

You can buy one for 99 cents. You can spend as much as $200 or more for a deluxe model. Or you can do what most people do —buy one in the medium price range of $30 to $60.

That's the best thing about a barbecue grill — there's one to fit practically every budget. No wonder the cookout has become a national pastime.

A survey by the National Park Service shows that nearly 50 per cent of the population went picnicking in 1970, adding up to a total of 542 million picnics for the year.

Most of these, it is estimated, were cookouts. After all, Americans have been cooking out since the Pilgrims landed on Plymouth Rock. It all comes naturally, and picnic areas in national, state, and local parks and forest preserves have been enlarged to make room for today's mass migration back to nature.

THROW IT AWAY

A cookout can be as simple or as elaborate as anyone wants to make it. You can buy a disposable grill for 99 cents or a dollar, use it once, and throw it away.

Or you can tote a portable charcoal Habachi to your favorite picnic site. Also popular is a small, folding grill which comes with its own canvas carrying case.

Many people prefer a cookout in their own backyard. For them, there are gas and electric barbecues large enough to provide fare for a family reunion. Some of the gas-fired grills can be permanently installed on a post set in the ground. Others are mounted on a sturdy metal base.

The new electric units are becoming increasingly popular. They can be plugged in to electrical outlets on the outside of a house, or on an apartment terrace. They range in price from $50 to $130 or more, with gas units priced from about $50 to $200. Installation and accessories are not included in these figures.

Kettle grills are priced from $12 up. Some are open, but most people seem to prefer the covered type, in the $30-up price range. With a cover, the kettle becomes a sort of oven, suitable for baking as well as roasting.

Many of the covered portable grills now have a heat resistant glass window through which you can watch the progress of the cooking without having to lift the lid.

HEAT CONTROL

One of the major developments in barbecue equipment has been in the area of "controlled cooking." That is, controlled temperature. New models feature adjustable flame control, built-in thermometers, and special burners which distribute the heat evenly over the cooking area. Even some of the low-cost hibachis now have a draft slide for heat control.

With temperature control, it now is possible to barbecue the less expensive cuts of meat which require slower, longer cooking.

Grills also are getting larger. Many manufacturers of gas-type barbecues are making single hearth models with a cooking area of some 450 inches or more. Larger models have a double grill with two burners.

This enables the chef to cook rare and well-done meat at the same time, since each burner has its own separate control. Many models have a warming grill where you can keep the rare steaks warm while you are finishing "well-dones."

CHARCOAL SUBSTITUTES

Also helping to reduce cookout costs is the production of reusable briquets instead of charcoal. One electric model in the medium-price field not only has heat control and "lifetime" briquets but also is self-cleaning, even the briquets.

Still many people prefer charcoal for the special flavor it gives to meat. More power to them — but everyone using charcoal in a grill should heed the warnings of the National Safety Council:

Never cook with charcoal indoors — not even on a porch or in a garage, unless it is well ventilated. Burning charcoal produces carbon monoxide and the accumulation of this gas indoors is potentially dangerous.

Don't use highly inflammable liquids in lighting charcoal. Never — under any circumstances — should you use gasoline. The council suggests the use of commercial products such as liquids and treated solid starters.

But never use a liquid starter on a fire that is already going or even on apparently dead coals.

Covered barbecuing is recommended for its economy — it saves charcoal and makes rotisserizing unnecessary since roasting is uniform with heat reflecting from all sides. This is particularly true with the kettle grill.

Sears summer catalog features the barbecue in a special section, and Sears stores throughout the country have a new "All-Seasons Barbeque Guide," a 48-page booklet which tells how to make the best use of various barbecue equipment, how to build and tend a fire, and how to clean a grill without washing it.

The gas Appliance Manufacturers Association, 1901 North Fort Myer Drive, Arlington, Va. 22209, has a free leaflet on "Outdoor Gas Equipment Information."

Waikiki — Most Expensive Real Estate

Waikiki, Island of Oahu, Hawaiian Islands, is one of America's most valued piece of beachfront judged by both cost of land and revenue generated.

Should Waikiki improbably go on the market, a contemporary Croesus would be expected to pay about $700 million for the scant 7/10th square mile of land.

Incredibly, this area of about 452 acres — some 150 acres of it submerged — in 1971 generated about $450 million annually or 70 percent of the 50th state's entire tourist industry of $644 million.

That is a hefty sum for a peninsula that until the turn of the century was a wet sprawl of swamps, duck ponds and rice paddies.

Since the early 1800s, until early 20th Century days of Hawaii's last monarch, land rimming the curving stretch of beach beside Diamond Head was for a privileged few.

Estates of the alii (royalty) and residences of leading families stretched along the shore in 1901 when the venerable Moana became the first hotel on the beach, bringing about a newspaper complaint that the 6-story hotel "blocked the view of Diamond Head".

Voyagers in search of warmth and leisure took steamers across the sea in increasing numbers, creating the need in 1927 for the opening of the Royal Hawaiian Hotel.

Resident population grew and more tourists began to arrive. No longer could the beach be considered a playground for the idle rich, for family homesteads were sold and small cottage dwellings began to scatter back amidst the ponds behind Kalakaua Avenue.

It was a somnolent neighborhood, somewhat typical of how readers of novels pictured the tropics. It was not, however, without its problems.

In 1920 its sewer system, laid out in the 1880s, demanded immediate attention. So overloaded were systems, that one critic deemed the Beach Walk area as "almost one continuous cesspool".

Paradise was not perfect and was about to come less so. War came to Pearl Harbor — and the world; blackouts and coils of barbed wire came to Waikiki.

But people — people to defend the nation, people to keep ships afloat and planes aloft — still came to the islands, many to settle in Waikiki.

As late as 1943, Board of Health Commissions sent squads out hunting mosquito breeding places — for dengue fever was at epidemic proportions: two dead, 1,000 ill. Waikiki was "out of bounds" to servicement and tourists. A near-deserted village was the result. It was almost the last time it would be so.

The visitors came. Hawaii had to meet their needs. They wanted comfortable hotels, good food to eat, places to play, ways to see all the sights. "Tourism" became Hawaii's industry of unparalleled growth.

Statehood came in 1959 and there were about 243,000 visitors that year. By 1971 they had increased to 1.8 million. For most of them, the prime destination in the islands was fabled Waikiki.

By 1969, Waikiki beachfront land was selling for about $70 a square foot and Waikiki Beach, once technically a 100-foot wide, 300-foot long strip near a groin, now became by loose reference a nearly three mile beach front extending back several blocks.

Today, the borders of Waikiki loosely stretch from the yacht harbor where the Ala Wai Canal enters the sea, follow the canal banks to Kapahulu bordering beautiful Kapiolani Park, and skirt along beaches really called Queens, Kuhio, Duke Kahanamoku and De Russy.

It is a busy strip of hotel-apartment zones, residential areas and avenues and side streets of retail stores. Its acreage divides to about 77 for hotels, 55 for multifamily residences, 37 for commercial establishments, 17 for single-family dwellings, and 12 for public facilities. The rest of the acreage consists mostly of roads and streets.

Only about 2.1 per cent of the island's population - 13,124 by 1970 census of the 40 by 26 mile Island of Oahu (also the City and County of Honolulu) - lives in the Waikiki area. Yet Waikiki contributes 12 per cent of the Oahu's property tax and generates millions of dollars of income for Hawaii's people.

The properties vary highly. Only eight of Waikiki's approximately 125 hotels front directly on to the sands. Some buildings soar to 30 stories, but others' low profiles are beneath the fronds of palms.

Contemporary architecture contrasts with buildings influenced by the Orient, or recall the Islands of a gentler era at the turn of the century.

Visitors and residents alike patronize shops, restaurants, nightclubs and lei stands. Both shop at the markets, fill'erup at gas pumps and den garments right from botiques.

When the cash register tapes are all tallied up for 1971, it is estimated that visitors will have spent $644 million in the State of Hawaii — with something like $400 million in Waikiki alone.

Those visitor dollars don't remain, however, only in Waikiki. According to Hawaii Visitors Bureau research, the visitor dollar turns over about 12 times.

The HVB tracks the dollars from what they deem "first recipients" — hotel employees, restaurant employees, entertainers, tour operators, taxi drivers, shop keepers and transportation workers — to second recipients or "everybody" represented by accountants, farmers, mechanics, welders, artists, salesmen, dentists and lawyers.

Waikiki prides itself on giving good, friendly service in return for its incoming dollars. It likes to consider it part of Hawaii's famed "Aloha Spirit".

What does this effort at visitor satisfaction show? Statistics indicate travelers are pleased by what they have found and prove it in the number of return trips.

Of 642,300 surveyed visitors out of 1970's total of 1.7 million, about 90,000 were on their second visit to Hawaii; 34,000 were on their third time around, and 77,000 were on their fourth (or more) visit to the islands.

But Waikiki is not resting on its laurels. The community and tourist industry alike are looking, planning and developing for the future.

The unit has four separate beds, including two double bunk beds at back, and is designed for families with teenagers.

Forest Highways Are Doors To Wilderness

Enjoying the recreational opportunities of our sublime national forests, millions of visitors appreciate the vast network of roads that give them access to this scenic part of our nation's heritage.

Not only serving the needs of motorists but also helping us to carry out such vital tasks as protecting wildlife, fighting forest fires, and transporting raw materials, reports the National Automobile Club, this road network has three components: The Public Lands Highways, the Forest Highway System and Forest Development Roads.

Totaling 26,000 miles, the Forest Highway System covers areas in and adjacent to national forests.

Golden Trout Celebrated As California's State Fish

Waiting for the opportunity to land that big catch, you might take time off from daydreaming about fishing exploits to ponder some interesting facts offered by the National Automobile Club.

Considered to be the most beautiful trout in the world, the golden trout was adopted as California's state fish on April 14, 1947.

Although at their best in water with a high mineral content, trout can also survive in swamp-water ponds, soft-water lakes, and rushing creeks of high rainfall areas.

Largest freshwater fish in North America, the white sturgeon often reaches a length of 20 feet and a weight of some 1,000 pounds.

Fastest game fish, the sailfish has been clocked at nearly 70 miles an hour. On a regular basis, it can do 60 miles an hour.

One of the most popular game fish because it affords excellent sport, the striped bass bites boldly and puts up a gallant fight. California imported this fish with the delectable white meat in 1789.

As for the American eel, it has the distinction of being the only fish that lives and grows in fresh water but goes into the ocean to spawn.

'Thumping' Sound

10-Speed Bikes For Long Distance Trips

For the serious, long distance cyclist, the lighter 10-speed bikes are the way to go.

The seat should be at such a height that when you sit squarely on it and put the pedal at the bottom of the stroke, your leg extends fully and your foot rests flat on the pedal.

TITLES FOR HOME MOVIES

You'll find many title subjects ready-made for you. These include road signs, restaurant placemats, inscriptions on buildings and monuments, colorful travel brochures, road maps, timetables and calendars, cross-lighted writing in sand makes a good title. Your imagination will suggest many others.

You can further personalize some of your titles and make them more informative by adding your own captions. A good way to do this is with a set of title letters. The letters are temporarily stuck in place to spell out the desired words. They may be applied to a map or other items relating to your vacation.

Our suggestions for vacation titles can be applied to advantage at other times. Always be alert to the opportunity for photographing wedding invitations, inscriptions on birthday cakes, diplomas, etc.

When you think of picture taking . . . think of us . . . come in anytime . . . we will be glad to give you all the help you need.

Suburban Housewives Now Battling Smog

Air pollution caught the 6:03 to the suburbs. Ask any suburban home maker responsible for spring cleaning. Residing miles from a big city or industrial complex doesn't exempt you from the pollution problem.

Until recently, city and suburban dwellers alike could do little about the problem insofar as their home environment was concerned. Now, however, as a result of the development of home-type air cleaners, the homemaker can "win" up to 90 per cent of the battle with foul air.

The new air cleaner introduced by the West Bend Co., for example, operates electronically to purge air of pollen (up to 99 per cent), dust particles (up to 90 per cent), then directs air through a charcoal filter for odor removal. Operational cost per day is low since wattage is about equal to a 100-watt bulb.

In terms of housework, the air cleaner significantly reduces the need for dusting by attracting airborne cooking particles, rug lint, and others.

In terms of family health, no gauge can be set accurately. Certainly, pollen removal will be noticed by persons subject to asthma, hay fever and other sinus disorders. Cleaning cigar and cigaret smoke from the air removes another threat to general health.

Antismoking crusaders have long contended that cigaret smoke is harmful to the nonsmoker as well as the one who smokes. Non-smokers, unfortunately, must share the consequences with smoking companions and family members.

The non-smoker's dilemma can be solved at least on the home front by use of an electronic air cleaner which is up to 90 per cent effective in purifying the air of tobacco smoke. Smoke particles are purged from the air electronically after which tobacco odor is removed by a charcoal filter.

The West Bend Co. air cleaner, in a walnut-like cabinet, also effectively removes or reduces all other air pollutants and odors. The unit retails for $179. You don't have to move to a South Sea island or encase your house and yard in a plastic dome to escape air pollution. Subtler means do exist for those who prefer to "work within the system."

Electronic air cleaning units are now available which operate at low wattage to free the air of man-made pollutants (automobile emissions, industrial fumes, tobacco smoke, home heating and cooking fumes) and the natural pollutants, dust and pollen.

West Bend has developed a two-speed air cleaner which removes microscopic polluting particles as well as larger visible particles. Set at high speed, the unit circulates and purifies air in a 15 by 20 foot room about seven times per hour. Minute particles are charged electronically and collected magnetically, while household odors are removed by means of a charcoal filter.

UNIQUE — This new 15-foot Santa Fe trailer, fully self-contained, weighs only 2240 pounds and costs $2,395 F.O.B. Sun Valley, Calif. It is luxury equipped, with ample sleeping room for four adults.

Trailer Offers Many Features Compactly

I-J Special Report

SUN VALLEY, Calif. — Santa Fe Tailers is in production of a fully self-contained 15-foot travel trailer, loaded with luxury features, but holding to a price of $2395, F.O.B.

The 15-footer has a 12-foot long body, is seven feet wide, has a total weight of 2240 lbs., and hitch weight of 225 lbs. With a 50-inch dinette seat and 49-inch upper bunk the unit easily sleeps four adults, or two adults and three children.

An unusual feature for a small trailer is a full bath, with separate shower-toilet-lavatory, contrasting with the usual "wet-bath" in so many small and medium sized travel trailers.

Other luxury features include a combination gas-electric refrigerator, range with oven, double stainless steel sinks, 30 gallon water tank with 12-volt pressure-demand pump, 26 gallon holding tank, quick recover water heater, 12-volt power range hood, rear trunk, dual LPG tanks, full metal under belly, fomecor insulation, 70 amp battery inclosed in separate compartment, a large wardrobe, full length screen door, and front window awning.

Literature on the Santa Fe 15 may be obtained from the company which is a division of Traveleze Trailer Co., which started building trailers in 1931.

New Five-Speeder Is Being Developed

Tokheim Corp. of Fort Wayne, Ind., has announced it will soon market a new kind of five-speed bicycle transmission which not only requires less care and maintenance than present multispeed transmissions but also offers significant operating advantages over the derailleur.

"The new unit is the only American made five-speed and is the forerunner of a new 15-speed transmission Tokheim expects to announce later this year." said a spokesman.

Home On Wheels Looks Like Cottage

I-J Special Report

SANTA ANA — Golden West Mobile Homes, a multiple plant manufacturer headquartered in Santa Ana, is distributing a new model with conventional home exterior in California, Arizona and Nevada.

The unit, called Laguna Cottage, is a true mobile home, not a modular, but has an exterior closely resembling a conventional home. An asphalt shingled roof, side hip roof, and latticed living room windows and front door add to the Laguna Cottage conventional appearance.

Increasing the resemblance to a cottage home is an optional 12-inch overhang, which has been ordered with almost every Laguna Cottage shipped from the Golden West plant, and exterior walls of horizontal aluminum siding and simulated shake shingles.

The Laguna Cottage treatment may be given to any Golden West Mobile Home built in the Santa Ana, Ca. plant, where the company offers approximately 70 basic floor plans and many optional modifications.

AAA Motorists Going South

ATLANTA (UPI) — A recently released survey by the American Automobile Association (AAA), shows that the nine South Atlantic states were the number one travel destination of its 14 million members in 1970.

Is Cain's Tire Too Busy??

Yes, we are!! I sold my NOVATO & SAN ANSELMO stores and I guess a lot of people are coming to our San Rafael store who normally went to our other locations.

THE REASONS We are so darn busy are simple — we handle the very best products available.

We give people the best buys — or the most Tire for their money. I give no one any nonsense, I try to be patient with people because I understand their confusion.

I, the owner, Pat McAlonan, try to be at my store 90% of the time to take care of people.

Price: People are always asking us, how can we sell it so cheap? Answer Simple, I buy it cheap or I don't buy.

I stand behind my products better than any other company I have ever seen — But still there are some people I can't make happy. This is what's driving me grey headed. I'll do anything to make a customer happy. still customers drive out of here mad as heck at me. I'll have 4 or 5 cars lined up in front of the guy — explain this to him and have him demand I pull him in first — when I can't, he drives off mad as heck.

Saturday I had a guy tell me how dissatisfied with me he was because I couldn't find him a suitable used spare right away — and folks, I was going to give him the tire.

Had a fellow complain that he only got 42,364 miles out of his Semperit tires — and drove out mad before I could even quote him another set. Had a person get mad because I charge for a flat repair — my wife doesn't believe me when I tell her some of these stories!! I don't even know why I'm spending money to put all this down in an ad that's costing me plenty.

What I'm trying to say is

I VALUE & APPRECIATE YOUR BUSINESS CAIN'S SELLS TIRES YOU CAN DEPEND ON TO BE A GOOD DEAL FOR YOUR WHEELS.

Plans For A Festive July Fourth

The City of Larkspur and the Town of Corte Madera will be the setting for the Twin Cities' annual presentation of Marin's traditional Fourth of July celebration being co-ordinated by the Fourth of July Committee of the Larkspur and Corte Madera chambers of commerce.

Highlights of the day and a half celebration scheduled for Monday evening, July 3 and Tuesday, July 4th, will be the Twin Cities Family Picnic starting at 6 p.m. in Corte Madera Town Park Monday, the Art and Crafts Festival in Corte Madera Town Park on Tuesday from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. and the annual parade through both towns starting at 3 p.m. on Tuesday.

A special event Monday evening will be an appearance by Gordon Tovani, famed barefoot place-kicker who will give a practice demonstration, autograph footballs, and give place-kicking tips to football fans. Tovani will return to Corte Madera Town Park at 10 a.m. on Tuesday to make his 999,964 official logged kick.

Also at the Monday picnic, Corte Madera and Larkspur Volunteer Firemen will conduct their annual water hose fight, and Corte Madera and Larkspur councilmen will match skills in their second annual horseshoe contest.

A Special Salute For Senior Citizens Throughout Bay Area

Corte Madera merchants have the distinction of being the first to formulate an affair for not only senior citizens of their own community, but from all over the Bay Area.

The general public is invited to join with the seniors for the jubilee day. Merchants are offering many specials, many of them appearing in this section, which are available to all shoppers.

Senior citizens will have additional discounts as a "thank you" from Corte Madera merchants.

Many City, county and state officials will be on hand Saturday to welcome and acknowledge the activities of senior citizens.

No Stereotype

There is no stereotype for a mail order customer. Montgomery Ward's files in the 1920s show its customers' represented such varied and rugged occupations as lighthouse keepers, miners, loggers, ranchers and trappers living in every part of the United States, Alaska and many foreign countries.

The New, Bare Look In Windows

NEW YORK (UPI) —You can have the new, bare look at your windows in a thoroughly contemporary manner, without relinquishing protection from harmful effects of direct sunlight, says the Window Shade Manufacturers Association.

Hang decorative shades under an unobtrusive cornice where they can be folded out of sight until ready for use.

Facts About The Council

The Marin Senior Coordinating Council, Inc., is a tax-exempt, non-profit, self-help, charitable corporation.

Under the direction of Ed Ryken, executive director, this group keeps in communication with all Marin organizations composed of older persons, with private agencies, and with city and county departments whose actions affect the opportunities for good housing, health, employment, recreation, education and transportation of senior citizens.

It promotes opportunities, services and attitudes by residents of all ages that will support the highest well being of older persons.

Bounty Placed On Bald Eagle Killers

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The National Wildlife Federation is offering a bounty of $500 for information leading to the conviction of anyone shooting a bald eagle in the United States.

Anyone who wants the money should write the federation at 1412 16th St., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036 within six months after conviction. A bounty hunter has to prove his information was of "substantial assistance" in convicting the eagle-killer.

How Ward's Is Marking Birthday

To mark the 100-year milestone Wards is introducing a broad selection of consumer products specifically engineered for the centennial celebration year.

Value, both in price and innovative concept of design for the diverse lifestyles of consumers in 1972, is the principal identifying characteristic of all centennial merchandise products. Each item represents Ward's continuing philosophy of serving the consumer first.

One of the safest rotary lawnmowers ever engineered will be introduced in January along with a humidifier/electronic air cleaner that both cleans and moisturizes air for maximum indoor comfort.

Many unique and new products in fashions, home furnishings, appliances and electronics will be brought to consumers throughout the year, most of them to be exclusively marketed by Wards.

National Assessing Of Schools Seen

NEW YORK (UPI) — Within the next 10 years there may well be a nationwide accounting process or institution to assess the successes or failures of the nation's schools, Sidney P. Marland Jr. predicts in "Teachers College Record," journal of Teachers College, Columbia University.

Marland, U.S. commissioner of education, indicated that the accounting agency would evaluate both the structure and content of the educational process and address itself to some of the most pressing problems in education, reporting its findings for public scrutiny.

Purchases For Trip

SPECIAL EVENTS

Senior Citizens Day On Saturday

By RICHARD G. BURNS

The first Senior Citizens' June Jamboree for seniors throughout the Bay Area will be held in the Corte Madera Center Shopping Mall on Saturday, beginning at 8 a.m.

There will be about 15 booths which will include displays of arts and crafts, stitchery, senior citizens activities, canning and preserves, pertinent information regarding social security, medicare, etc. Also there will be antique cars, campers and mobile homes on display.

For seniors with Medicare cards, many stores will give discounts.

The event is being sponsored by the Corte Madera Center Merchants Council and the Marin Senior Coordinating Council, Inc.

Check-in time for displays will be between 8 a.m. and 10 a.m. at the Marin Senior Coordinating Council booth in the center in front of the Scratch Pad.

Judging of displays will be at 11 a.m.

There will be drawings for door prizes donated by merchants every half hour from 11 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. and winners of display prizes will be announced between 1 and 2 p.m. with a big show at 2 p.m.

The 2 p.m. show will be in the mall of the shopping center and will include an old-time fashion show, community singing, musical numbers, a magic show and other events.

Entertainment for the day has been arranged by Ed Ryken, executive director of the Marin Senior Coordinating Council.

Development of the event has been by the Corte Madera Center Business Association headed by Donald Carey. The original idea came from Aldo Pasquinilli, Center promotions director and put into operation by Elizabeth Try of the Center; John O'Conner, publisher of "The Golden Years," Ed Ryken and Pasquinilli.

The center merchants will show their appreciation of senior citizens' patronage and to demonstrate their wish to cooperate with the theme: "More power to senior buying power," and to assist senior groups showing their work and activities to the general public.

It is hoped that this event will be an annual affair, the beginning of a tradition in Corte Madera, a center spokesman said.

Bus Depots Are Turned Into Centers Of Activity

Buses and trains may go, but their depots linger on and the senior citizens know just what to do about them.

One of the first enterprises of the Marin Senior Coordinating Council, Inc., was to assume the operation of the Greyhound Bus Depot in San Anselmo. This depot is staffed and operated entirely by seniors under the supervision of the council, and is called "Bustop."

This building is being remodeled to include a boutique with emphasis on items that are made by senior citizens.

In addition to creating employment for the seniors, it enables them to provide a vitally needed service to the community.

In San Rafael, the first countywide senior center was established in the Northwestern Pacific Railroad Depot. The building has been renovated and in addition to the council offices, space is being rented to many community action agencies. The center is called "Whistlestop."

Plans, decorations and furnishings were provided by the Soroptimist Club of Marin County.

The Megalopis Is Getting Bigger

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Bigger and bigger — that promises to be the trend in our cities' population spread.

The Population Reference Bureau, Inc., says that most of the people-growth in the next two decades will take place in the country's large urban areas — the megalopolis. The bureau makes the forecast in a new publication examining accommodation of the next 50 million Americans, expected by 1995, without increasing the decay of the central city and without environmental havoc.

WIRELESS IS USED TO GET AN ORDER SHIPPED

Montgomery Ward has had a number of catalog customers who have gone to unusual lengths to get what they want.

One such fellow was R.D. Argerbright of Great Falls, Mont., who sent a wireless message back in the '20s asking anyone who heard him in St. Paul, Minn. to contact Wards and have some merchandise shipped to him in Montana.

The message, received at 8:30 a.m. to a St. Paul resident, gave complete details regarding catalog numbers, sizes and prices.

The complete shipment was on its way from Ward's St. Paul mail order house to Montana by 9:30 a.m. the same day.

ARMADA
WINDSOR
HOT

Newport, Vermont.
Jan. 6, 1922.

Montgomery Ward & Co.,
Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen:

After having given the Armada Windsor heater a thorough trial during some of the coldest weather ever experienced in this part of the country (about 30 or 40 degrees below zero), in an ordinary dwelling house and using wood as a fuel, I wish to state that I am perfectly satisfied in every detail with the above mentioned heater and will recommend it to anyone requiring a stove of this kind.

The Armada Windsor is the most perfectly controlled heater I have ever seen. The one which I now have is under somewhat of a handicap, being piped with another stove, (cooking range, also a Windsor stove from your company) to one short flue, yet the draft in both stoves is very strong.

The whole fact "in a nut shell" is that I would not take twice the price of the Armada Windsor for the one I now have if it were not possible for me to purchase another.

Very truly yours,
Robert L.

Letter printed with Mr. Bickford's permission. We have many more letters like this about the Armada and other Windsor Stoves.

The Greatest Heater We Ever Have Sold!

$5.00 Down
$5.00 a Month
17¢ a day buys this heater for you.
Use Time Payment Order Blank on Page 504

The Armada Windsor Heater is the biggest, finest hot blast oak heating stove on the market today. During all our years in the stove business, we never have seen a heater that was or is its equal. It is our greatest success as builders of high grade heating stoves.

Unusually large and massive—nearly five and one-half feet in height—the Armada looks every inch the master heater that it really is. In design it has the beauty of simplicity. It is generously decorated with smooth polished nickel, but free from fussy and ornate trimmings which demand constant cleaning. You will be delighted with its appearance in your home.

In spite of its large size and superior quality, the Armada is not an expensive stove. It may be bought on terms of $5.00 with your order and $5.00 per month, which puts it easily within reach of everyone.

This heater will keep the largest home comfortably warm during severely cold weather, yet it may be regulated so exactly that it will radiate just enough heat to take the chill off a smaller home during the mild days of fall and spring. This system of regulation is explained along with the illustrations below.

The Armada Windsor Heater stands on a heavy cast iron base, approximately two and one-half feet square. The legs are of smooth design, heavily plated with shining nickel. An extra deep ash pit prevents the ashes from piling up and burning out the grates. The ash pan is made of unusually heavy galvanized iron, and the ashpit door fits air-tight. The draw center shaking grates are made heavy and strong so that any clinkers may be shaken out without danger of injury to them.

Above the extra heavy fire pot, which is described fully in the paragraph below, is a wide, nickeled cast iron ring. This ring deflects heat toward the floor and keeps it agreeably warm at all times. Experience has probably shown you how difficult it is to keep floors warm with the ordinary heating stove.

The body of this stove is made of extra heavy special heat and rust-resisting steel. The front is of solid cast iron. The feed door is cast iron and has four mica windows so that you may see the fire. The door measures 11 by 15 inches—large enough to admit big blocks of wood. All three doors are machine fitted and are paper tight, so fire can be held with proper preparation for two days. On each side of the feed door are beautiful nickeled wings, in which the regulating dials shown below are located, and above the door is another nickeled ring. The swing cover and urn are handsomely nickeled. Takes 7-inch pipe.

Fire Pot Is 1 Inch Thick and Weighs 100 Pounds

Some Special Features of the Armada

The Urn Thermometer

In the urn of the Armada Windsor Heater is a thermometer, as shown in the illustration above. This thermometer, with the aid of the regulating handles in the wings (see paragraph below), enables you to regulate the heat and fire of the Armada to exactly the degree you want. You have perfect control over the fire at all times and can regulate it so that it holds over night and longer without the slightest difficulty.

The Regulating Dials That Give You Perfect Control of Fire

In each wing of this stove is a dial with a regulating handle. When opened, cold air is taken in from the back, carried around the steel body and heated. This hot air is then forced on the fire through a series of nozzles. It churns up the smoke and holds it on the fire until all the gases are consumed. When the smoke goes up the chimney it is light gray in color—all possible heat has been extracted. This explains why the Armada is so unusually economical of fuel—why it costs less to operate than similar heaters.

The Inch Thick Fire Pot

The fire pot is the most important part of any heating stove. In any ordinary heater it is about a quarter of an inch thick. In the Armada Windsor it is one full inch thick—as heavy as a furnace fire pot! This fire pot was built especially for the Armada Windsor. It will last for many years, saving you the necessity of buying a new one every few seasons. If you have ever owned a heater with a light firepot, you will know at once the value of this feature.

Plants For Folk Medicine Studied

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI)—An attempt to find and classify medicinal plants used in folk medicine in parts of Texas and Mexico is being made by Dr. Clarissa T. Kimber, Texas A&M Foundation at College Station. The search is supported by a grant from the National Institute of Mental Health.

Such plants, believed to be among the first used in medicine on this continent, now are becoming extinct. Some medicinal plants used in folk medicine centuries ago and then ignored have been found to yield drugs useful in modern medicine. An example is Rauwolfia, a plant whose roots produce reserpine, an important tranquilizer and hypertensive agent.

Health Service's Alcohol Report

NEW YORK (UPI)—In case you ever wondered, alcohol is the major chemical ingredient in wines, beers, and distilled beverages. It is a natural substance formed by the reaction of fermenting sugar with yeast spores. Although there are many alcohols, the kind in alcoholic beverages is known as "ethyl alcohol," a colorless, inflammable liquid which has an intoxicating effect.

Ward's Founder — Creative Person

If Aaron Montgomery Ward had been born in the 20th Century he most probably would have chosen journalism for a career instead of pioneering history's first mail order business.

As part of its 100th anniversary this year, Montgomery Ward has reprinted one of the first catalogs issued by the fledgling company. This engrossing 76-page, pocket-sized booklet, first published in 1875 is highly treasured by Wards because it is now recognized as the document that did more than anything else to launch the firm on its successful course for 100 years.

Titled "Catalogue No. 13, Spring and Summer, 1875", the booklet was used by Aaron Montgomery Ward to announce his famous money-back guarantee. This simple, but revolutionary policy at that time must have created some difficulties in his business relations with other merchants because the American marketplace in those days fully supported the motto: "Let the buyer beware."

A versatile treasure chest for anyone interested in the buying and selling habits of America in the 1870s, the catalog provides many clues as to the character of Aaron Montgomery Ward, who must have spent many nights under the glare of a kerosene lamp while he created his number one sales masterpiece. From his writing style it is easy to deduce that Ward must indeed have been a wily, but astute business man. His distinct writing style was colorful, fully representative of the spoken words of the times. His lengthy sentences provide evidence that he was not particularly a man of few words. Rather, he went to great lengths to convey full meaning to his written words.

His fatherly advice, explicit instructions as to measuring for the right fit, and his flowing descriptions of the "high fashion" bargains all add to the charm of this 19th century genius.

After establishing the mail order business in 1872, Aaron Montgomery Ward was faced with the formidable task of replacing a general store with a spell-binding catalog. To accomplish this he had to identify himself to his readers as a source of unlimited information, a frequent advisor, a personal friend, and probably most important, to be recognized as a man brave enough to withstand the criticism of dissatisfaction.

No opportunity to promote business was overlooked. Ward directed this hospitality-laden message to Grangers (farmers): "When in Chicago, come and see us . . . our place of business is opposite Matteson House where our friends can get accommodations for $2.50 a day. This is no second or third rate hotel, but first class in all particulars."

Blatantly advertised as the "cheapest cash house in America," Ward's catalog No. 13 believed in upgrading all merchandise to "high fashion" status. For example, traveling trunks with such exotic and irresistible names as "Eugenie, Oriental, Saratoga, Monitor, Empress, Imperatrice, Pride of the West," to name a few, were certain to give you the high fashion look wherever you went.

Ward recognized women as bargain hunters, and seldom disappointed them. Typical offering was: "No one can sell sewing machines lower than ourselves and live."

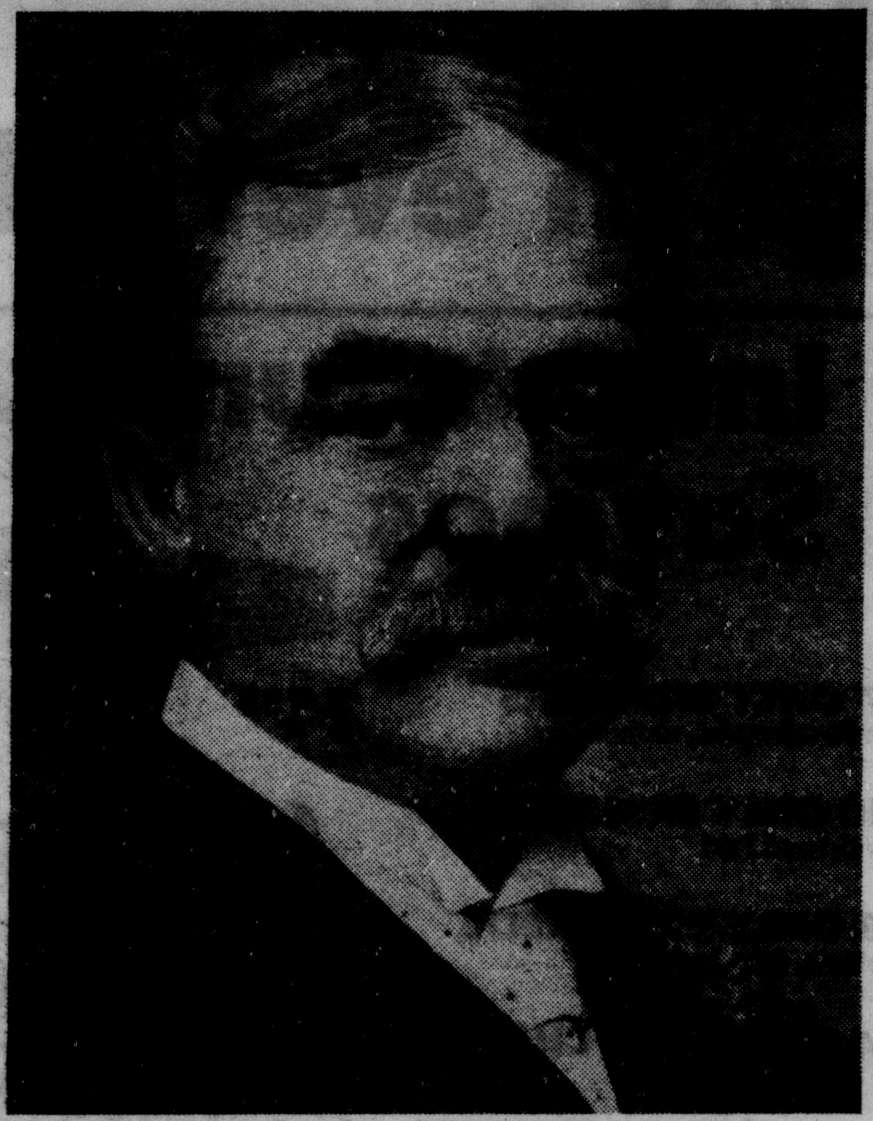
Another: Pullman Palace Car Perfume sold for .50 a bottle . . . "required but a few drops to perfume the handkerchief for days."

For the bride-to-be, his lingerie section touted: "bridal trousseau, set of three pieces, chemise and night dress, fancy 3-pointed embroidered front, with rows of fine tucks, fine embroidered edge, drawers to match. All made of Fruit of the Loom cotton and put up in neat box, $5.12."

He anticipated disappointments and offered this typical explanation: "We intended to get out an illustrated price list on ladies' hats, but have concluded dealing in them until another season."

Instructions to the man ordering a ready-to-wear suit were something of a hit-and-miss proposition: "Give your age and general build, and we will, in nine out of ten cases, give you a fit . . . state whether you have stooping or square shoulders."

As a copywriter, he would have shamed an Indian medicine man. This little gem of a cure-all must have been a big seller: "Hill's Metalic Electro Magnetic Brush . . . cures headaches, neuralgia, rheumatism, prevents hair from falling off and aids in restoring grey hair to its natural color, $1.25."



AARON MONTGOMERY WARD
Career as a journalist?

Ward's warranties spelled out some unusual limitations, especially in footwear: "Perspiration from some feet has the same ruinous effect on leather as a strong acid, hence we will not warrant boots worn without socks."

His "fatherly" image to farm families was a role earned by such helpful reminders as: "If you don't receive postal from us, saying your order has been received, see if order is not in your other coat pocket. Perhaps it is still in your post office without any stamp. Maybe you forgot to sign your name to the order . . . be sure to send enough money, if you send too much, we will return the change."

Aaron Montgomery Ward's catalog has come a long way since he first published it 100 years ago, but the tradition lives on. Today's giant Montgomery Ward general catalog with more than 130,000 listed articles continues to serve American families as the source book for practically all their living needs.

And the anniversary catalog of 1972 still states the guarantee that has made the company a great American enterprise: "If, when you receive your purchase, you find that it is not completely satisfactory, return it. We will gladly exchange it for something that is just right or refund the price and transportation charges you paid.

"If, after you have used your purchase, you find that it is not satisfactory to you and not covered by one of our Special Guarantees, simply return it to us and explain what is wrong. We will make an adjustment in cash, credit, merchandise or repair completely satisfactory to you."

Agnes Dumps Foot Of Rain In Capital

At Least 19 Dead From Worst Storm In Decades

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Tropical storm Agnes pounded the northeastern United States with gales and up to a foot of rain today, causing a mounting death toll and creating some of the worst storm conditions in decades.

At least 19 persons were dead from the rejuvenated Agnes, which was born in the Caribbean last weekend as a hurricane.

The most rain fell on the Washington area in 44 years and more than 10,000 persons were evacuated from their homes in the capital region. Thousands of other persons were driven from their homes at Wellsville, N. Y., in what the mayor called the city's "worst natural disaster."

The earthen walls of the Lake Roland reservoir were crumbling in Baltimore and officials ordered thousands of persons to evacuate in the heavily populated Jones Fall Valley.

Victims included nine persons, six of them motorists, in Virginia; four persons in Pennsylvania, including a baby torn from its father's hands; four in Maryland including 3 children swept away in a car, and two persons in North Carolina.

Four of the deaths were in the Washington area storm. One woman was swept from her car in suburban Silver Spring, Md., and a body was found near a fire that destroyed a 15-store shopping center at Arlandria, Va. Two bodies were found in Fairfax County, Va.

The 7.1 inches that fell at Washington's National Airport was the most since the record 7.31 inches Aug. 11-12, 1928. Twelve inches fell on Big Meadows, Va., and 11 on Dulles International Airport in the Virginia horse country outside Washington.

Agnes, which claimed 16 lives earlier in the week when it struck Florida and Cuba as the nation's first hurricane of the season, was centered this morning over New Jersey and was moving toward New York City at about 15 miles an hour.

The National Weather Service, in a 9 a.m. EDT bulletin, said flash flood warnings were in effect from northeast Maryland to New England, and gale warnings remained in effect from Virginia Beach to Rhode Island.

"Dangerous flooding and torrential rain continue with Tropical Storm Agnes," the service said.

An estimated 10,100 persons were given temporary shelter in schools, fire houses and American Legion posts in Washington's Virginia and Maryland suburbs.

Hundreds of motorists were stranded and some had to be rescued. The National Weather Service said wind gusts hit 60 miles per hour. Hundreds of trees were toppled and power

1,300 Ordered Out Of Flood Stricken Isleton

ISLETON, Calif. (UPI) — Officials today ordered 1,300 residents of Isleton to evacuate the yesterday when a 200-foot secflood that has inundated two islands.

Temporary levees thrown up around Isleton were holding against high waves, but officials feared the flood may have polluted the water supply.

Floodwaters rushed over two islands on either side of Isleton yesterday when a 200-foot section of levee broke.

The low-lying area, mainly resort and farm lands, is in the delta region where several rivers from the Sierra flow into San Francisco Bay.

Gov. Ronald Reagan has declared a state of emergency in the flooded areas.

In a prepared statement issued yesterday the governor also approved an emergency declaration by state Water Resources Director William Gianelli permitting the use of state funds to assist work crews in the area.

National Guard, Coast Guard and sheriff's deputies went through the two shortly after 7:30 a.m., warning residents to leave. Many residents had expected the evacuation order.

A fleet of 40 bulldozers, dump trucks and earth movers worked throughout yesterday to brace the temporary dike thrown up around the town. It was holding the water out of the main section, but health officials decided early today the community's water might have been polluted.

A rescue operation by volunteers and law officers when the levee broke early yesterday prevented any loss of life when the surrounding islands — Andrus and Brannan — were flooded by 15-foot deep waves. A dozen persons suffered minor injuries.

Col. James Donovan of the Army Corps of Engineers estimated crop losses at $11 million and damage to property at $1 million. He said a $60 million gas field was forced to shut down its pumps.

An estimated 500 homes, trailers and cabins were destroyed or damaged by waters from the break in the levee, which was apparently caused at least in part by wave action from high winds.

Cease-Fire For Ireland Agreed

DUBLIN (UPI)—The Provisional Wing of the Irish Republican Army today offered a cease-fire in Northern Ireland as of midnight Monday if Britain would reciprocate. The British Government accepted the offer.

Northern Ireland Secretary of State William Whitelaw told the House of Commons in London, "If offensive operations by the IRA in Northern Ireland cease at midnight Monday (7 p.m. EDT) British forces will obviously reciprocate."

The militent Provisional Wing offered to suspend all offensive operations in Northern Ireland "provided a public reciprocal response" is forthcoming from British forces. The more moderate Official Wing had agreed earlier to a cease-fire.

Merlyn Rees, Labor opposition spokesmen for Northern Ireland, told Whitelaw "We welcome—this is an understatement—the news of the ceasefire and note your response concerning the role of the army." He called it a turning point in the years of strife.

Whitelaw replied: "I have always said the first objective is a cessation of violence. On that everything must depend."But he warned that "many grave dangers lie ahead."

Asked about so-called "no go" areas in Londonderry—strongholds held by the IRA—Whitelaw said, "Once there is a cease-fire let me proceed as I believe best. I wish to see the cease-fire first. I have my own views how I shall proceed afterwards."

North Viet Unit Begins My Chanh River Charge

SAIGON (UPI)—North Vietnemese troops crossed the My Chanh River in regimental strength and attacked South Vietnamese paratroops today in the heaviest drive across the northern defense line since Quang Tri Province fell May 1.

One allied source said the Communist attack, backed by Soviet-built tanks and 130mm cannons, might be the start of the long awaited offensive against Hue, 20 miles to the south.

At the same time the North Vietnamese attacked the western half of the defense line, at least four of the six South Vietnamese battalions advancing into Communist-held Quang Tri Province on the eastern half fell back south of the river, which forms the province's southern boundary.

Huntley said the Marine pullback after five days of fighting had been planned before the Communist attack. Even so, the pullback helped consolidate the South Vietnamese positions.

Huntley was told the Marines, in their furthest advance yet into Quang Tri province (up to six miles, but never closer than 10 miles to the city of Quang Tri) left behind some small "combat outposts" when they withdrew.

Heavy fighting which began around midnight was continu-

Two Rulings On Schools Reversed

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Supreme Court today prohibited state and local governments from carving out new school districts if the effect would be to impede racial desegregation.

The Court spelled out its edict in two school cases — from North Carolina and Virginia — where federal district judges barred the remapped school zones but were overruled by the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. The Supreme Court reversed the appeals court in both rulings.

In other major actions, the Court ruled that:

—Unions may legally make political contributions in federal elections if the funds come from voluntary donations. The decision reversing the conviction of two St. Louis union local leaders may have a bearing on the recent conviction of United Mine Workers President W. A. "Tony" Boyle and Secretary-Treasurer John Owens on charges of violating the same federal law.

—A white defendant has the same right as a black or other minority member to challenge his conviction or indictment by juries from which Negroes were excluded.

A SALUTE TO SUMMER

Heralding summer, the Independent-Journal today spotlights outdoor living in Marin County with a 16-page special fullsized section.

The section contains suggestions for bicycling, camping, touring, boating and home activities for the patio and the backyard.

Also today, the I-J is saluting Marin's senior citizens in a 12-page Corte Madera Shopping Center tabloid.

Civic Center Rollback In Security Agreed

By ERIK M. INGRAM

The board, which first voted to abolish entrance checkpoints altogether, partially reversed itself after judges Henry Broderick and E. Warren McGuire tossed out thinly veiled threats that the courts would reimpose the security.

"Don't think we will sit by idly and let these checkpoints be eliminated," warned McGuire, who had called a court recess to attend the hearing.

McGuire, holding up a newspaper clipping of the attempted bombing of the sheriff's substation in Marin City six weeks ago, called it an example that Marin is still a target of violence.

"I want you to realize that the courts have certain inherent rights to provide security of the courts ...," he said, adding that under the law it could be reimposed.

Both judges urged tight security remain in force for another six months — the time estimated to complete court proceedings for six San Quentin inmates charged with murder during an escape attempt.

The compromise, arrived at after lengthy discussion which started before lunch and continued afterward at the judges' request, will eliminate checkpoints and searches at entrances except when the six inmates are in court.

Other security measures, such as roving patrols inside and outside the complex, will remain in force at all times, as recommended by County Administrator John F. Barrows.

In all, the security force will be reduced by 11 of its 26 deputies with three scheduled to go to the sheriff's patrol division and others to the proposed "honor farm" for jail inmates if it is approved.

Discussion of Civic Center security came as supervisors continued their deliberation on a record $47.4 million budget proposed by Barrows.

By reducing the level of security, the board hopes to save about $100,000. This year's security cost was $450,000.

Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos warned that reduced security could open the buildings to future attack, but did not insist on retaining checkpoints.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner told the board: "I'm not going to keep people in court if a scare comes in (without full security measures). We may be out 24 hours a day but I'm not going to keep people in under compulsion and they are (in court) under compulsion."

Broderick said reducing security, once reported in the newspapers, will "invite every nut in the country to Marin ..."

Supervisor Louis H. Baar, who voted with the others for eliminating the checkpoints altogether at first, was willing to compromise with the judges, but Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni told the judges to impose their court-ordered security "because I'll be damned if I'm doing to continue voting taxpayers' dollars ..."

The compromise solution, (which McGuire said he will evaluate before giving an opinion), drew Arrigoni's support, however.

(The county grand jury has also endorsed elimination of checkpoints.

Most outspoken opponents of the security were supervisors Arnold M. Baptiste and Michael Wornum.

Marin Ferry Fleet Stymied By Bids In Excess Of $4 Million

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

A severe setback to the ferry fleet, planned by the Golden Gate Bridge District, loomed yesterday when the lowest bid came in almost $4.2 million more than the $7.8 million estimate.

Dismayed district officials retreated to their offices to figure out what went wrong, suggesting the initial fleet of three ferries may have to be redesigned and rebid.

Only director Stephan C. Leonoudakis of San Francisco, the prime mover behind the district's entry into the ferry business, insisted the low bid by Campbell Industries of San Diego should be accepted promptly.

"We have enough money to make it fly," he said, adding that rebidding would merely draw higher costs because of inflation.

The district's ferry transit manager, Stanley M. Kowleski, termed the bid "a little on the high side, to put it conservatively."

Gen. Mgr. Dale W. Luehring, said his initial reaction "is that we'll rebid." He said he also was disappointed that only three of the 18 shipyards that studied specifications bid on the construction.

Operation of the new fleet from a new terminal in Larkspur is scheduled to begin in early 1974, but this timetable would be scrapped if their construction is rebid. The bids will come before directors at their next board meeting on June 30.

The other bids were $15 million by Paceco of Alameda and $16.2 million by Bethlehem Steel Corp. of San Francisco.

The bidding also clearly disappointed Bay Area labor officials watching the bid opening. They had hoped a local shipyard would be the low bidder to relieve depressed employment.

Philip F. Spaulding, the district's consulting naval architect, conceded the bids were "a great shock." Spaulding, who only last month made the latest estimate of $7.8 million, said even the low bid "doesn't represent a true evaluation of the job."

His original estimate of $6.3 million in August 1970, was increased several times to reflect inflation, reportedly running 1.5 per cent a month in shipyards.

The low bidder also bid $302,000 to provide a spare gas turbine, $163,100 for spare parts and $111,900 for builders risk insurance, for a grand total of $12,545,400. If only one ferry were ordered, its construction would cost $4,654,000, the bid said.

Spaulding, a former shipyard estimator and a naval architect for 20 years, citing cases where his estimates and bids were close, said never before had his estimate been so far from the bids. He said the high bids may have been caused partly by indefinite delivery dates by Lycoming Co. for the triple gas turbines that will power each

'Too Much Help' To Flood Victims

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Persons wanting to help the Rapid City, S.D., flood victims have sent too much clothing.

The Office of Emergency Preparedness said Wednesday that relief centers in Rapid City have more than enough clothing to meet all needs and that any more would cause storage problems.

But the relief centers still need all kinds of bedding,including sheets, blankets, pillows and pillow cases.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Ship, Airline Extortion Arrest

Landisi

The suspect, Joseph A. Landisi, 49, was arrested at his store, Joseph's Bootery, in Beacon, N.Y. He also was charged with a $300,000 extortion plot against American Airlines.

The QE2 incident came in May when Cunard received a phone call saying six bombs had been placed aboard the vessel.

American Airlines in New York reported receiving a letter on June 16 demanding $300,000 or "American terminals and planes would be damaged," an FBI spokesman said. The letter was signed "The Peoples' Welfare." A second letter was received June 20 instructing that the money be delivered to "a designated locale" in Beacon, the spokesman said.

Israelis Attack

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Israeli gunners attacked border areas in southern Lebanon for the second day in a row, according to reports from the area today.

Israel yesterday launched a retaliatory air and land attack against villages in the border area and captured five Syrian officers, including a general.

UPI correspondent Abdul Bajjaj reported from southern Lebanon that villagers from the El Edaisse area one mile from the border with Israel told him Israeli artillery was shelling the village.

Correspondents were prevented from entering the area but from nearby hills Bajjaj said he could see smoke rising from El Edaisse.

New Draft Option

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In an attempt to fill the depleted ranks of the National Guard and reserves, the Selective Service System announced today that for the first time Army draftees have the option of joining the standby services.

Draftees who accept service in the Guard or reserves need spend as little as four months on active duty. The Army draftee tour is two years. Those choosing the new option will have a military obligation of six years.

The new regulations go into effect July 1.

A-Blast Protest

SYDNEY, Australia (UPI) — A 34-foot yacht protesting the imminent French nuclear explosion eluded the French navy today in the area of the South Pacific test site. Officials said the blast could come any time the weather clears.

A descendant of the leader of the mutiny on the Bounty evacuated the people of his island and expressed concern the blast might contaminate their supply of fish.

French officials at Papeete on the island of Tahiti said the time of the blast at Mururoa, 800 miles to the southeast, would depend on weather conditions and could come at any time.

Numbers Decline

WASHINGTON (UPI) — There were more heavy smokers among Americans in 1970 than in 1965, but the total number of smokers has continued to decline, according to a government report issued today.

Basing its conclusions on information gathered from interviews in 37,000 households during 1970, the National Center for Health Statistics also concluded that men continue to show greater interest than women in kicking the habit.

The report said that in 1970 an estimated 48.8 million persons 17 and older were puffing anywhere from one to 99 or more cigarettes a day. In 1965, an estimated 50.7 persons were cigarette smokers.

Dodd Carried Pistol

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The late Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., carried a pistol in his pocket to the Senate floor when he was censured, according to syndicated columnist Jack Anderson.

"Those who knew about the pistol feared the despondent Dodd might try to end his humiliation with a pistol shot, thereby turning the drama into Roman tragedy in front of the assembled senators," Anderson reported in columns published today.

Dodd was censured June 23, 1967 for spending campaign contributions on personal debts.

He died May 24, 1971 at 66, after failing to win re-election as an independent in 1970.

Mayors Praise Nixon

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The nation's mayors rejected a resolution demanding the United States withdraw its troops from Vietnam by Oct. 1 and passed instead a resolution yesterday giving President Nixon gentle praise for the way he is handling the war.

The U.S. Conference of Mayors also passed a resolution urging federal gun control laws, but decided not to take a stand on busing.

Rail Lands Probe Asked By Lawyer

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—An antipoverty lawyer taking a tip from Ralph Nader is seeking federal action to have the Southern Pacific Co. divest itself of millions of acres of western land.

David Kirkpatrick, a staff lawyer with the Salinas office of California Rural Legal Assistance and a representative of the National Coalition for Land Reform, told newsmen Wednesday that he was seeking an inquiry by the Interior Department.

Kirkpatrick charged the railroad was violating the terms of the land grants received in the 1900s.

"Millions of acres of public land were given to private railroads to spur construction of new tracks and settlement of the West," he said.

"If the land was not sold within three years of construction, it had to be opened for sale to settlers in blocks of 160 acres or less, generally at $2.50 an acre or less."

An SP spokesman denied the charge and added the coalition was "apparently basing its case on only superficial research into the law and history of railroad land grants."

Kirkpatrick said he has filed an administrative complaint with the Interior Department. The aim, he said, was to have the agency make a report on land given SP on the west side of the San Joaquin Valley, between Sacramento and Lake Tahoe, and in other parts of the railroad's routes.

The complaint also sought return of land given the Santa Fe and other western railroads.

6 Shot Dead By 'Men-Only' Killer

CHERRY HILL, N.J. (UPI)—A private guard described by his neighbors as a quiet churchgoer went berserk in an office building Wednesday and shot 12 men, six fatally, before wounding himself in the head.

The gunman, identified as Edwin Grace, 32, a Pinkerton guard from New York City, seemed deliberately to avoid firing at the women he encountered during the 15-minute shooting spree which turned the normally quiet office building into a slaughterhouse.

Grace, under heavy guard at Cherry Hill Hospital where his condition was called "critical," entered the Heritage Building at about 2:30 p.m., carrying two sawed-off .22 caliber rifles.

Police said he roamed from office to office, shooting only men. Some were shot at their desks, others were gunned down in the halls.

"I looked out the door and I saw him standing in the hall reloading his gun," said James Slimmer, who was wounded. "All I saw was the gun and his eyes. I slammed the door and held it shut."

Slimmer said he was shot through the door. "I was holding my thumb over the wound with one hand and doing my damndest to keep the door closed with the other. He shot a few more times and then he left."

On the tree-lined street in Brooklyn where Grace lived when at home, neighbors said Grace "was always so quiet."

"I'm totally dumbfounded by the whole incident," said Louis Zone. "It came to me as a total surprise. He was a quiet young man." Zone's wife said that Grace was "a fine kid and quite a churchgoer,"

James Ashman, who escaped being shot by jumping out a window of the colonial type building, said "We were just talking to one another and the guy walked in and shot the owner, Bernie Robinson, right in the head.

Mayor John T. Holden told newsmen that Grace wore a uniform with a patch that read "Court Clerk, Essex County, N.Y." He said Grace also wore a dog tag with "Edwin Grace, white male, 1939" written on it.

The six men killed were identified as Robert Bartone, 22, of Delanco, N.J.; Joseph A. DePalma, 44, and Charles Merkel, 37, both of Cherry Hill; Theodore G. Hall, 38, of Willingboro; Stephen B. Robinson, 42, of Cinnaminson; and Joseph Boyd, 48, of Morristown.

Taken to Cherry Hill Medical Center in critical condition were: Wayne Stoup of Cherry Hill; Maynard Bell of Marlton; Val Risco of Groveville; and Gary Davis of Moorestown. Injured slightly were Charles Collins, 24, of Pennsauken; and Walter Wilks, 46, of Levittown, Pa. A 13th man, Walter Wilks, 46, of Levittown, fractured his arm when he jumped out a window to escape the killer.

Waterfront Strike Threat

HONOLULU (UPI) — The longshoremen's union today gave a 72-hour notice of a threatened waterfront strike that could leave Hawaii without her shipping lifeline.

The Hawaiian Islands, still recuperating frov the 135-day West Coast dock strike, are almost totally dependent on surface shipping for needed supplies.

"Unless an agreement is reached by 12:01 a.m. Monday, all of your operations ... will be struck," said Carl Damaso, president of Local 142 of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, in a letter to 11 stevedoring firms.

Afro Styles May Cause Bald Heads

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Young blacks with their hair teased up into bushy Afros are running the risk of losing their hair, a team of Atlanta doctors told the American Medical Association Wednesday.

Dr. Augie C. Brown, a dermatologist at Emory University, said that premature hair breakage results from the mechanical and chemical straightening and the teasing with combs needed to produce the style.

He reported seeing 25 such cases in the past two years, including several young men and women who had gone temporarily bald over their entire head or in patches.

There is also a risk of permanent hair loss among Afro wearers from scalp infection due to infrequent hair washing and the use of straightening chemicals, he added.

Brown, who presented a report co-authored by three whites and two blacks at Emory, said the threat of hair loss doesn't apply to the "natural" Afro—in which the hair is not teased away from the head and is cut relatively short.

Losers Seek Slice Of McGovern Booty

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI)—Four defeated presidential candidates today asked a federal court for a slice of the 271 convention delegates Sen. George S. McGovern won in California's winner-take-all primary.

Through an attorney, McGovern insisted the losing candidates were asking the court to grant them what the voters would not and charged they were seeking to change the rules after the game was played.

Supporters of Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey and Henry Jackson, Rep. Shirley Chisholm and Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace filed a law suit only 20 days before the start of the Democratic National Convention asking that the winner-take-all primary election be struck down and the delegates be allocated to all contenders on a proportionate basis.

If the suit were successful, McGovern would lose 151 California delegates and would trim his estimated committed convention votes from 1,328.15 to 1,177.15. There are 1,509 votes needed to win. Humphrey would gain 106 Californians, boosting his current estimated total to 482.55.

U.S. District Court Judge Phillip C. Wilkins indicated he would rule this afternoon on the motion to convene a three-judge panel to hear the merits of the class-action suit.

The suit, filed by attorney William Jennings, a Humphrey campaign worker, asserts that California Democrats who voted for candidates other than McGovern at the June 6 primary would be disenfranchised at the convention because McGovern swept up all the delegates.

Howard Jewell, representing McGovern's California campaign, asserted that Jennings "wants from this court what he could not get from the people. He wants two swings at this thing."

If the proportionate representation suit was successful, McGovern would take 44.3 per cent of the California delegates to the convention or about 120 votes. Humphrey would get 39.2 per cent or about 106 delegates; Wallace about 6 per cent or 16 delegates.

Reed School Budget Is Considered

The Reed School District board has taken its first look at a $2.4 million budget, but did not formally accept it for consideration.

Board member Leo Souza said at a trustee' meeting Tuesday he would not accept the submission of a tentative budget until a report on the district's "small schools" had been completed.

The "small schools report" — which is expected to be completed by the July 5 school board meeting — will discuss long-range plans and policies regarding the Tiburon and Belvedere schools.

The fate of those two schools, which are currently kindergarten through second grades, will have a significant effect on the district's overall budget.

Only three members of the school board attended Tuesday night's meeting.

Two of them, Dr. John J. Osborn and Margaret Jones, voted to accept the tentative budget, while Souza abstained.

Lacking a majority, the tentative budget will be held until the "small schools report" is completed.

According to district manager Charles L. Condrotte, the new budget will require some increase of the school tax rate, which currently stands at $3.615 per $100 of assessed value.

But Condrotte said, the rate would not increase substantially due to a recent increase in the assessed value of property in the district by more than 10 per cent.

A $42.000 increase in the district's repayment of a state building loan, salary step increases and a $67,000 multimedia center planned for the Reed School account for the majority of the $200,000 proposed budget increase.

Condrotte said that fringe benefits, maintenance items and utilities also accounted for the expanded spending program.

Three teachers have been cut from next year's tentative personnel roster, said Condrotte, due to a projected drop in student enrollment.

The current budget for the school district is $2,271,743, while the proposed budget is $2,471,818.

The Reed School District Board also:

MILEAGE ALLOWANCE — Passed the first reading of a proposed increase in district employees' car allowance from 10 to 13 cents per mile.

BURGLAR ALARMS — Authorized $11,439 for the installation of burglar alarms at Bel Aire, Granada, Reed, Reedland Woods, and Del Mar schools.

OPPORTUNITY CLASS — Authorized Supt. Ralph D. Giovanniello to prepare a program of instruction for students with serious behavior or absentee problems.

PERSONNEL — Instructed Giovanniello to add 2.5 teaching positions to the tentative budget, including one half a music teaching position, one teacher of the educationally handicapped and one opportunity class teacher.

TV Actress Saves Life Of Girl, 10

HONOLULU (UPI)—Florence Henderson, the mother of ABC television's "The Brady Bunch," Tuesday saved the life of 10-year-old Susan Olsen who plays her daughter after a filming accident.

The entire cast was aboard a Hawaiian outrigger canoe filming a three part series when a huge wave overturned and swamped the canoe. Miss Henderson grabbed Miss Olsen, who cannot swim, and prevented her from drowning.

Tape Recording In Hire-To-Kill Case

The trial of Una Mettam was highlighted today by introduction of a tape recording in which she advised a man on how to kill her husband so she could collect insurance on him.

In the tape of a conversation Jan. 13 between the 42-year-old woman and Marino Guerra, an Ignacio service station operator, she said her estranged husband had to be killed in an auto accident for her to collect more than $50,000 in insurance money.

"It has to be. That is the only way I can collect," she said.

Her attorney, William O. Weissich objected to the tape, but Judge Henry J. Broderick of Marin Superior Court allowed it played.

In his testimony yesterday and today Guerra said Mrs. Mettam approached him at his station on Jan. 6 and "she said she had somebody she'd like eliminated." The following evening she brought an envelope with her husband's picture and daily itinerary.

"No jokes were made," he said.

Weissich admitted in his opening statement yesterday that Mrs. Mettam made the request but said she thought she was involved in a joke by two of her friends.

Mrs. Mettam, a plump woman with glasses, cried quietly in a handkerchief as he spoke.

Mrs. Mettam is accused of trying to arrange the death of her cab driver husband in January after taking out insurance against his accidental death. Deputy Dist. Atty. Ernest C. Zunino claimed she got Guerra's name from John A. Pedroli, a San Rafael mechanic she is friendly with and tried to hire him to stage an "accident."

Pedroli testified today that he had indeed mentioned Guerra to her as a possible enforcer, but he said her followup had always been joking except for once in November or December when she seemed to speak seriously about wishing her husband dead.

Mrs. Mettam was arrested Jan. 18 after sheriff's deputies investigated her offer to Guerra and recorded the telephone conversation.

Contempt Citations Are Upheld

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Ninth Circuit Court of Appeal today upheld contempt citations against a typographical union local and two of its officers for secondary boycotts in its strike against the San Rafael Independent-Journal.

The appellate court, however, reversed citations against two other officers on grounds there was no evidence they knew about the continued union activity.

In the same action, the court allowed to stand an order of the National Labor Relations Board that the union was engaged in unfair labor practices.

The combined suits grew out of picketing of retail stores in Marin County by San Francisco Typographical Union Local 21 in connection with its strike against the newspaper.

The union began picketing stores advertising in the Independent-Journal March 17, 1970, and on April 28 of that year the district court ordered it to cease picketing and distributing handbills to the public.

On June 24, 1970, U. S. District Judge William T. Sweigert found the union and four of its officers in contempt for continued picketing. No monetary fines were imposed.

In its ruling the circuit court said a union may picket to urge the public not to buy advertised products but cannot urge customers to stop doing business with the store. An NLRB hearing examiner held that the use of tearsheet ads on picket signs did not adequately identify the struck products.

The high court upheld the contempt citation for the local and for its vice president, John J. DeMartini and its organizer, Don Abrams. It reversed the convictions of union president Leon Olson and Secretary Treasurer G. M. Bachich.

WAR

ing at mid-afternoon, Huntley said.

UPI reporter Chad Huntley said 100 North Vietnamese were killed by midafternoon. South Vietnamese officers said their own casualties were light. They claimed 16 Communist tanks and armored vehicles knocked out by tactical aircraft.

UPI correspondent Donald A. Davies, who has just returned from the My Chanh area, said the Communist push was in no sense a "break through." He said despite references to the "My Chanh River defense line" the paratrooper positions were actually a few miles below the river and the North Vietnamese did not get past the paratroopers.

The North Vietnamese regiment involved in the attack would normally number about 2,900 men.

The U.S. command said a flight of four U.S. Air Force F4 Phantoms based in Thailand intercepted two MIG jets Wednesday over North Vietnam and shot down one of them with a missile—the 119th MIG kill of the war. MIGs have shot down 55 American aircraft.

ferry. The bidders thus tacked on extra dollars to cover themselves in case the engines are late and push the bidders into the $1,500-a-day penalty period.

Spaulding also reported that Lycoming, the only manufacturer of the needed turbines, hiked their price by $200,000 for each vessel's power system on Tuesday. Luehring said he would refer this to the district's counsel "to see if it's within the federal wage-price guidelines."

Luehring also suggested he may recommend using some other power system. Spaulding's design for the 165-foot ferries calls for triple water jets coupled to the turbines, a system accounting for roughly one-third of each ferry's cost.

The aluminum-hulled, 25-knot ferries will carry 750 passengers.

Luehring said he had feared high bids, citing the experience a few months ago of the Delaware Port Authority. They got a low bid of $14 million for three ferries, double their estimate.

He said that another inflating factor in shipyards was a new federal requirement that there be one apprentice for each five journeymen, which would mean 34 additional workers to build the ferries.

Leonoudakis pointed to pending federal legislation that could raise the government's share of the district's fleet from two-thirds to 85 per cent.

The district has 60 days from yesterday to act on the bid.

was knocked out im parts of Washington and its suburbs.

Near Rockville, Md., to the north of the capital city, two dams were heavily strained and many families were evacuated because of danger of collapse but civil defense officials said later the immediate danger had passed.

The Potomac River was believed to be the highest since 1942. It was six feet over flood stage at some points, and lapped close to the end of a runway at National Airport which was virtually cut off by water over the roads.

Thousands of government workers —all those except ones in emergency positions —were encouraged to stay home under the government's "liberal leave" policy.

Seven of the deaths were in Virginia, which experienced some of its worst flooding in 50 years.

Even at the White House, some water trouble was reported. Reporters found the carpeting wet in the basement level of the press room.

Four persons drowned in the Susquehanna River region near Harrisburg, Pa. Highways were closed by mud and rock slides. Hundreds of families were evacuated. State police rescued 36 girl scouts trapped during the night at a camping area near York, Pa.

Scores of Susquehanna River tributaries flooded. The river itself was rising but posed no immediate threat.

At Fort Hunter, Pa., a tributary swept away the trailer home of a couple, and they were missing and presumed dead. Fifteen miles east of Harrisburg, a baby was swept from the arms of the father as he tried to carry the child to safety. A man was swept off a bridge near Hershey.

The water was two feet deep on the streets of Shinglehouse, Pa., and similar conditions were reported at Eldred, Port Allegany and Smethport.

There also was heavy flooding along the Pennsylvania-New York border. In Lykens, Pa., a small creek overflowed and residents were evacuated by boats. Near East Berlin, Pa., state police said campers were trapped.

In Mechanicsburg, Pa., floods collapsed basement walls and residents were evacuated to a junior high school. Much of Ceres, N.Y., along the border, was evacuated.

democratic institutions to this degree, they may not be worth having," Wornum said, adding that eliminating the checkpoints would allow free access while remaining security measures were sufficient to protect the courts.

Baptiste expressed similar feelings but eventually made the motion on the compromise, under which $22,000 was budgeted for overtime to pay deputies to man the checkpoints during so-called "sensitive trials."

County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell said the funds may be reimbursable from the state, which pays San Quentin court costs.

He added, at one point, that the county has been turned down on $400,000 of its $600,000 request for state reimbursement of the Angela Davis court expenses.

The $400,000 not refunded was for building security which was not removed when Miss Davis was moved out of Marin, he said.

A Landmark Decision In Child Case

A federal judge ruled yesterday that a Marin mother and other poor parents in danger of losing their children because of neglect or abuse must have an appointed attorney. The decision puts an unwelcome burden on the public defender's office.

Thomas G. Hendricks, deputy county counsel, said the landmark decision by Judge Stanley A. Weigel of U.S. District Court in San Francisco will probably be appealed but that this will be for Juvenile Court Judge Joseph G. Wilson to decide.

Weigel ruled that a Marin mother, whose child was made a ward of the court under Section 600 of the state Welfare and Institutions Code, was entitled to appointed counsel.

Hendricks explained that his office represents the children in such matters if they have counsel so that the public defender's staff would have to represent the parents.

In the Marin case, the woman has been represented by a deputy public defender, he said, since the Legal Aid Society of Marin and the Youth Law Center, a federal funded San Francisco agency, made a test case of the matter.

Hendricks said he did not believe that the federal court had jurisdiction in the matter and said state courts have held contrary to Weigel's finding.

Weigel ruled that any court proceedings must come to a halt until the parent is notified of his right to free counsel.

Parents Of Jackson Ask $15 Million

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The parents of slain black revolutionary George Jackson have filed a $15 million punitive damage suit in the death of their son last year during an alleged escape attempt at San Quentin Prison.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Jackson Jr. maintained in the suit filed Wednesday that Jackson's death "was the result of intentional wrongdoing or neglect."

The suit in U.S. District Court said Jackson had been "set up" and "summarily executed" by San Quentin guards.

Defendants were San Quentin Prison Warden Louis S. Nelson, Associate Warden James W. L. Park, Marin County District Attorney Bruce B. Bales and Attorney General Evell J. Younger.

Three San Quentin Guards and two tier-tender inmates died during the violence, their throats slit.

Tornadoes Hit Arizona Town

ELOY, Ariz. (UPI) — A series of tornadoes accompanied by heavy rains and hail struck south-central Arizona late Wednesday, leveling the main street of this small cotton town.

No deaths were reported but property damage was considerable and several persons suffered minor injuries.

Eloy, a town of 5,400 southeast of Phoenix, was hardest hit. Pinal County sheriff's deputies said Frontier Street, the main thoroughfare through the business district, was destroyed and the residential district severely damaged.

COURT

handbills if they are not related to its operations.

The school decisions by Justice Potter Stewart dealt with the creation of new districts at Scotland Neck in Halifax County, N.C., and Emporia in Greensville County, Va.

Citing the Court's 1971 decision in a landmark North Carolina case, Stewart said "a new school district may not be created where its effect would be to impede the process of dismantling a dual system."

The "informed judgment" of U.S. District courts must be relied upon to determine what the effect would be, he said. Stewart cautioned however that mere disparity in the racial composition of the two systems alone would not be sufficient reason to bar the creation of a new district.

But in the Emporia case, he said, there is more involved than "disparity in racial percentages."

The vote in the Emporia case was 5 to 4, with Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices Harry A. Blackmun, Lewis F. Powell Jr. and William H. Rehnquist —all Nixon administration appointees —dissenting.

The Scotland Neck case drew a unanimous vote with the four Emporia dissenters joining in a separate concurring opinion.

Both decisions reversed the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, which held that federal courts may interfere only if the "primary" purpose of creating new school districts is to retain as much racial separation as possible.

The appeals court said lower court judges must keep hands off if the new district is "designed to further the aim of providing quality education and is attended secondarily by a modification of the racial balance, short of resegregation."

"We have focused on the effect —not the purpose or motivation —of a school board's action in determining whether it is a permissible method of dismantling a dual system," Stewart said. "The existence of a permissible purpose cannot sustain an action that has an impermissible effect."

Youth Boss Requesting A Transfer

L. Charles Smith, formerly the county's half-time youth coordinator and more recently full-time coordinator, has requested a transfer.

In a letter to the board of supervisors, County Administrator John F. Barrows said, Smith has asked to fill a vacant slot in the probation department.

Smith, who is credited with keeping the Marin County Youth Commission afloat during the last year, told supervisors last week the commission needed a full-time man from outside the probation department where he worked half time.

Supervisors, considering the probation budget, agreed and in a move to keep from hiring another employee moved Smith out of the probation department and made him the full-time coordinator.

Barrows recommended that another youth coordinator be hired and the youth commission be placed under the human rights department, whose budget was to be considered today.

Larkspur Council Slices $76,500 In Budget Round

By JEFF GREER

Larkspur city councilmen hewed on estimated $76,500 from the proposed $1,475,127 budget last night, lopping almost in half the potential tax rate increase of 42.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

They made heavy cuts in the city's planning outlay, salary increases, and retainer fees for the city attorney, eliminated one new patrolman requested for the police department, delayed hiring one new fireman to Jan. 1 and reduced funds for renovating city hall.

At the end of a five-hour special meeting, they were left with decisions still to make July 5 or later on the $99,650 capital spending budget for parks and recreation.

The estimated tax rate stood at about $2.10 after the paring, compared with $1.895 per $100 assessed valuation this year. The 1971-72 budget was $1,016,560.

Mayor William G. Fleckles reported that landowner Neil J. Shultz Jr. had offered a two-year purchase plan for the South Eliseo Drive property the city wants to anchor one end of a proposed footbridge across Corte Madera Creek. Price tag for the land is $45,000.

Fleckles also said it might be possible to spread the $15,000 acquisition of the Mary Fraser Grove property over several years.

Councilman Jon Sestak questioned spending $27,500 on four tennis courts at Piper Park, and the council agreed it should be studied further, particularly because the park's master plan has yet to be presented to the council

Nettled by requested increases in the budget for legal advice, the council briefly toyed with the idea of hiring a full time attorney, then decided it would be more costly than the present retainer system.

City Atty. Robert W. Elliott received $5,400 in retainer fees this year, plus another $5,500 for special services including litigation. In the 1972-73 budget, he asked $700 a month retainer for himself, $300 a month for Asst. City Atty. Peter B. Brekhus and $15,500 for other services and materials.

A. Charles Brouse of the Larkspur Town Meeting objected that his group favored at most a 5 per cent pay raise for anyone in the budget. He said if attorneys' charges ran over the former retainer fees, "let them justify the cost with data — monthly statements for service rendered."

Councilman Neil R. Brixon declared, "I can't possibly vote a raise of darn near 300 per cent when the city engineer asks the same retainer he did last year."

After more than an hour's discussion of alternatives, the council voted unanimously to offer the legal advisors the same $5,400 retainer fee as last year, with bimonthly billings for any extra services such as the Little King Mountain litigation now in Marin Superior Court.

During lengthy discussion of the proposed community development (planning) budget, the council trimmed what was originally a $25,000 allocation to consultants Mocine and Williams of Berkeley for updating the city's master plan and ordinances, to $2,000. Another $10,000 was budgeted for the city's first community development director (planning director) to use for consultants and planning work after he is hired, probably in September.

The strategy was approved by a 3-2 vote, with councilmen Robert H. Lee and Joan Sestak arguing for another $2,500 to speed revision of the city general plan.

Lee also argued that the city must move quickly to master plan the Bon Air proposed shopping center and area east of Highway 101 before development pressures arise.

He said allocation of $15,000 to $20,000 would "be the best bargain we've got in the whole budget," and that historically, Larkspur's planning has been "reactionary" to developments rather than ahead of growth.

Another $5,500 was trimmed from the planning budget because of the sudden resignation of the department's number two official, John W. Appleton. His replacement as zoning administrator will not be hired until after the development director is selected, City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst suggested, and will begin at a lower salary step, working less than a full year in fiscal 1972-73.

Asst. City Mgr. Harlan Barry pointed out the planning work was to be financed by a special property development tax on new building, formally adopted last night. The levy imposes a fee of $75 on each one-bedroom dwelling, $25 for each additional bedroom, and 1.5 cents per square foot on commercial structures.

The approximately $20,000 cut from planning outlay will go into the general fund, relieving pressure on the general fund maximum tax rate of $1 per $100 assessed valuation, Barry said.

Among the other cuts voted last night were $2,100 earmarked for renovating the council chambers and other city offices, $1,000 for city elections, $6,000 by deletion of one patrolman's position, coupled with creation of a fourth sergeant's post as investigator; $10,000 in the estimated cost of the future police office, due to low bids; and about $20,000 by halving the 10 per cent pay raises recommended by the city manager for all employees.

HARLAN BARRY
New title and a raise

It's Pay Hikes For All Except Councilmen

Larkspur city councilmen gave everyone on the city payroll a raise last night — except themselves.

They unanimously voted to chop $9,000 out of the 1972-73 city budget that had been earmarked to pay each councilman $150 a month.

But they kept a year-old promise, promoting Harlan Barry to assistant city manager and giving him a 7.5 per cent pay raise. The entire police force also was voted a 7.5 per cent raise and the rest of the city's 48 employees received 5 per cent, the same as last year.

Barry, 33, was hired in March 1970 as administrative assistant to City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst. During budget sessions last year, the council refused to name Barry assistant city manager, but raised his salary to $1,213 a month, with the promise that if he gained more seasoning in city work he would be promoted as he was last night. His new salary will be $1,306 a month.

The proposed $1,475,127 budget drafted by Bathurst and Barry included a 10 per cent pay raise for everyone on the staff. Bathurst vigorously defended the raise, against the council's economy drive. He argued for "a very minimum of 7.5 per cent" and warned, "you'll find we'll be notably weak in recruitment" and "a great majority" of the city staff "can't afford to live in Larkspur."

Mayor William G. Fleckles replied that, "I don't know any private employer who's giving any raises. The taxpayers are at the limit. . . 5 per cent equals the cost of living increase. . . all we can justify." However, he argued for the 2.5 per cent differential between police and firemen, saying that he knew of no other city where their pay scales were the same.

Councilman Neil R. Brixon moved Fleckles's proposal, but Councilman Alfred Malvino briefly objected that Barry should get at least a 10 per cent raise. After being assured that Barry's promotion moved him into a pay range comparable to department heads, Malvino made the overall salary vote unanimous.

Larkspur thus became the first city in Marin County to settle its salary question for the coming year; it did not go through the formal negotiation process used in most of the cities.

Building Superintendent For Larkspur Quits Post

John W. Appleton, Larkspur building and planning superintendent, resigned his job at last night's city council meeting.

He gave no reason in his letter, which said he would quit July 7. However, he told the council that he had accepted an offer of employment with a private home building firm.

Had he stayed on, Appleton would have been number two man in the city's new community development (planning) department as zoning administrator at a salary of about $1,100 a month. He joined the city staff in 1969.

The Larkspur City Council also:

POLICE HEADQUARTERS — Awarded a $50,192 contract for construction of a relocatable building at Piper Park as new police headquarters, to James J. Menke Inc. of Corte Madera, lowest of three bidders.

LOTUS GARDENS — Approved the final map for condominium status for the 26-apartment development at Upper and Lower Via Casitas. It was the city's first such condominium conversion. The owner will pay the city nearly $21,000 under Larkspur's new ordinance requiring developers to give the city recreational space or in-lieu fees.

GENERAL PLAN — Set. Aug. 9 for a joint meeting with the planning commission for review of the countywide preliminary plan.

SIGN — Said that the Tamalpais retirement center residents who wrote asking for a directional sign to their high-rise home should go through normal planning commission channel to obtain permission to put up their own sign.

DEVELOPMENT TAX — Formally adopted a new property development tax to finance planning functions. The fee on new building in subdivisions will be $75 for a one-bedroom dwelling; $25 for each additional bedroom, and 1.5 cents per square foot on commercial structures. The vote was 4-1 with Councilman Neil R. Brixon opposed.

Two Retired Judges To Sit In Marin

To help fill the void caused by the retirement of Superior Court Judge Thomas F. Keating two visiting judges from rural counties have been assigned to the Marin courts.

Presiding Judge Henry J. Broderick said retired Judge Vernon Stoll from Nevada City will sit in Marin Superior Court next week.

He will be followed by retired Judge Robert D. Carter from Stanislaus County for the month of July, according to Broderick.

The judge shortage is complicated by the vacation of Judge Joseph G. Wilson, but Gov. Ronald Reagan's office said an appointment to fill Keating's seat may not come until next week. No reason has been given for the delay.

Man Bound Over In Stolen Property Case

Charles Wilson, 22, of Fairfax was bound over yesterday to Marin Superior Court on two counts of having stolen property and one of burglary, but charges against his wife were dismissed by a municipal court judge.

Judge David R. Baty ruled the district attorney had insufficient evidence to try Pamela Mae Wilson, 20, who is now serving a jail term for two felony counts of forging checks.

The two were arrested April 27 in their car after a neighbor told Fairfax police she saw Wilson load a television set she thought was hers into his car.

Police said they found a stereo system and a television set in the car stolen from a San Anselmo home.

Wilson also is charged with having property taken in a burglary April 10 in Fairfax.

Outside Income On Welfare Roles

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A state study shows that 10 per cent of welfare recipients who earn wages made an average of $675 per month in addition to their aid grants.

State Social Welfare Director Robert Carleson reported Wednesday the information was contained in his department's recently completed computer check on outside income of Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) recipients during the last quarter of 1971.

To Head Boys' State

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gaddi H. Vasquez of Orange was elected Wednesday as governor of the 35th annual Boys' State Convention, a week-long student exercise in government.

McGrath Named To Study Panel

Thomas H. McGrath, president of California State College, Sonoma, has been appointed chairman of a national panel to set guidelines for a study of the collegiate press.

The study will be conducted by the American Association of State College and Universities under an $11,000 research grant from the Markle Foundation.

Thai Aid Cutoff Urged Over Dope

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Rep. Lester Wolff, D-N.Y., contends that as much as 5 tons of heroin—enough to supply the entire heroin addict population of the United States — is shipped out of Thailand each year.

The House Foreign Affairs Committee voted Wednesday to cut off all U.S. aid to Thailand until its government takes adequate steps to curb the export of opium, the product from which heroin is refined.

Wolff and Rep. Robert Steele, R-Conn., sponsored the amendment, which was attached to the $1.7 billion military assistance bill now under consideration by the committee.

THE FORMAL LOOK

Brooks, Trigere Triumph In Fall's Evening Dress

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—The long and short of it spells the trend to evening wear for fall and winter.

The short formal and the short dress are back, rivaling the floor length ballgowns that have reigned for several seasons.

Some f the most handsomely designed in both below-knee and floor lengths come from the Donald Brooks and Pauline Trigere collections, shown this week for visiting fashion reporters.

Brooks did short formals in the traditional shapes of low V or U-neck, shaped to the figure, flaring through the skirt.

Some of his "restaurant" dresses came in black wool with halter necklines. Others were black sheer wools for the body, black chiffon for the huge, dolman sleeves.

ALMOST EVERY designer in New York's Seventh Avenue (heart of the ready-to-wear industry) thinks big for the coming season. The dolman sleeves are just part of it. These are sleeves cut wide through the armhole, sometimes waist deep and all in one with the bodice. These sleeves show in coats, daytime dresses, and evening dresses.

Other routes to the big, loose look showed in caftan-like garments, the wide unfitted dresses with their fabrics floating over the body, clinging nowhere. Brooks did caftans in black chiffons and laces and, beautifully, in a short caftan formal of cut velvet in mauve toned prints.

Similar to the caftan was the copy, luxury fabric, of the loose-fitting djellabah, from Moroccan masculine costumes. One from Brooks was totally covered with black paillettes.

ONE EYE-STOPPER from Brooks was a white crepe, long dinner dress, cut with shoulder darts and dolman sleeves for a free look at the top, worn with a big triangle-shaped fichu trimmed in sable.

Brooks did several of the classic infanta formals, snugfitting bodice with deep U-throat, gathered at the waist and spilling into a very full skirt. One of these grand entrance gowns featured a black velvet top, a pale pink satin skirt.

The designer took the dolman into the glamor of evening with one dress in flame red, the chiffon top featuring the full sleeve, the skirt with feathers stitched from waist to hem. Another, with halter throat, was in the same flame red and feathered from its brief top to the floor.

TRIGERE MINGLED plenty of glitter in with a big number of basic blacks in her evening wear. She also mixed in plenty of off-beat patterns in her long formals.

One, cut on slim lines, managed to work stripes and florals together in black and white tones. Another crocheted number in varying tones of gray and white featured horizontal striping for the top, and a full, gathered skirt with plaids cut on the diagonal.

Several of her evening costumes returned the strapless to the fashion scene, with white satin bodices, snug-fitting; skirts spilling out into fullness from waistline gathers.

Dyed black fox fur turned some of her short black dresses into models that used to be trademarks of Hollywood's glamor girls. Fox banded cuffs and bordered hemlines on many. One had a wrap-around shawl bordered in fox.

Trigere continued her love affair with capes for both day and evening. The ultimate for evening was in Black Diamond mink, the skins worked against each other in a triangular pattern, center back.

THIS LONG formal gown by Pauline Trigere is cut on slim lines. The gown manages to work stripes and florals together in black and white. The Trigere collection for fall and winter was shown in New York this week.

By PAUL ANDERSON

SEATTLE (UPI) — Life isn't quite the same for Wanda Adams these days now that millions of people have seen her face on the cover of a national magazine and read the intimate details of the breakup of her 14-year marriage.

"Drop out Wife — A striking Current Phenomenon," was the headline on the cover of a recent issue of Life. Inside, the feature article told how Wanda, the mother of three, had "walked out on her family to begin a new life of her own."

Wanda Adams, 35, now lives with her 10-year-old daughter, Susan, and another woman in a large, dilapidated house across the street from a park. Her husband, Don, and their two sons, Christopher, 7, and Patrick, 6, still live in the family home.

"IT REALLY has changed my life, there's no question about that," she said of the magazine article and subsequent stories in newspapers and on radio and television. "It's really hard to have any private life at all. I feel that now I have to make an effort to live the way I want to live. I get so many requests and offers to do things."

One of the most interesting aspects of the reaction to Wanda Adams' personal story has been the lack of reaction from the women's liberation movement.

"I haven't heard anything from anybody in the movement," she said. "I guess part of it is that you just don't hear from people who support you. I've heard from lots of people who aren't necessarily in the movement. But I haven't heard from feminists."

ALTHOUGH SHE has enjoyed the opportunity to reach such a large audience with her views, the "Dropout Wife" said she now realizes the drawbacks of fame and can understand what celebrities mean when they talk about a lack of privacy.

"Sometimes when I go into a store to buy something I'll notice that the checker or clerk will go off and point me out to someone else. It doesn't always happen but I feel people are looking at me. People sometimes just come up to me and start talking.

"The other thing is that I get telephone calls from people who have read the article. They think they know me from reading that article because it was personal. But they don't seem to remember that I don't know them.

"Another thing is that I get so much hate mail and obscene phone calls that you get to the point where you're afraid to open the mail or afraid to open the door. People just come to the house. Not necesaarily people who are against you, but people who just want to see who you are. It's been really weird."

REACTION TO the article has taken many forms, including a petition drive to have her fired from her job as family life instructor at North Seattle Community College.

Partly because of the controversy, she said she was considering leaving her job of training day care workers when the government contract financing the program expires in the fall.

She said she might accept an offer to go on a lecture tour and to use the proceeds from the lectures to open her own school or day care center.

"The biggest problem for me right now is that I'm just feeling inundated with everything," she said. "It's been too much. I've had too many negative comments and people asking for things, even just my time. Everybody has got just so much within them. You can just give and give and give until there is nothing left of you.

GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

Note To Braggart Backfires, So Now Three Girls Are In Trouble

DEAR RAP:

A friend of mine is a big bragger. She lies to shock people —like saying she uses dope every weekend and can get it any time from her "boyfriend" (who we never see, incidentally.)

I figured I'd "catch" her, so I wrote her a note saying, "How about you getting us a six-pack and some grass and we'll hve a party Saturday night?" I signed it with my name and Tracy's (my best friend).

As expected, she sent my note back with a dumb excuse written on the bottom. So Tracy and I had a good laugh.

But wouldn't you know? Mom was looking through my books and she came across the note. She called Tracy's mother and we're in trouble. They're going to get in touch with Donna's mom, too. (Donna's the bragger.)

The way it looks now we'll all be grounded this summer or anyway watched like hawks — all because of a joke. We aren't dopers.

Help. — INNOCENT TWO

INNOCENT:

If all three of you —plus some friends who know the story — tell it to your parents straight, they'll probably believe you — unless they've got other reasons for distrust.

Good luck to Donna — she needs it more than you two do. — SUE

DEAR TWO:

I think Donna has her values scrambled — and perhaps this "discovery" will do her more good than harm. When a girl lies to downgrade her reputation, she may be wishing it were so, as this is her only route to acceptance.

She needs friendship, not tricks that make her look ridiculous. — HELEN

HELEN AND SUE:

I can't take any more. I used to lie about my scars and bruises. I was ashamed and couldn't let people know.

I finally told my father if he beat me again I'd go to the welfare agency, and he said I'd be sorry and then he knocked me across the room. Now I'm scared. What if they made me go back home after I talked to them?

I told my girlfriend how I got the burn. I left the iron on and he put it against my arm to teach me. When my friend's mother saw the black and blue marks and old scars from other beatings, she said I could come and live with them and she'd make the complaint against my parents, but I don't want her to be in danger. My father has a wild temper.

The only way is to run off, but I'm just 14 and where would I go? I'm not an angel and I can't help hating my parents. But I'm not a devil either, though my father tries to beat the hell out of me. My mother hits too — but not as hard.

Please change this so they won't know I'm writing, and tell me what to do. — CALL ME "ALMOST RUNAWAY"

DEAR A.R.:

The child welfare agency in your town assures us you will receive protection, counseling, and care in a good foster home, if one is indicated. Don't let fear of your father's rages keep you from seeking help there.

A child-beater is often a coward: he won't cause trouble when he knows further cruelties of the type you describe may land him in jail. — HELEN AND SUE

RAP:

Somebody in your column mentioned that Japanese people wear face masks in crowds to protect the wearer from catching cold. Correction: The Japanese, being fine, polite and considerate folks, wear masks when they have colds, to protect others. — B.V.

(Got a problem? Or a subject for discussion, two-generation style? Direct your questions to either Sue or Helen Bottel — or both, in care of the Independent-Journal, if you want a combination mother-daughter answer.)

PARENT AND CHILD

Mother, Father And P-TA

By CYNTHIA PARSONS
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

Traditionally, parents have played a subservient role in the Parent-Teacher Association. Not subservient in an organizational sense — they have often held all official positions — but subservient regarding purpose.

It has been the P-TA which put floodlights on outdoor basketball courts, provided teachers' lounges with refrigerators and paid for curtains transforming the gymnasium into a theater.

While all this is well and good, it also has some "not-so-good" results. Those very people who should be involved in decision-making in the schools — the parents — are too involved in peripheral activities to get into the meat of the school program.

Teaching methods, the varieties of choice open to students, curriculum thrusts, administrative structure and staff training are more important than playground floodlights and stage curtains. The original purpose of parent and teacher organizations was to provide a forum, or congress, where parents and school authorities could come together to decide school program and focus.

BUT OVER the years an artificial split has come and most school decisions are made by school authorities, generally excluding the teachers, without entering first into debate and discussion with parents. Strangely enough, the split has occurred at the same time that parents, on the average, have had more and more years of schooling themselves.

For example, in many suburbs the average years of professional education beyond high school for parents is often equal to or greater than that of the local teaching staff. Yet those professionally educated parents seldom exercise their right to be a part of the decision-making process in the local public schools.

This is changing. Tampa is a case in point. Many of the parents in that Florida city are visiting schools and meeting to discuss local problems. They keep in touch with school authorities. Even parents without college degrees are discovering that they have a lot to offer.

Tampa parents, black and white, have had a great deal to do with the schools this year following a court order for an 80 per cent white, 20 per cent black integration program.

MORE SENSITIVE Tampa school authorities have welcomed the new sense of concern by Tampa parents. They are sharing with them their reasons for trying or not trying innovations. A former P-TA member, now a school board member, is delighted that the Tampa P-TA is getting out of "housekeeping" and into school programs.

There are those, of course, who argue that parents should not be part of the decision-making process in the schools. After all, one argument goes, local taxpayers don't tell the fire or police departments how to run their operations.

But all parent-teacher organizations were born on the notion that educating young people is a cooperative venture between the home and local social organizations. And that it is this very cooperation which is essential if schools are to succeed. And the wider and deeper the parent involvement, the more successful the local schools.

Making A Life In A New Community

Women with school age children make better and faster social integration into a new community that women with no children or young or grown children, according to Dr. Ronald J. McAllister, professor of urban studies at the University of California at Riverside.

Social interaction is at a peak during the first six months after relocation, then drops off sharply until about the third year when it gradually begins to rise again but never regains the initial intesity, the professor said.

Pockets Are Put To Very Good Use

"There is so little room in pants these days, and there are those times when you don't want to carry a purse or handbag," Milton Farquhar told Women's Wear Daily.

So Farquhar designed pockets. Pockets that are small, though large enough for a couple of dollars, some change or a credit card. The leather pockets come in a variety of bright colors, are handstitched and tuck into belts, sleeves, cuffs or necklines.

DOMESTIC AFFAIRS

Key White House Role For Marinite

By MARGUERITE DAVIS

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Douglas Hallet has just turned 23 and already has made it to the White House —as one of the youngest persons to serve on a presidential staff.

He works in the office of Charles W. Colson, one of President Nixon's chief domestic advisers. Hallet is concerned, therefore, primarily (although not wholly) with domestic issues.

"Some of the projects we handle have to be done quickly for the President, special projects like congressional debate on Vietnam, or the campaign financing law, or the ITT case," Hallet said in interview with UPI.

"Then if the President decides he's not getting all the information he needs on special projects, like Spanish-speaking people or labor groups, youth or the elderly, we have to come up with suggestions for these."

But young Hallet adds, "I do a good bit of writing, drafting speeches and articles for Cabinet officers and the vice President."

It's hard work, he said. He arrives at his small office in the Old Executive Office Building—next to the White House—about 7:30 a.m. and says he rarely leaves before 7:30 p.m.

"We do work very hard here, because the President does," he said.

Hallet graduated fom Yale a year ago and had planned to go immediately to Harvard Law School. He decided to defer the law when he was offeed a position on the White House Staff.

He believes he may have attracted President Nixon's attention by a dispatch he wrote for the Wall Street Journal on a summer job because "he mentioned it at a press conference."

Hallet said he never has wavered in his political allegiance: "I've been a Republican all along, because it seems to me to be the party more likely to be libertarian."

His family does not present a united political front, however.

His father, an Episcopal clergyman in Ross, voted for Nixon in 1968 "but with not much enthusiasm."

"My parents had grave reservations about the war," he said, but reported they now are beginning to support Nixon more wholeheartedly.

Not his brothers. One is a conscientious objector, he said, and the other opposes the President.

Hallet's own confidence in Nixon is strong.

"The President promised to end the war responsibly, and I think he's doing that," Hallet said. "The President also indicated we should and will assist the Vietnamese in restoring their countries."

On the question of amnesty for draft evaders and deserters, Hallet, who is exempt from military service because of a heart condition, said that cannot be meaningfully determined while American troops still are involved in the war.

Hallet plans to resume his education in September, 1973, but he does not look forward to ending his White House experience.

Faculty-Choosing Issue: Hot Potato

By LARRY MOWELL

After wrestling for 90 minutes with the hot issue of involving students in the selection of teachers, the Marin Community College District board decided last night it didn't want to come to grips with the matter after all.

The board first wondered whether it shouldn't send the policy proposal, which has split the college community, back to the committee system for a possible consensus.

Rejecting that, it launched into a philosophical discussion of the threat to academic freedom and the representativeness of student government.

Then the board swung full circle, voting unanimously to send the issue back to faculty and students until November after trustee Robert E. Oliver noted that no teachers would be hired before then, anyway.

At issue was a plan to place two students on the five-man faculty selection committee for each department. They would be appointed by the student government.

Dr. John A. Grasham, superintendent and president, called it "a policy on which there is simply no unanimity of opinion." Faculty oppose it and students back it.

He recommended approving the policy because students "have proved to me that they can make a significant contribution to the selection process." Students already participate in picking administrators.

But trustee Charles W. Gray countered, "God and John Grasham forgive me. Teachers are more important."

He said that, despite the "goodwill and heightened sense of responsibility" of students, giving them votes in picking teachers "would be the most dangerous threat to academic freedom that you could possibly construct."

He was joined by president Donald K. Felt in opposing giving the vote to a group "that is as unrepresentative as the associated students."

Trustee Martin J. Dean said they should participate in interviewing, but not voting.

Felt said he was disturbed at the "depth of division" created by the plan which has recently received intense opposition from staff members who didn't participate in committee hearings.

Administration Jobs Created Over Pleas

Despite the pleas of blacks and teachers, the Marin Community College District board last night created a part-time ethnic studies coordinator and director of work experience and assigned them to two vacant teaching slots.

Faculty and students favored creating the two new jobs on top of filling three teaching vacancies with full-time teachers. "One of the things we need on this campus is teachers. Now you are talking about filling these slots with administrators," objected Samuel Schwartz, head of the political science department.

However, Dr. John A. Grasham, superintendent and president, said it would cost $174,000 over five years to create two new jobs in addition to filling existing openings.

Board member Robert E. Oliver said he favored the posts, "but unfortunately we come up against the reality of economics."

Grasham's economic compromise was to give the coordinator for minorities programs nine hours of teaching a week and six hours time each week to start the program and to give the work experience coordinator, now paid with a federal grant, partial teaching duties.

After an hour of discussion with the audience of almost 50 persons, the board agreed with Grasham, but Oliver conceded to blacks holding out for a full-time coordinator, "It is going to take pretty much of a superman to do the job."

Passenger Hurt In Auto Crash

Margine Clark, 62, of 901 Madison Street, Petaluma, was treated at Hillcrest Hospital for neck and chest pains after a three-car accident yesterday at 7:55 p.m. on Madison near Payran Street, Petaluma.

Mrs. Clark was a passenger in a car driven by her husband, Ralph E. Clark, 63. His car struck one driven by Loren V. Morelli, 19, of 1000 Morelli Vista Drive, Petaluma, who had been stopped for a traffic violation.

A car driven by Gary L. Rodgers, 21, of 109 Burlington Drive, Petaluma, struck the Clark car.

Officers said an argument occurred after the accident and Morelli struck Clark on the nose. Morelli was cited for driving without a license and driving with faulty equipment.

Skyjacker Sent To Psychiatric Unit

CHICAGO (UPI) — Everett Leary Holt, 25, Indianapolis, who was arrested after a Christmas Eve hijack attempt of an Northwest orient Airlines jetliner which put down at O'Hare Airport, was committed to a psychiatric hospital Wednesday.

U.S. District Court Judge Alexander J. Napoli ordered Holt into a federal hospital after attorneys for the prosecution and defense submitted doctor's reports saying he could not understand the charges against him and participate in his defense. Napoli said his decision did not reflect on Holt's state of mind at the time of the hijacking.

No Fireworks

After several fires recently started by fireworks, fire chiefs throughout Marin County have reminded residents that there is a county ordinance banning them in the county. This does not apply to Sonoma County where fireworks are legal.

Veteran Senator Loses Party Post

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (UPI)—Sen. Clinton P. Anderson, D-N.M., who is retiring after 24 years in office, was rebuffed Wednesday by New Mexico Democrats in his bid for a national committeeman post.

Anderson, 76, who said he wanted the national post to help bring unity to the Democratic party, was defeated by Rudy Ortiz, 42, Bernalillo County Democratic chairman and state chairman of the George McGovern campaign. Ortiz was also believed to be the first Mexican-American elected to the Democratic National Committee.

Series To Shift To New Location

Mill Valley's Candlelight Concert Series after 12 years at Brown's Hall in Mill Valley, will be presented next season in the auditorium of the Del Mar School in Tiburon, Mrs. Martin Goldschmidt, music chairman, announced today.

Dates and programs have been scheduled, and subscriptions are being sold.

The five evening concerts will be performed on Sundays at 8 p.m. and the three children's concerts will be at 2:30 p.m. on the same dates as the evening Bach-to-Mozart Group concerts.

The schedule is: Nov. 12, Francesco Trio; Jan. 21 and Feb. 25, Bach-to-Mozart evening and afternoon children's concerts; April 1, Czech Nonet Chamber Group from Prague, and April 29, Bach-to-Mozart evening and afternoon children's concerts.

The Mozart Festival, sponsored by the Homestead Valley Community association, which originally sponsored the Candlelight Series, will be held as usual on Sept. 3 in Stolte Grove near Mill Valley.

Mrs Goldschmidt said the format of the concerts will remain the same with the audience seated at candlelit tables and refreshments available before performances and at intermission. Prices will be the same.

The reason for the change in location is the imminent sale of Brown's Hall and changes in parking arrangements. Mrs. Goldschmidt said the new location will have the advantages of accommodating more people without crowding and unlimited parking facilities.

Further information and evening series subscriptions may be obtained by calling Mrs. Goldschmidt, 302 Wickham Drive, Mill Valley. Information and subscriptions to the children's series are available by calling Mrs. Ursula Davidson, 124 Linden Lane, San Rafael.

Bagley's Amendments On Voter Margin Are Shelved

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A legislative committee has shelved constitutional amendments which would cut from two-thirds to a simple majority the voter margin needed to approve local bond issues and extend state school aid to private schools.

The amendments, ACA 69 and 70 by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, were dropped by the Assembly Revenue and Taxation Committee without a hearing. Opponents included the California Teachers Association, which objected to extending school aid to private schools, Bagley's office said.

Two other bills by the assemblyman, one virtually eliminating bail for misdemeanors and another reimbursing prison guards for losses when reassigned to another prison, also have been iced for this legislative session.

The bail reform bill, AB 1065, was opposed by bail bondsmen, California Peace Officers Association and insurance industry that writes bail bonds, Bagley's staff reported. There were enough votes to get the bill out of the Assembly Criminal Justice Committee, but it would have lost on the lower house floor, the staff said.

The prison guard bill, AB 1064, was opposed in the Assembly Employment and Public Employees Committee by the state Finance Department. Corrections officers now are entitled to reimbursement for direct moving costs, but Bagley's measure would have provided payment also for losses such as those on a home sold below its market value.

The bill was introduced to meet the problems of guards at San Quentin Prison, slated by the Reagan administration to close by the end of 1974.

Same Treatment For FBI Women

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The new acting director of the FBI says women who qualify to become FBI agents will get no special treatment.

"There will be no 'limited duty' women agents," L. Patrick Gray III said Tuesday, adding that he is quite serious about opening the bureau's doors to women.

"We hope they will be able to meet our qualifications, pass our training courses and become regular fulltime agents that can make a valuable contribution," Gray told a news conference here while on a tour of FBI field offices.

Behr Halts Sports Tax Legislation

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Bills to tax gate receipts from professional sports events and to permit offtrack betting at county fairs have been dropped without hearing by their author, Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael.

Both bills, SB 1179 and 1180 respectively, were asked by the Marin County Board of Supervisors. Both aroused considerable opposition and "had no future," the senator's office reported.

The sports tax would have financed a new fund to buy open space, raising more than $3 million a year. Behr initially opposed the bill, but then introduced it.

The offtrack betting bill would allow a horserace betting concession at county fairs such as Marin's, which do not pave their own track. The supervisors said it would provide needed revenue.

Fuel Dock Legislation Is Defeated

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A bill to remove the coming sales tax on motor vehicle fuel sold at a marina or marine fuel dock for use in vessels has been killed.

The bill, AB 319 by Assemblyman Robert E. Badham, R-Newport Beach, was killed by the Assembly Revenue and Taxation Committee after it was opposed by the Department of Finance. The committee's staff also criticized the bill, arguing a special exemption for vessel owners was not justified.

Boat Owners Associated Together, an organization of California boat owners, sponsored the bill in the wake of a 1971 state law which imposed 5 per cent tax on all gasoline sales. The revenue is to be earmarked for transit.

The tax will be levied as of July 1.

Recreational boating is not related to land transportation problems, BOAT argued. The 1971 law excepted aircraft fuel from the sales tax, the organization noted.

DALLAS (UPI) — Edward Nixon, President Nixon's brother, was booed off the stage Wednesday at the 39th quadrennial session of the general conference of the African Methodist-Episcopal Church (AME).

Several ministers jumped on the stage and said they did not want Nixon to speak. Nixon left the auditorium by the back door, saying he had a plane to catch.

FBI Finds 135 Stolen Snakes

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) —The FBI caught an alleged snake-napper Wednesday.

Agents took into custody Keith Dorge and retrieved more than 135 rare snakes valued in excess of $5,000, the FBI said. Dorge, 39, was arrested at his home.

Most of the snakes were believed stolen Friday fom the southwest research station in Portal, Ariz., of the American Museum of Natural History. Other snakes were identifed as coming from burglaries in Texas, the FBI said.

The FBI did not say why Dorge wanted all those snakes.

2 Sausalito Postal Officials Retiring

Between them the two men, both native Sausalitans, have a total of 60 years of postal service in the community.

The 58-year-old Medeiros went to work in the Sausalito Post Office in June 1937 when the facility was located on Princess Street. He has been there ever since, except for four years of military service and a brief stint in Marin City.

When the postmaster began as a mail carrier and special delivery messenger, Sausalito only had seven postal employees, two routes and about 2,500 persons.

During his employment, Medeiros has watched the city's population grow to 6,500 and the local office expand to 35 employees and 12 routes. The office has moved twice during his tenure, first to El Portal and then, in 1959, to its present location at 1050 Bridgeway.

After serving with the Army's coastal artillery in Alaska during World War II, Medeiros returned to Sausalito as a postal clerk, then was transferred to Marin City as superintendent of that postal station until it closed in 1948.

He was named superintendent of mails in the early 50s and postmaster in 1965.

Medeiros, who resides at 160 Filbert Street with his wife, Samantha, is the father of three children. He is a member of the Star of the Sea's Men's Club, treasurer for the Sausalito Parlor of Native Sons of the Golden West and the IDESST and a past president of the Cabrillo Club.

Shine, 55, has been with the Sausalito office since September 1941, when he began as a substitute clerk-carrier. He has held his present post since 1968.

The superintendent of mails and his wife, Ruth, reside in Fairfax. The couple has two children.

Until a new postmaster is appointed, John W. Bell, former superintendent of mails for the Novato Post Offfice, will serve as officer in charge of the Sausalito postal operation.

The 39-year-old Bell has been with the postal service 20 years.

He is a native of San Rafael.

Bell and his wife, Audrey, have three daughters and reside in Novato at 1822 Indian Valley Road.

Hearing Set In Theft Case

A preliminary hearing for James Ray Rhoades, 32, of no known address on an attempted burglary charge has been set for Tuesday in Marin Municipal Court.

Rhoades, who said he was Guy Edward Powel when arrested, was booked into county jail by Novato police June 14 after they found him on the roof of Max's Saw Service, 707 Grant Avenue.

Deputy Dist. Atty. John D. Posey said Rhoades was trying to open a skylight when police responded to a report from a citizen who saw a suspicious car in the area.

Shuttle Buses Will Run For Senior Jubilee

Free shuttle buses carrying seniors to the Senior Citizens Jubilee in the Corte Madera Center Saturday will begin running at 10 a.m., according to the Senior Coordinating Council in San Rafael.

Registration for exhibits in the show will be from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m., and judging begins at 11 a.m. Awards to the winners will be made at 1 p.m.

The old time variety and fashion show begins in the mall at 2 p.m. and the festivities are scheduled to end at about 6:30 p.m.

The free buses will run from all Marin locations and seniors may obtain information on pick-up from the council.

Diesel Buses Out Of Favor

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— After a two-year study, the San Francisco Municipal Railway has recommended that diesel powered buses be dropped in favor of electrically operated vehicles.

Electric buses, according to a 42-page report issued Wednesday, would be "both pollution free and as nearly silent as possible."

The report summarized an 18-month experiment with General Motors' environmental improvement program kit. The kit was designed to cut bus exhaust and noise, but the test failed, the report said.

Budget Is Studied, But Not Cut

The Fairfax City Council last night managed only to wade through portions of two departments' part of a proposed $727,113 budget for 1972-73 and did not cut any items from the spending program.

The council approved the proposed budget for the building department of $3,274 for materials and $735 for capital outlay, according to City Adm. Robert E. Crowe.

The council wanted morz information about requested recording equipment for the police department, he said, but approved other items in the department's proposed budget for materials, supplies and services as well as capital outlay. These two categories total $39,423.

No discussion of salaries for any department has yet taken place, Crowe said, as the council plans to take all wages up last.

The council has scheduled another budget session at 8 p.m. Monday in the Fairfax Women's Club.

Novato Council Approves Wage Increases For City Workers

The Novato City Council tentatively approved pay raises ranging from 2.5 to 7.5 per cent for employees, not including department heads, during a public hearing last night on a preliminary $2,831,530 budget for 1972-73.

Tentative approval came on a 4-1 vote with Councilman George C. Quesada dissenting because the council didn't have "a total package" including a recommendation on salaries for department heads.

City Mgr. Charles A. Brown estimated that the raises would add $47,000 to $50,000 to the cost of government.

The preliminary budget didn't carry a recommendation on pay raises but had $58,000 in reserve which could be used to cover pay increases.

Brown presented the pay raises as the joint recommendation from him and the Novato City Employees Association with whom he has been negotiating as the council's representative.

The recommendation was for 5 per cent raises for police, clerical workers, maintenance workers, planning technician, junior planner, recreation supervisor, engineering technicians I and II, junior and assistant civil engineers, and police clerk-dispatcher.

A 2.5 per cent raise was recommended for accounting personnel and custodians, and a 7.5 per cent raise for senior planner, building inspector, chief building inspector, associate civil engineer and assistant city engineer.

The employees association and Brown also recommended that the city have a salary survey of part-time positions by Jan. 1, 1973. Disability insurance benefits are still under discussion, Brown reported.

Salary recommendations on department heads, public works maintenance superintendent, city manager and administrative assistant are yet to be made, Brown reported.

Apology Over Book To Chavez

EDINBURG, Tex. (UPI)—Pan American University President Ralph Schilling apologized to Cesar Chavez Wednesday for a picture and caption in the school's yearbook which many students said was an insult to the Farm Workers Union leader.

Editors said the quote was lifted from a poem in some accompanying copy and the connection was accidental. However, 170 students returned their yearbooks, saying the page was offensive.

Novato Council Park Ruling Delay

By FRANK FARRARA

Parks and recreation commissioners renewed their plea for funds toward acquisition of the O'Hair property for a community park last night, but the Novato City Council postponed a decision until Tuesday.

Commissioners urged that the city put $100,000 in its capital improvement budget toward purchase of the 67-acre site at Sutro Avenue and Novato Boulevard.

The plea came during a two-hour public hearing on the city's proposed preliminary budget of $2,831,500 for 1972-73, which has been estimated to require an increase of one cent on the city rate to 96 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Dr. John D. Kassenbrock, a commissioner, said the commission believed "acquisition of a major park site or tying up enough to be meaningful was the most important thing."

Councilman Fred F. Ruegg said he was disturbed that the commission had recommended a capital improvements budget that was $51,000 higher than the $100,000 recommended by City Mgr. Charles A. Brown.

A large community park "would be desirable if we had the money, but I don't see the time Novato will have the money," Ruegg said.

Regarding purchase of the O'Hair site, estimated at $500,000, Betty Machado of 1424 Dawes Street suggested that the matter "go back to the voters in November."

(A bond measure including $600,000 for purchase of the O'Hair site failed to gain a needed two-thirds majority at the polls in 1970.)

Brown had recommended $67,000 for park land acquisition, not specifically the O'Hair site, and Councilman David Price Jones suggested that half of that amount could be earmarked for the O'Hair property.

Jean Irvin of the San Marin High School Parent-Faculty Club reported that 551 persons had signed a petition for a pool at the high school site if the city isn't going to have a pool at the O'Hair site.

The commissioners also recommended $20,500 for improvements at the Olive School park site, $11,000 for the Marion School playground and $20,000 for development of a neighborhood park at Lynwood School.

The council also heard protests against a proposed cutback in the Center Road improvement project.

The project originally was planned to extend from Lu Sutton School to Wilson Road, but after protests from nine owners in the center of that stretch it was reduced to extend from Wilson Avenue to just past Margery Court.

Alfred Rivasplata, principal of Lu Sutton School, described the traffic situation as "really dangerous" to pupils and urged the council to fund the entire project.

"After all," he said, "what is more important, the life of one child or dollars and cents?"

Also proposed is cutting back the Tamalpais Road improvement project to include only construction of a new bridge over Warner Creek.

The council postponed action on the road project allocations until Tuesday.

Action also was deferred until Tuesday on a recommendation from the San Marin Improvement Association that the city assume maintenance of traffic islands along San Marin Drive at a cost estimated at $13,400 a year.

Other matters unsettled were whether the allocation to the Novato Chamber of Commerce should be increased from $8,000 to $11,500 a year, and whether the city should allocate $4,000 to the Marin Museum Association.

The council voted 3-2 to cut $5,000 from the $13,000 proposed for consultants for an environmental study by the planning department. Sartain and David Price Jones dissented.

The Marin Builders Exchange, Plumbing, Heating, Cooling Contractors Association, Locke Plumbing Co. and the Redwood Empire Building Industry Association requested hiring an additional full-time building inspector.

Councilmen agreed to include $8,500 in the budget for the job to be filled if the city couldn't find a suitable part-time inspector.

Mrs. Machado proposed that the city ask the Golden Gate Bridge District to provide bus shelters in the city, and investigate the possibility of using the services of the county counsel's office instead of retaining a city attorney.

Brown reported that during eight budget sessions, the council had cut $7,150 from the proposed budget and added $6,440, for an overall reduction of $710.

The preliminary budget is scheduled to be adopted Tuesday, with the council to have a budget review meeting at 8 p.m. Monday at the Novato Community House.

The council adjourned until 8 p.m. today for a public hearing on the housing element for the Novato Area General Plan at the Novato Community House.

Nader Is Denied A Chinese Visa

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Premier Chou En-lai may be able to eat Peking duck with President Nixon, but China is not yet ready for a visit from consumer advocate Ralph Nader.

The Peoples Republic of China won't give Nader, who speaks Chinese, a visa to travel in China as a tourist, UPI has learned.

For a year, Nader dunned Chinese officials with his request. He even wrote directly to Chou but got no reply.

But he did find that Chinese bureaucrats apparently do not differ very much from their western counterparts.

In reply to one of his petitions, Nader got this reply:

"Your letter received, the contents of which has been passed to the authorities concerned, and you will hear from them should they have a reply for you."

New Novato Panel Picks New Slate

Stockwell, a lithographer, formerly finance chairman of the Novato Advisory Board of the Economic Opportunity Council, was elected at a recent meeting of the newly formed nine-member board.

L. Charles Smith, Marin County Youth Coordinator, was elected vice chairman; Rev. Eugene Quinones of Our Lady of Loretto Church, treasurer, and Geoffrey J. Bywater, Novato Parks and Recreation commissioner, secretary.

The board urged employers seeking help and young people seeking summer jobs to register at the center, 1200 Grant Avenue. Youths 15 to 18 years of age will be referred to the Novato Youth Employment Agency, according to John Telfer, center director.

Carson's Wife Is Granted A Divorce

NEW YORK (UPI)—Joanne Carson, saying her entertainer husband Johnny Carson had changed the locks on their apartment to keep her away, was granted an uncontested divorce Wednesday on grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment.

"I had a talk with my husband and he told me he no longer wanted to live with me and to cohabit with me and that he wanted a divorce," she told the court. She wept and answered softly "yes" when asked, "Have you been a good wife to him?"

Drug Bureau, Jail Farm In Doubt

The fate of the sheriff's drug abuse bureau and proposed honor farm for jail inmates remained in question today following a deadlock by Marin supervisors yesterday on funding. (Another supervisors story, page 1)

As it stands, however, proposed spending programs for the two items remain a part of the proposed $47.4 million budget despite the 2-2 votes by the board.

With Supervisor John F. McInnis absent due to ill health, the remaining four supervisors found themselves sharply divided over the need for the honor farm and drug bureau.

While supervisors Louis H. Baar and Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. fought for funding of the drug bureau and against the honor farm, the reverse stand was taken by supervisors Michael Wornum and Arnold M. Baptiste.

Their divided positions raise the possibility of entering fiscal 1972-73 on July 1 without a budget, since by law three affirmative votes are required to approve the final budget.

Spending programs for the sheriff's requests remain frozen in the proposed budget because the board on County Administrator John F. Barrows's advice in May "adopted" the preliminary document instead of simply "accepting" it for review as in years past. In adopting the document, the board took a legal action that requires a majority vote to make subsequent changes.

The proposed honor farm, which both Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos and Barrows support, has been under consideration by the board since early this year.

Arrigoni, who has voiced support for the $210,000 minimum security facility in the past, joined Baar yesterday in a move to scrap it as a means of reducing the tax rate.

Arrigoni told the Independent-Journal after the hearing he would have gone for the expenditure if his fellow supervisors hadn't approved $60,000 for expansion of Gnoss Field and $89,000 extra for fairgrounds improvement — both of which he said were of low priority.

In discussion of the facility, which would serve about 40 trusties and relieve weekend crowding at the county jail, several members of the small audience voiced opposition.

Winifred S. Frederick of Irate Taxpayers of Marin, Birdie Schneider of Sleepy Hollow and Donald Van Dyke of the Marin County Taxpayers Association all questioned the expenditure.

They said they supported continuing the program of transporting excess prisoners to Sonoma County jail at half the estimated $210,000 cost of the honor farm.

(About $30,000 of the total would be used to refurbish the Nike missile site in Santa Venetia and the remaining $180,000 for operating the facility with a staff of 10 employees — mostly sheriff's deputies.)

Administrative analyst Michael Chrystal said the facility could be partially staffed with a portion of the seven men to be freed from duty in Tiburon once that city takes over its own law enforcement.

Baptiste and Wornum, supported by the county grand jury, urged its adoption as a means of reducing Marin County's reliance on Sonoma County and of relieving weekend pressure at the jail.

With the split 2-2 vote, the issue remained unresolved but funding stays in the preliminary budget pending a vote tomorrow on the final document.

A similar situation involves the county's drug abuse bureau, which works cooperatively with the county's 10 police departments on major drug cases.

The bureau, which has a proposed spending program of about $100,000 for three investigators and a secretary, drew strong opposition — this time from Wornum and Baptiste.

Wornum said he considered the bureau "a cure worse than the disease," adding he was disturbed by its investigative practices which include purchasing drugs from pushers.

Wornum drew support from Baptiste, who said he favored putting drug abuse investigation under the sheriff's investigative division rather than as a separate bureau.

Baar and Arrigoni, meanwhile, drew on the county grand jury's position that to eliminate the drug bureau would amount to an "open-door policy" extended by Marin to drug dealers.

"That's a scare tactic," said Baptiste.

"That's not a scare tactic," replied Baar, "that's a fact of life."

Arrigoni relinquished his chairman's gavel to second Baar's motion supporting the bureau at reduced staffing (three investigators instead of four). The vote ended in a 2-2 deadlock.

In action which found the supervisors in basic agreement, the board agreed unanimously to beef up sheriff's patrols — primarily in West Marin.

Six deputies were added to the patrol division with three slated for West Marin where, in the past, "resident deputies" have provided police protection. The six deputies are not new hiring, but include three men released from duty in Tiburon and three from a reduction in the security force at the Civic Center.

The board decided, however, to eliminate the eight "resident deputies" and instead put them as well as the three added men on regular eight-hour shifts.

(Resident deputies have been used for years in West Marin and received a housing allowance and individual vehicle. Besides working an eight-hour shift, the deputies were on call 24 hours a day, five days a week.)

Mountanos and Capt. Harvey Teague, who heads the sheriff's patrol division, told the board it was economically unfeasible to continue with resident deputies. They said the increasing number of calls and subsequent overtime made it advisable to begin "regular service" to the county's rural areas.

The added deputies were largely responsible for an overall $75,000 increase in the sheriff's department's recommended $3.2 million allocation.

The increase brought the projected tax rate to $2.75 per $100 assessed valuation, only 1.5 cents lower than before budget cutting began six days ago.

On other matters considered yesterday, the board approved a county jail request of $776,000 (up $85,000 from this year); a sheriff's administration request of $104,000 (up $5,000); a civil division request of $222,000 (up $25,000) and an investigative division request of $332,000 (up $20,000).

Tiburon Man Named To Schools Panel

Leo Souza of Tiburon, a Reed School District trustee, was appointed to the Marin County Committee on School District Organization last night to fill a vacancy created by the resignation of David D. Ring.

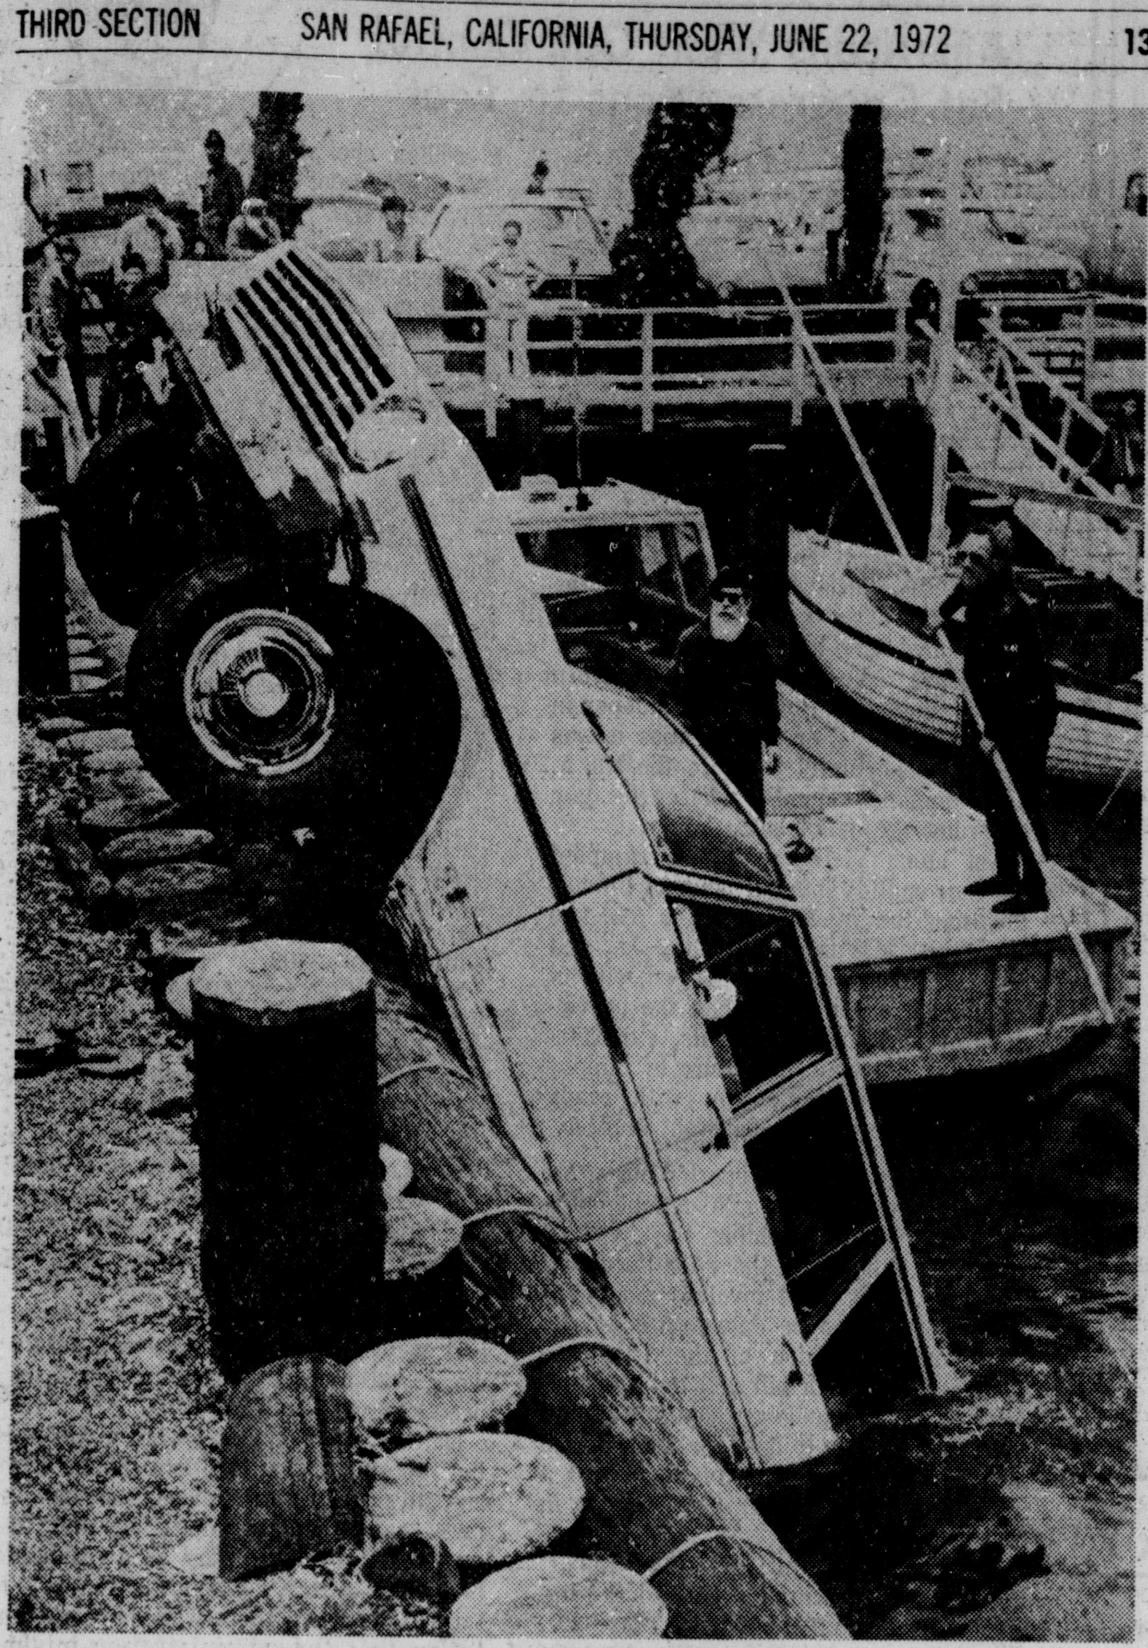
Souza was one of two candidates for the position, according to Robert E. Spain, assistant secretary of the committee. The other nominee was Betty Rogers, nominated by Barbara Harris, a board member of the Sausalito School District.

Benefit Set Despite Ruling

Despite rulings from city officials that it may not be held, a benefit for Sausalito's "Suspicious Humanist" literary magazine will be held at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the Poop Deck restaurant on Bridgeway.

The event will include classical music and singing and poetry reading, according to poet Milton Weiner, publisher of the magazine.

Weiner said city officials, who disapproved the benefit because of city regulations on live entertainment in restaurants, have been invited to read city ordinances to musical accompaniment.



A BIT WATERLOGGED

A car belonging to Grace Nelson, 62, of Mill Valley, is pulled from the water at the Sausalito Yacht Harbor, after rolling over a five-foot bulkhead. Police said Mrs. Nelson parked the car in the parking lot yesterday morning, apparently thinking the brakes would hold. The vehicle received major damage, they said.

Firm Asks $20,000 Deposit Returned

An Oakland development firm — whose plans to build 400 or more apartments on the Marin Town and Country Club property were thwarted by Fairfax residents — wants its deposit back from the club owner.

The company, Kaiser Aetna, filed suit yesterday in Marin Superior Court describing a purchase agreement made in March 1971 with club owner Max Friedman for purchase of the 23.5 acre site.

The suit said that the developers had given Friedman a $20,000 deposit which was to be returned if the company could not get a permit from city officials within 180 days to build 400 or more units.

According to the agreement, Kaiser Aetna was to have used "resonable diligence" in pursuing such a permit or Friedman could keep the deposit.

The firm now wants a judge to decide whether such diligence was used.

Reports of Kaiser Aetna's planned development brought opposition by a group of Fairfax citizens who organized into a committee aimed at having the property rezoned to prevent its use for residential purpsoes.

When the city council refused to rezone the property, the committee managed to get the measure on the April ballot and citizens voted more than 2 to 1 to rezone it commercial-recreation, blocking the development plans.

Friedman had announced earlier that the country club, which features picnic areas, swimming pools and other recreation activities, would be open to the public again this summer.

Permit For Ferry Is Extended

The Golden Gate Bridge District received the approval of the Sausalito Planning Commission last night in its bid for a 90-day extension of its conditional use permit to operate a ferry in the city. (See page 1 for story on ferry construction bids.)

Commission chairman Robert L. Nissen said the planners' recommendations will now be forwarded to the city council.

The bridge district had sought the extension because it had not yet completed plans, and had them approved by the council, for terminal facilities.

Completing plans for the terminals is one of the conditions of the use permit.

The commission set an adjourned meeting for 8 p.m. Tuesday in city hall to consider whether 160 acres of Wolfback Ridge should be included among properties the city hopes to retain in open space or allowed to be developed.

Owners Edward R. Fitzsimmons and Frank Lynch have been trying to develop a subdivision on the land for the past two years.

But in April the city council declared a one-year moratorium on all new subdivisions before the Wolfback Ridge developers had obtained final approval for their project.

At the same time the council asked the city staff to inventory open space remaining in the city to determine which undeveloped land the city should attempt to purchase or obtain in other ways for open space.

The staff has completed its study on Wolfback Ridge even though the entire survey is still unfinished.

Off-Duty Quentin Guard Shot At, Returns Fire

An off-duty San Quentin guard was shot at while returning home today and returned the gunfire, possibly injuring his assailant.

According to San Rafael police, guard Ronald Gordon Brown, 30, said he was driving along Lincoln Avenue at about 3:40 a.m. when he saw a man in the driveway of the Colonial Motel at 1732 Lincoln Avenue. The man dove to the ground and fired two shots at him, Brown reported.

One shot went through the right wing window, in front of Brown's face and out the open left window. Police still had not found either of the two bullets.

According to police, Brown said he dropped to the floor of his car and drew his Browning automatic pistol from under the seat, then got out of the car and fired nine shots at his assailant who turned and fled, falling once.

Brown's assailant was last seen in a grassy area behind the motel

Brown, who lives nearby, told police he thought his assailant was lying in wait for him and that because he fell as he ran, he may have been hit.

Several residents of the area were awakened by the shots, police reported.

Jumper Reported Off Gate Bridge

A senior research physicist at the Stanford Research Institute is believed to have leaped to his death yesterday from the Golden Gate Bridge yesterday, the California Highway Patrol reported today.

The man, John H. Munson, of Menlo Park, was last seen by bridge employees on the east walkway near the south tower of the bridge at 4:30 p.m. His car, personal property, and two 11-page personal notes were found near the scene.

Woman Reports Attack Made

A 20-year-old San Franciscan hitchhiking to West Marin with her young daughter was raped Monday by a man who gave her a ride in his motorized mobile home, sheriff's deputies said yesterday.

Deputies said the woman and her 3-year-old daughter were picked up in San Francisco and driven to the 600 block of Bolinas Road just outside Fairfax where the driver pulled over to feed his 2-year-old son, then forced the woman into the vehicle's bathroom and raped her.

She told deputies the man then drove her into downtown Fairfax and released her and her daughter.

She described the rapist as about 28 with blond hair and blue eyes. She said the vehicle was from Washington State and gave deputies the license number.

Couple Must Resubmit Plan

So many variances were requested by a San Francisco couple for a home they intend to build on a vacant lot on Summit Drive, Corte Madera, that the Corte Madera Board of Adjustments asked them last night to resubmit their application.

According to William G. McBride, zoning administrator, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Clifford of 4142 26th Street, San Francisco, had applied for several variances to allow construction on the small lot at 310 Summit Drive. These included covering 48 per cent of the site with construction, while the town's limit is 35 per cent.

School Board Version Of 'Public Be Damned'

Neither public protests nor county counsel opinions can jar the Marin County Board of Education from its accustomed ways.

Near the close of 1968, Mrs. Edith Kanoff of Novato, whose term was to expire the following April, resigned from the county board — thus clearing the way for appointment of a successor who could run as incumbent (as she, in turn, had been appointed).

A three-member screening committee headed by board member Patrick W. Pollock was named to select Mrs. Kanoff's replacement. The committee invited applications for the job, but refused to disclose the names of applicants.

On Jan. 7, 1969, Pollock reported the choice of the committee was James A. Swenson. The board immediately approved Swenson's appointment unanimously, and as he was ushered into the board room, a name plate with his name already inscribed on it was placed in front of the new apointee.

IT WAS ALL very prettily done, and very secretly done. Of course, the public, which is supposed to have something to say about who fills elective offices, had nothing to say at all. The board never disclosed the names of candidates it had passed over in favor of Swenson.

Swenson ran for election as incumbent the following April, and made it, for a term expiring in 1974.

Last month, however, Swenson submitted his resignation, "for business reasons."

The board appointed a three-member screening committee, headed by Patrick W. Pollock. The committee invited applications for the job, but kept the names of applicants secret.

On May 23, Pollock reported the committee had selected William L. Sisk. He was immediately appointed, unanimously. Names of other applicants were not announced.

THERE WAS ONE small fly in the smooth, smooth ointment. Some members of the public had complained about the secrecy. So Pollock asked Richard V. Godino, assistant county counsel who is legal adviser to the school department, for an opinion. Godino said the board "would be hard-pressed to justify withholding the names."

Nevertheless, the board withheld them.

Godino put his opinion in writing. After reviewing applicable laws, he wrote: "I am of the opinion that the names cannot be kept confidential."

Monday night, the board considered Godino's letter. Oh well, board members decided, it was just one man's opinion; the secret selection policy would be continued.

THIS WAS NOT really surprising. After all, Pollock got on the board by the same secret process, being appointed in 1963 with names of other candidates withheld. So did Lee C. Richardson Jr., appointed in 1965. So did Marilyn Crowell, appointed in 1969. With Sisk (and his predecessor, Swenson) that makes a majority of the board.

The board has been supported in this arrogant flouting of the public's right to know who applies for an elective office by the elective county schools superindent, Virgil S. Hollis. But that is not surprising, either. After all, the names must go through Hollis to the screening committee — and in recent years, he has always been a member of the committee himself.

Voter Unrest Reduces Advantages Of Incumbents

By EARL G. WATERS

A further warning was sounded in the June primary elections. This is an extension of the signal sent up in the April municipal elections. Like the old favorite of bass singers, "Sailor, Beware," the voters seem to be saying "many brave hearts lie asleep, incumbents take care."

In the April elections veteran city councilmen and mayors were felled like toy figures in a shooting gallery. The alarm was given added significance by the unusual number of seats which had intra-party contests in June. Almost half of the 80 Assembly districts and 16 of the 43 congressional offices found candidates vying for party nominations.

NOW THE JUNE 6 returns confirm the warnings. Two congressmen and one assemblyman bit the dust at the hands of their own party. The veteran George P. Miller of Alameda was snowed under. Miller, a Democrat, served in the Assembly in the late '30's and is completing his 28th year in Congress. His seniority in the House had made him chairman of the science and astronautics committee, a position vitally important to California. But his age, now 81, made him vulnerable as a target for the young and to those who constantly clamor that it is time for a change.

In Orange County the Republicans turned out the ultra conservative John G. Schmitz, whose courageous independence had led him to voice strong opposition to the "liberalism" of President Nixon. Schmitz served six years in the state Senate before going to Congress and had differences with Governor Reagon on the same issue.

David C. Pierson, the promising young Democrat who replaced Jesse Unruh when the latter gave up his Assembly seat to run for governor, was also a victim of his own party.

These defeats might be rationalized on an individual basis. But the fact that a substantial number of congressmen and legislators failed to win a majority of the total votes cast would seem to telegraph voter dissatisfaction with the job being done by those in office.

Of the 37 incumbent congressmen, 13 fell short of gaining an overall majority, including the two defeated. In the Assembly 21 of the 68 incumbents suffered the same fate, along with 8 of 19 incumbent state senators.

FOR SOME of those the results probably have no significance since the vote was split within their own party. If they can solidify the party vote in the general election victory will be theirs.

But for many others, mostly Republicans, the votes cast for opposition party candidates outdistanced the incumbents' votes. It is these officeholders who have their work cut out for November if they are to retain their seats.

Unfortunately for the state, when it rains all who stand in the open get wet. Good men, regardless of their records of past achievements, fall by the wayside along with the others when the voters become disenchanted with the "ins" and decided to "throw the rascals out."

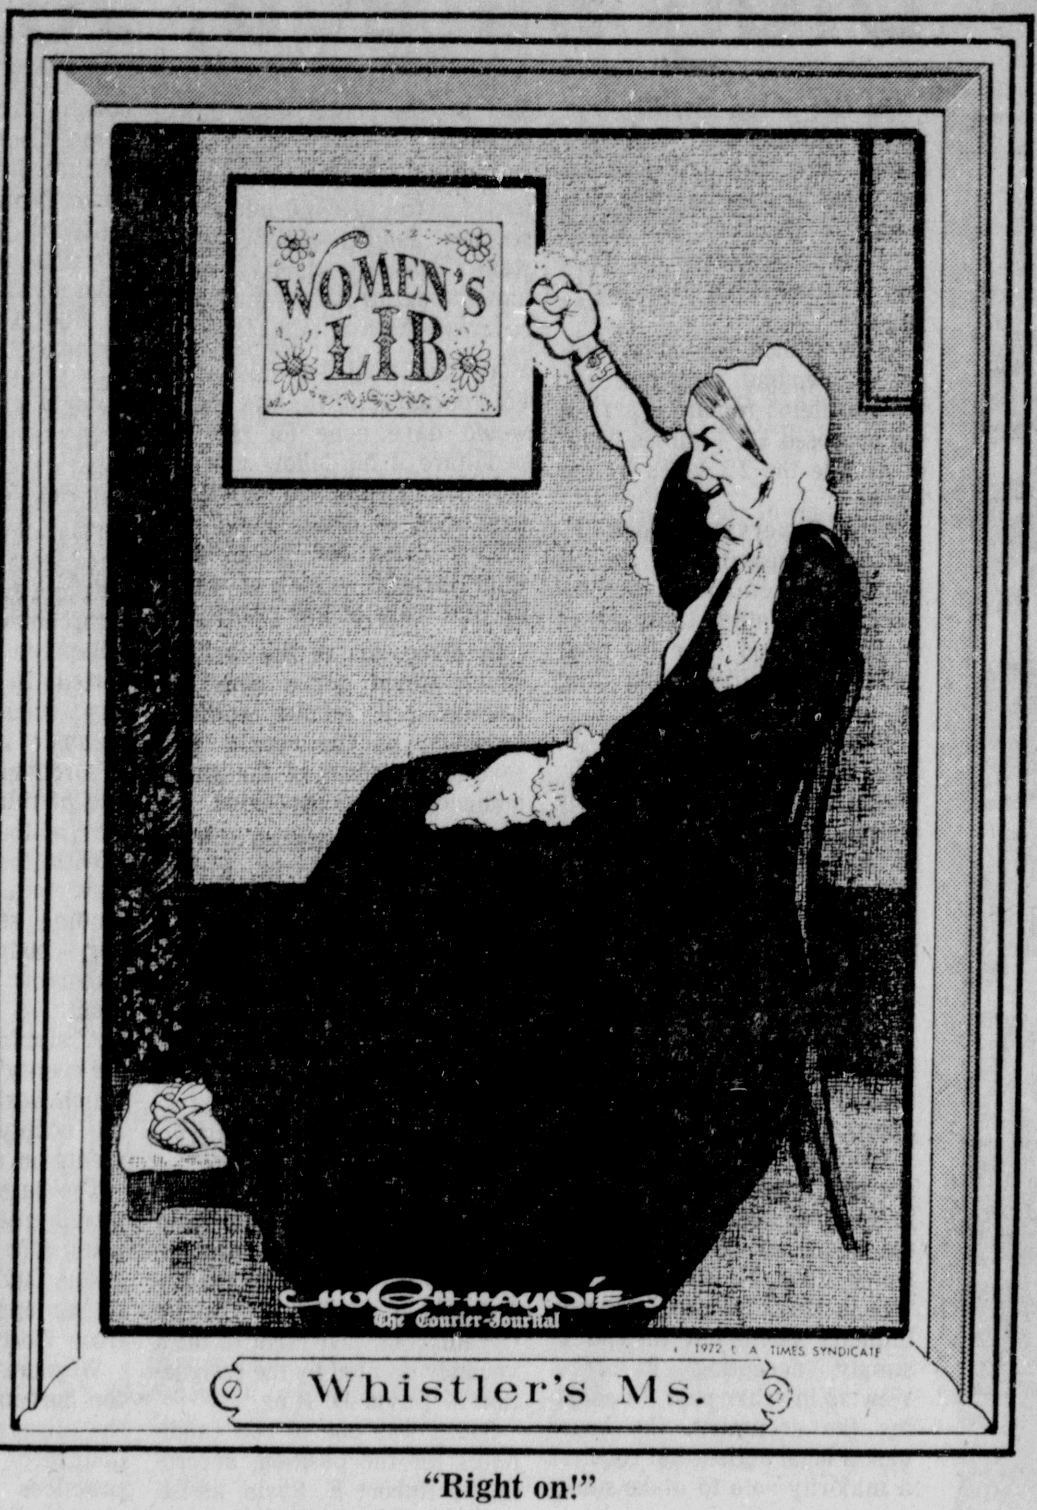
WORTH SAYING AGAIN

The security of the Pacific region will depend upon the ability of the countries there to meet the legitimate growing demands of their own people. No military strength we can bring to bear can give them internal stability or popular acceptance. — Clark Clifford.

Whereas, once combinations of employers could say to workers, "Take what we offer you or you will not eat," now union power can say to employers, "Give what we demand or you will not produce," and to the general public, "Unless we win, what you need you will not have!" — Jenkin Lloyd Jones.



"Right on!"

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Hold Fast To What God Has Given Us

In the midst of it all, anguish, turmoil, the struggle for survival, take a moment on a sun-bright day to see what was intended for this earth planet. Behold and believe what you see — created for mankind to cherish — by God, Nature, the Source, whatever. How the creator is identified by each of us isn't of consequence, is it? awareness and savoring of the created is.

Take for example, color: The blue of the translucent sky. Did you ever consider how incredible that color really is? The atmosphere we call sky could have been just constantly grey, dull and dense. But blue prevails, unspeakable blue! And take green leaves, radiant with vitality and the gaity of being. And take wildflowers, some so tiny they're often passed by, undiscovered as they sparkle up through the gentle grasses, serenely, silently, trustingly.

Take the patterns of bird-flight across the cerulean skyways — some far distant, visible only as silver streaks; others, immediate and identifiable as swallows, woodpeckers, wild pigeons, accompanied these days by the flutter of bright butterfly wings.

Take bird-song. Off in the valley, the meadow-lark's trill; nearby, the glorious burst from the tanager's throat and the robin's; the towhee's rusty, friendly solo, the dove's crooning.

Take all the myriad wonders, prevailing despite the ravages of that ruthlessness called progress and rejoice that they still are, these wonders. May we hold fast to them with gratitude, with joy, praying that somehow we fallen angels will find our way back to attunement —and survival!

Togetherness Allowed Only In Taverns

Thank you for your article on publisher Milton Weiner. It used to be that the only wails one heard in southern Marin concerned our infamous police department . . .

Mr. Weiner, who has struggled to publish hereabouts for about five years, now, is being arbitrarily denied the use of a public house because the crush of people might distend the walls and perhaps cause another grand tremblor. However, nearly every tavern in Sausalito is jammed to the rafters with liquified individuals, and nearly every bar in this town breaks fire regulations with daily vigor. That is socially acceptable. When people are inebriated they then to get closer together and block avenues of escape in case of fire, by dint of the capacity of alcohol to glue strangers one to the other in bonds of rapid friendship. However, it would appear that poetry and song are a threat to the integrity of this town, in spite of the fact that Sausalito is merely a polite riot on weekends and holidays.

Advantages Of Park District Enumerated

In its editorial of June 16 backing County Administrator John Barrows' opposition to the establishment of a Marin County Regional Park District, the Independent-Journal made four principal arguments: the proposed district could do nothing that the board of supervisors cannot already do; its separate status would help conceal the special open space tax; a county district would discourage local land acquisition; it would add another layer of government bureaucracy.

Briefly, here are our responses.

1. The critical advantage of an open space district over regular county government is that its guaranteed source of income (limited to $.10 per $100 assessed valuation unless the voters approve more) enables it to enter into long-term purchase agreements and borrow against future revenues, both of which are vital to an acquisition program of the magnitude proposed in Marin . . .

2. The regional park district tax will be a highly visible separate item instead of being buried in the complex annual appropriations for the Park and Recreation Department.

3. Local land purchases will be encouraged, not discouraged, by the prospect that matching funds will be available from the district to protect such areas as the North Ridge, Richardson Bay, San Pedro Ridge, etc. . .

4. Happily, because the supervisors will act as a governing board no additional administrative bureaucracy will be required beyond the appointment of one park planner to the county staff — a position which would be needed irrespective of whether there was a new district . . .

Greatest Thrill Reserved For Crews

A wave of nostalgia enveloped me as I read your cover story on crew at Redwood High. In 1929 I was a coxswain on the University of Washington's freshman crew and as the article indicated there are many physical and mental rewards. However in Larkspur as I watch the shells come down the Corte Madera Creek under sunny skies, I remember in contrast the ice and snow on the dock at the crew house at Washington, and wearing gloves to keep my hands from growing numb while holding the tiller ropes.

The football players get their thrills scoring touchdowns. The crewman driving toward the finish line gets his thrill as the stroke goes up and up and a coxswain screaming harassment and criticism in his ears and then pulling away from the adjacent boat to cross the finish line first. Then the crewmen pick up the coxswain and throw him in the water as a victory signal and collect the losers' jerseys. Yes, the '49ers and the Redwood Giants have given me many thrills over the years, but unless you've been on a crew, you'll never experience the excitement and pressure as the starter picks up his giant megaphone, surveys the shells and yells, "Ready all to row," and the coxswains of each shell in turn yell to their crews, "Ready all" and then the final signal "Row!"

Yes, it's the greatest thrill.

Americans Want Gun Control But Congress Drags Its Feet

WASHINGTON — Three days after Gov. George Wallace was shot while campaigning in Maryland, a Senate judiciary subcommittee met to consider a proposal to tighten control over handguns. The end result was more foggy talk, more evasion, more delay.

Everyone agreed, of course, that shooting a candidate is a nasty business. It just shouldn't happen. But the freedom of the individual to use his gun must not be lightly tampered with.

Political assassination in this country has no apparent end. I was in Europe when Wallace was shot and somehow the shock of it was greater there than it might have been here at home. Friendly Europeans asked with genuine concern and puzzlement, "How can this happen in your country?" For our enemies it was another opportunity to score the U.S.A. as a banana republic where the gun overrules the ballot box.

Not alone Vietnam but the rampant violence spilling into our political life has tarnished the image of America. The two Kennedys, Martin Luther King Jr., and now Wallace — it is a pattern without rhyme or reason other than the prevalence of marginal individuals, either fanatics or out of a subculture of fantasy and violent exhibitionism, with ready access to the means of instant murder.

SEN. BIRCH BAYH reported out of his subcommittee on juvenile deliquency a bill that would prohibit the sale of handguns other than those for "sporting purposes." This last involves a complicated formula to be determined by the gun control division of the Treasury. Whether the Bayh bill will get the support of the full judiciary committee and what will happen to it on the Senate floor are part of the enigma of doubt and a possible prelude to failure as so often in the past.

A law passed in 1968 after Robert Kennedy's assassination banned the importation of small handguns. These are, in the jargon of the trade, the cheapies, the Saturday-night specials. The law also banned mail-order sales of such guns and required identification by the purchaser.

But with more loophole than law the result has been almost farcical if it were not so ominous. Component parts may be imported and, according to one estimate, a million cheapies were assembled in 1971 with imported parts, some really sub-assemblies, from Europe and Japan. As for identification, the individual flashes a driver's license and whether he is high on alcohol or drugs is no matter as he forks down $10 at a pawn shop for a Saturday-night special.

A RECENT GALLUP survey conducted for the Wall Street Journal, involving personal interviews with a sampling of 1,542 persons, showed 79 per cent in favor of requiring a police permit to buy any gun. Repeated polls going as far back as 1938 have shown overwhelming support for gun registration. In that year 84 per cent would require gun owners to register and that percentage has rarely fallen below 70. Why then has Congress persistently refused to act? The familiar answer is the "gun lobby." Certainly that lobby, as embodied in the National Rifle Association with the financial support of big arms makers, is part of the answer, although it is more complicated than that, with heavy overtones from the political right wing.

Maxwell Rich, executive vice president of the rifle association, set some kind of record when he testified on the Bayh bill. Was he for it or was he against it? Bayh pressed without getting any very conclusive answer. Then the witness said:

"Well, we are getting again to a thing that we have been working on in many other fields, that is the consumer end, you know, setting standards of safety. We do it in toasters and other things. That might be something that will tie in here, and we would like to see the tests before we go on record about this. They are practically concluded."

Naturally you wouldn't want a cheapie that would explode in your hand. The statistics are so familiar and so appalling. One recent estimate is that 57 Americans die every day as a result of being shot with a handgun.

On Capitol Hill there was some expectation that the administration might come up with a gun-control bill. Later reports had it that because of a division of opinion, with the prevailing view favoring right-wing opposition, the White House was stymied. In any event, the silence speaks for itself and the cheapies sell like hot cakes.

WINDOW ON THE WORLD

By PHIL NEWSOM

In the triple-tiered jungle between Vientiane, administrative capital of Laos, and Long Chieng, from which U. S.-supported Meo tribesmen fight the Communist-led Pathet Lao and the North Vietnamese, a near-miracle has occurred.

It is the completion of the Nam Ngum Dam, a $30 million project which is only part of a dream that refuses to fade away despite war, opposing ideologies and national jealousies.

It began in the early 1950s as a United Nations project to develop the lower Mekong River basin and took positive form in 1958 with agreement among the four chief beneficiaries, Thailand, Laos, Cambodia and South Vietnam. Ultimately, its benefits are expected to extend to more than 20 million people and, if the full scope of the dream is realized, perhaps to as many as 100 million people.

MORE THAN A SCORE of the world's nations, including the United States, have contributed money and skills to the project.

In 1965, former President Lyndon B. Johnson, in a nowfamous famous at Johns Hopkins University, offered North Vietnam a share in its benefits and held it out as a reason for ending the war.

Johnson saw it as a billion dollar aid package for Southeast Asia and declared:

"The task is nothing less than to enrich the hopes and the existence of more than a hundred million people."

FOR CENTURIES the Mekong has flowed through Southeast Asia, its waters fed by the snowfields of the Himalaya Mountains in Tibet.

It is one of the world's 10 great rivers, untamed either by bridge or dam.

Although it spread rich silt across the delta, the destruction of its floods cost millions.

The Nam Ngum dam has a potential of 120,000 kilowatts of electricity, providing power for industrial development of Vientiane and for other uses all the way back to Bangkok, capital of Thailand.

Although close to the fighting, the site never has been attacked.

IN SOUTHERN CAMBODIA work also progressing on the Prok Thnet power and irrigation complex, west of Phnom Penh on Route 4 leading to the Cambodian port of Kompong Som. The fighting frequently cuts the road, and the flow of supplies from the port often is interrupted. But the work under a Japanese contractor goes forward. It will provide power and will irrigate 17,500 acres.

The Mekong and its tributaries are estimated to have a potential of 20 million kilowatts of electricity for agricultural, industrial and community use.

Among the benefits for the future: reclamation of the Plain of Reeds, a vast marshy wasteland extending from below Saigon northwestward into Cambodia. Alum salts contaminate the land and make its two and a half million acres useless. With proper drainage in the wet season and with sweet water pumped in during the dry, it can be made to produce three rice crops a year.

One Billion For White Flags? Laird Just Has To Be Kidding

WASHINGTON — Sec. of Defense Melvin Laird has suggested that if Senator McGovern's defense budget of $55 billion is ever adopted, we might as well throw in the towel and spend a billion dollars for white flags which we will hoist all over the world.

On the basis of past performance of our defense contractors, $1 billion for white flags is a wholly unrealistic figure, and Laird knows it.

THIS IS WHAT might happen if the Defense Department let it be known that it was planning to contract for white flags to fly around the globe:

WASHINGTON, D.C., April 30, 1973 — The chairman of the House Armed Services Committee announced today that the Lockheed Flag Co. has been given a $1 billion contract to produce 500 white flags for the Defense Department. The chairman denied the fact that Lockheed Flag was located in his district of Swampville, La., had anything to do with the company's winning the order.

SWAMPVILLE, La., July 14, 1973 — The president of the Lockheed Flag Co. displayed a prototype of the WF1 (White Flag One) for the press this morning. The president said the WF1 would outperform any white flag now flying. It would be an all-weather flag which would fly at night as well as during the day, and could stand gusts of wind up to 100 miles an hour. Lockheed Flag said it hoped to have the WF1 in production in 10 months.

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif., June 15, 1974 — The first WF1 was tested here today and Defense Department officials announced they were very pleased with the results. The WF1 flew at an altitude of 23 feet for three hours. Although it showed some fabric fatigue under stress, Lockheed Flag engineers said the damage was minimal, and easily could be repaired.

SWAMPVILLE, La., Sept. 2, 1974 — The president of Lockheed Flag announced today that due to increased labor costs, fabric fatigue and hikes in flagpole ropes, his company would not be able to fulfill its WF1 contract for $1 billion. He said he was asking for a supplementary $800 million, which was still a bargain for the country.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Dec. 15, 1974 — The chairman of the House Armed Services Committee said he was recommending the $800 million overrun for the WF1 as the security of the nation was at stake. He also said he was adding $100 million extra for Christmas bonuses for Lockheed Flag executives.

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, March 8, 1975 — Two WF1s crashed to the ground yesterday and Pentagon investigators suspect the wooden flagpoles used to fly the white flags were at fault. Termites were found in both flagpoles, and the Defense Department has grounded all WF1s until a new aluminum flagpole could be designed.

SWAMPVILLE, La., May 11, 1975 — The president of the Lockheed Flag Co. said he would need another $1 billion to replace the flagpoles in the WF1. He said it was the Defense Department's insistence on wooden flagpoles that caused the overrun, and he would need the money immediately if the white flags were to be delivered on schedule.

WASHINGTON, D.C., May 12, 1975 — Sen. William Proxmire called the WF1 the biggest Defense Department bungle of the year and suggested the contract be canceled.

Testifying in front of Proxmire's committee, the president of Lockheed Flag said that if he doesn't get $1 billion immediately, his company would go bankrupt and not only would this create a hardship for its stockholders but it would put 35 people out of work.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Sept. 11, 1975 — Congress, at the urging of the White House, voted today to give the Lockheed Flag Co. $1 billion to complete work on the WF1 and also lend it another $1 billion to develop a new multiwhite flag project which could fly six white flags from the same flagpole at the same time.

SWAMPVILLE, La., Nov. 9, 1975 — The President of Lockheed Flag Co. announced today that because of a strike he was asking the Defense Department for another. . . .

Garden Center Event Will Break Tradition

The annual Fourth of July Festival at the Marin Art and Garden Center will keep tradition as a garden and flower fan's delight, but will break tradition by doing away with competition in the displays.

The festival will be held from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. July 2-4.

"Plants on Parade" will feature exotic and unique specimen plants in ornate containers that will be on loan from homes and gardens throughout Marin. Mrs. Harold G. Hacke, display chairman, said the festival catalogue will contain information on origin and culture of each specimen.

In another part of the grounds, plans including conifers, fruit trees, succulents, flowers, ferns and bonzai material will be on sale.

Hugh Patterson, president of the Marin Garden Society, said his group and the Marin Art and Garden Center have built and landscaped new plant display areas throughout the 10-acre grounds to replace the massed floral competitions that were a trademark of the July celebration for 26 years.

The celebration, with a theme of "Good Ol' Days," will feature continuous entertainment, a fashion show on yesteryear, Gay '90s show, art-in-action, children's ride, "Granny's Flea Market," band music and old fashioned food.

Free parking will be available at the College of Marin with free shuttle buses operating during fair hours.

Firm's Recruit Letters For Salesmen Questioned

A San Rafael distributor and several San Francisco distributors of Bestline detergent products may be using questionable sales letters to recruit new salesmen, the Better Business Bureau of San Francisco and Marin has warned.

The mailings, under scrutiny because of suspected "pyramid" sales programs, say that "a management position with an income potential of $18,000 per year" is available to the reader,". . .an individual who could handle unusual and challenging career opportunities."

Leo B. Barth of the Better Business Bureau said one such letter was addressed to an individual who died last year at the age of 91.

Barth identified Enterprise Associates of San Rafael as one of the firms using the recruiting letters. He asked for reports on oral presentations made by Bestline distributors to anyone who followed up the offers.

He added that Federal Trade Commission and the state Attorney General have obtained court or consent orders regulating Bestline merchandising practices.

The Better Business Bureau will supply a special booklet on "Tips on Multi-Level Selling Plans" to anyone who asks for it and supplies a stamped, self-addressed envelope, to the bureau at 414 Mason Street, San Francisco.

Attorney Opens New Office In Petaluma

Rohnert Park attorney Richard Day has announced the opening of a new office at 620 East Washington Street, Petaluma.

Day will continue to be associated with the law firm of Maurice Fredericks and Lawrence Swensen and will be available for appointments in Petaluma on a regular basis. Day was an unsuccessful candidate for Sonoma County supervisor in 1970.

Rohnert Park Teen Dance Is Tomorrow

Music by the Bronze Hog Rock Group will be featured at a teen-age dance tomorrow from 8:30 p.m. to midnight at the Rohnert Park Community Center.

The Rohnert Park Recreation Department will also sponsor a trip to the San Francisco Giants - Cincinnati Reds baseball game Wednesday at Candlestick Park. Buses will leave from Rohnert Park Junior High School at 10:30 a.m.

A Challenge To Telephone Tax

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A challenge to the constitutionality of the 10 per cent telephone excise tax was filed yesterday in the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals.

Lloyd McMurray, attorney for the Telephone War Tax protest told the Independent-Journal, "Within a few days we will also be filing a motion for a protective order restraining the Internal Revenue Service from using harassing tactics against members of the tax protest group."

Protest members — estimated by protest leaders to number about 1,000 in Marin — have complained about IRS "scare calls" and harassment

IRS officials have denied harassment charges.

The tax protest suit charges that the government levied the 10 per cent telephone tax in 1966 to support the war in Indochina, and that it has no authority to levy a tax to support an undeclared war.

The suit is before the appellate court after being denied last September in Federal District Court in San Francisco.

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Victory In This Instance Means Tracking The Correct Black Suit

Ever since the beginning of morality, wise men and women have struggled with an important problem: How to tell right from wrong. Bridge players have this struggle, too, for in some hands the contract depends on tackling the right suit first. So pay careful attention as we demonstrate once for all how to tell right from wrong.

WHICH SUIT?

West opens the six of diamonds. You need three tricks in the black suits. Which black suit should you tackle first?

If you lead spades first, East will take his ace and return his other diamond. West will clear the diamonds and will get back with the ace of clubs in time to defeat the contract.

If you lead clubs first, West's ace is knocked out. West can clear the diamonds but can never get back to take them.

CLUBS RIGHT SUIT

Evidently, as the cards lie, clubs is the right suit, and spades is the wrong suit.

"Hold on," says the heckler in the back row. "Suppose the two black aces were exchanged. Then spades would be right and clubs would be wrong."

EXTRA CHANCE

You cannot tell which opponent has which ace. By tackling clubs first, however, you give yourself an extra chance.

Suppose you lead spades first. This has an even chance to be the right suit. If it is the wrong suit, however, you are dead.

Next suppose that you lead clubs first — from the dummy. This has, likewise, an even chance to be right. But you still have a chance even if East has the ace of clubs. East must play his ace of clubs at once and shoot back a diamond, for otherwise you would "steal" one club trick and switch to spades.

EAST'S ACTION

But East's play of the ace of clubs leaves you with a chance to win three club tricks, which would be enough for your contract.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one notrump (strong), and you hold:

♠- 10 9 4
♥- 8 6 4
♦- A 9 7 6 2
♣- A 3.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two no-trump.

Your eight points are a little skimpy for this raise, but your five-card suit is an extra value.

Proceeds will benefit the brotherhood's building fund and camperships for children and nursery school, according to Reynold Kalisher of Mill Valley, fair coordinator.

Wallace's Surgery Recovery Is Good

SILVER SPRING, Md. (UPI) —Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace has made "very satisfactory" progress since the operation Sunday that removed a bullet lodged in his spinal column, and his physicians have discontinued daily medical bulletins on his condition.

Doctors said Wednesday in their last daily bulletin that Wallace was suffering "less postoperative pain each day." They reported his blood pressure, pulse and temperature were normal

Employees To Receive Pay Boosts

North Marin County Water District employees will get raises ranging from 5.5 per cent to 16.2 per cent, effective July 1.

The raises were approved Tuesday by district directors, who also approved an estimated $665,666 operating budget for fiscal 1972-73, up about $59,300 from this year's total, according to Eugene S. Churchill, district manager.

The increase will be offset by increased property assessments and water sales, Churchill predicted. The board set the district tax rate at 10 cents per $100 assessed valuation, the same as this year.

The largest raise went to Churchill, whose annual salary was hiked from $21,500 to $25,000 by a 3-2 vote of the board. George A. Amaroli and Frank V. Baccaglio voted against the raise: Franklin Gustafson, Pat Heffernan and William V. Wright favored it, Churchill said.

Churchill said pay raises of 5.5 per cent for all employees and 7.25 per cent for some, coupled with approval of three new job classifications, would require additional calculations before the final budget total is available.

Churchill pointed out the operations budget increase included both the raises and $33,000 for purchasing water from Sonoma County.

The board trimmed three allocations totaling $22,275 from the proposed capital outlay budget that originally called for $269,943.

The cuts included $11,437 for replacing pipelines along part of Atherton Avenue; a $8,838 carryover for the now-defunct Sonoma-Marin Aqueduct project and a $5,971 trim in funding next year's portion of the 10-year master plan revision project, leaving only $2,000 for the work.

The board set the tax rate at 38 cents per $100 assessed valuation for the Point Reyes Station-Inverness Park capital improvements program, Churchill said.

The North Marin County Water District Board also:

PETALUMA RIVER — Deferred action to July 18 on a study requested by Sonoma County landowner Shellmaker Inc. on the feasibility of annexing the east bank of the river opposite Black Point, in order to provide water to a proposed marina. The Black Point Improvement Club asked for the delay, Churchill said.

CHARGES — Set new "facilities reserve charges" for apartment houses and mobile home parks, ranging from $725 for a 1.5 inch line to $2,180 for a 3-inch line effective July 1. The rates had been $430 to $1,290 — much less per unit than single-family homes charged.

WATER USE — Heard Churchill report that May water consumption was up 25.5 per cent over May 1971 — 225.8 million gallons for the district compared to 179.9 million gallons last year.

PETITION — Heard a report that Paradise Ranch homeowners in West Marin are circulating petitions to have the district buy the private water system which now serves about 70 Inverness Ridge homes.

GOETTINGEN, Germany (UPI)—A 27-year-old East German men fled across the Communist-mined zone into West Germany late Wednesday, border police reported today.

Medi-Cal Reforms Advance

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A bill abolishing the "prior authorization" restrictions for doctors who provide Medi-Cal services is now before the Senate.

The bill was advanced Wednesday on a 9-2 vote by the Senate Health and Welfare Committee. It is the key measure of a seven-bill package by Sen. Peter Behr, R-San Rafael, which he said is designed to "reform" management of Medi-Cal.

Under the bill approved by the committee, physicians would not be required to obtain approval from the state Department of Health Care Services when he feels non-emergency care is needed.

Currently, doctors must get approval for further medical care when a Medi-Cal patient has used the allotted two monthly visits. The request is reviewed by a state-employed physician.

Behr told the committee the "prior authorization" system has driven many doctors out of Medi-Cal because of the paperwork and the review of their medical judgment.

"It has failed to prevent unethical doctors from cheating the system," Behr said, "and it has denied needed medical care to the poor."

Dr. John H. Jordan of the Health Care Services Department, opposed the bill, contending "prior authorization" is needed to prevent unnecessary medical care.

Sens. Jack Schrade, R-San Diego, and James Q. Wedworth, D-Hawthorne, cast the two "no votes on the bill.

At an earlier news conference, Behr said his Medi-Cal legislative package had the support of the California Medical Association, the California Hospital Association and the California Rural Legal Assistance.

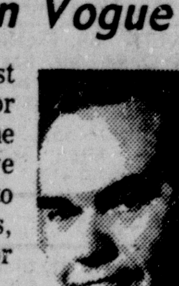
HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Cutback Of Carbohydrates For Diabetics No Longer In Vogue



A New Yorker writes: "My son was just told he has diabetes. He went to the doctor because he was losing weight, even though he was not dieting. The doctor taught him to give himself insulin shots and gave him a diet to follow. He is allowed sugars and starches, which I always thought were not good for diabetics. Is this right?"

Restriction of carbohydrates (starches, sugars, cellulose) was in vogue 50 to 60 years ago, but there is no scientific basis for it. As a result, the diet of the modern diabetic is more liberalized and varied, and allows almost twice as many grams of carbohydrate as protein and fat. Fruits, vegetables, and cereals, including bread, spaghetti, noodles, milk, and sugar are examples of foods containing carbohydrates.

MORE RECENTLY, the American Dietetic Association urged physicians to allow diabetics to eat the same amount of carbohydrates as nondiabetics, if, and this this is a strong if, they keep the number of calories low enough to maintain normal weight. By using the usual starting formula in calculating diabetic diets, this means less fats which in turn will lessen the chance of weight gain and the development of arteriosclerosis, heart attack, and stroke.

The younger person usually needs insulin and a diet to control his diabetes. Proper nutrition alone, without insulin injections, can control the disease in many adult diabetics. In fact, many overweight older persons with slightly more than normal amounts of sugar in the urine and blood do very well if they lose weight. There is some question whether these individuals have diabetes.

THE TYPICAL diabetes that develops in children and younger adults is easy to diagnose. This is not always true of the "diabetes" that develops later in life. The laboratory tests are abnormal, but not too far off. If the condition cannot be controlled with diet, antidiabetic pills or insulin are added to the regimen. So many oldsters develop the late onset form of the diasease, that some authorities believe that like gray hair, it may be normal after age 60.

(Questions on medical topice will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

MALIGNANY CHANGE

F. D. writes: What do you mean by precancerous? I thought you either have the disease or don't have it.

REPLY

Some lesions turn into cancer or undergo cancerous degeneration. Since we cannot determine when the switch is made from benign to malignant, we call the lesion precancerous until it becomes malignant.

SMART GALS

E. T. writes: Is it true that in grammar school, the girls are smarter than the boys, but boys are smarter in high school?

REPLY

Girls are smarter even in high school — at least they discover they get along better with boys by acting dumb.

DIET AND THYROID

K. C. writes: Is there a specific diet for a person with thyroid deficiency?

REPLY

No, except to eat sparingly, because low metabolism encourages weight gain. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on hypothyroidism.

San Rafael air quality yesterday:

Oxidant, clean air.
Nitrogen dioxide, clean air.
Carbon monoxide, clean air.
Smoke particles, clean air.
Other areas:
San Francisco, clean air.
San Jose, light air pollution.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches, and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come large from industrial sources, while the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

McLAIN VISITS OAKLAND

Holtzman, A's Beaten By Tigers

OAKLAND (UPI) — Denny McLain, remember him?

He's back in town today but not as an official member of the Oakland A's.

McLain, banished to the minors on May 14, ostensibly to get himself into pitching shape, jumped the Birmingham club of the Southern Association Wednesday and headed to Oakland, where he expects to find out "where I stand."

As of the moment, he is still a member of the Birmingham club and is not likely to be promoted back to the A's. At least that's what owner Charley Finley and manager Dick Williams are saying.

Finley is in the Bay Area and said he is available if McLain wants to talk. As for jumping Birmingham, Finley said it was news to him.

"I'm available if Denny wants to talk," said the A's owner, "but as far as his status is concerned we'll make the decisions."

Williams echoed his boss' statement.

"If Denny wants to work out while he's in Oakland," said Williams, "it's all right with me. He's here at his own expense. Right now we have no plans to bring him back although the reports on him look good."

It's those reports which McLain, the former Cy Young Award winner and the last pitcher to win 30 games, is using as a leverage to gain another big league shot. Reportedly, McLain threw hard and well in his last two starts and said he has accomplished what the A's expected of him in Birmingham.

"Besides," McLain was quoted as saying, "they have an

Scipio Spinks Story— 'Me And My Gorilla'

CHICAGO — Scipio Spinks was born here in Chicago 24 years ago, the son of Scipio Spinks whose father also was named Scipio Spinks. All males in the Spinks family are named Scipio. It's a family tradition. Scipio is pronounced Sip-e-oh, not Skip-e-oh.

The youngest of the Scipios now is a major league pitcher and a pretty good one even though he wasn't successful in two tries against the Giants this season, the first in Candlestick Park June 8, the second in Busch Stadium at St. Louis last Sunday.

SCIPIO AND Tito Fuentes had words in Candlestick when Scipio sent Tito into the dirt with a fast ball. "He told me to stop staring at him," said Tito. "He's crazy. Check him out. Ask Joe Torre about him. Ask Lou Brock. Ask any of his Cardinal teammates."

So a baseball writer traveling with the Giants did check out Scipio when the Giants visited St. Louis last weekend. And this is what he learned:

Scipio's closest pal is a gorilla that he bought in Houston, where he used to pitch for the Astros until they traded him to the Cardinals. Scipio says he couldn't resist buying the gorilla because, despite the fact it is a stuffed one, it tapped on a shop window as Scipio was passing by.

SOMETIMES SCIPIO calls his pet "Joe Torre," sometimes "Lou Brock," but when he wants a game ticket left for the gorilla he puts down the name of "Mighty Joe Young" on the St. Louis players' pass list.

Mighty Joe Young, wearing a Cardinal cap and uniform, sat last Sunday in a Busch Stadium box and watched his master pitch. Scipio had forgotten to bring his gorilla to Candlestick two weeks ago and he blamed his forgetfulness on the fact the Giants scored four runs off him.

The gorilla slumped in its seat when Scipio was kayoed in the eighth inning of his second appearance against the Giants. But Scipio still hasn't lost faith in his gorilla as a good luck charm.

HOWEVER, SCIPIO'S new Cardinal teammates blamed the gorilla for an 0-7 road trip and hanged him in the clubhouse while Scipio was running wind sprints. Not only did they hang the ape, they put a dagger through his heart.

Scipio was crushed when he saw his pal dangling from the rafters. "He cost me $26," said Scipio as he untied the noose and removed the dagger. "I'll love him even with a broken neck. I won't give him up."

Torre, as the team's player rep, apologized to Scipio for the lynching and assured him it wouldn't happen again. Scipio was duly grateful.

"I couldn't stand the shock of a second lynching," said Scipio and his teammates roared.

Like the Giants, the Cardinals haven't had much to laugh about this season. But Scipio has kept them loose with, of course, the help of his gorilla.

Corte Madera Plans Summer Instruction

The Corte Madera Recreation Department, in conjunction with two community organizations, will offer instructional programs in judo, basic canoeing and basic sailing this summer.

The eight-week judo course costs $13 for residents, $15 for non-residents, begins next Wednesday and runs eight weeks. The canoe course, cosponsored with the American Red Cross and Marin Canoe Club, costs $11 or $13 and runs July 10-21. Sailing, co-sponsored by the Red Cross, costs $10 or $12.50 and runs Saturday through Aug. 5.

Registration will be accepted until the opening day of the course, and is held at the Corte Madera Town Hall on weekdays.

ALL-STAR BASEBALL TONIGHT

The third annual Knights of Columbus North-South All-Star prep baseball game will be played tonight at 7:30 at Albert Park in San Rafael.

Proceeds will benefit the K of C college scholarship fund. Tickets cost $2 for adults and $1 for students and are available at the gate.

Jim Petray of Marin Catholic High School will be the starting pitcher for the South and Mike Lamb of Novato High for the North, respective coaches Dick Creighton of Drake and Ron Butori of San Marin have announced.

MEN'S 35 SINGLES

No Net Upsets In Mill Valley

In a tennis tournament, if the top-rated players are eliminated in the first round, the tournament director may be eliminated shortly thereafter, amid nasty remarks about his ability to seed the participants.

No such crisis happened in Mill Valley yesterday, as all eight of the seeded singles players in the 14th annual National Men's 35 Hardcourt Championships advanced, and only two had difficulty in doing so.

Singles play will continue and doubles play will commence today. The tournament will run through Sunday.

Top-seeded Don Kierbow of Carmichael, eight days out of the hospital, appeared to be perfectly fit as he shredded Greg Miller of Los Gatos in the first set, 6-0. Miller, however, rebounded to take the second, 6-4, and battle furiously throughout the third before Kierbow prevailed, 6-3.

Seventh-seeded Leoncito Collas, South American champion living in Carmel, trampled Sandy Walker of San Francisco in his opening match, 6-2, 6-4, but had no such easy time in his second.

Starting at 6 p.m., he was on the court more than two hours before he finally subdued Jack Movido of Chula Vista, 6-4, 5-7, 6-4.

Five players from Marin County were eliminated in first-round action.

Hugh Tierney of Belvedere lost to Terry Cooke of San Mateo, 6-4, 7-6. David Sheldon of San Rafael was blitzed by fourth-seeded Whitney Reed of Alameda, 6-0, 6-0. Bob Seymour of Mill Valley defaulted to Van Smith of Newport Beach. Jack Barone of Mill Valley succumbed to fifth-seeded Tom Brown of San Francisco 6-1, 6-2, and Keith Klussman of Mill Valley was ousted by Greg Grant of Phoenix, Ariz., 6-2, 6-3.

Like Kierbow, second-seeded Jim Landin of Littleton, Colo., drew a first-round bye. He then clubbed Don Wilson of San Francisco, 6-2, 6-0.

Third-seeded Clif Mayne of Lafayette won his first-round match by default over Larry Goldbeck of Vallejo. Fourth-seeded Reed followed up his victory over Sheldon by beating Tom Tucker of San Francisco, 6-4, 6-2: Fifth-seeded Brown fol-

DeMont's Challenge In Santa Clara Swim

The biggest and the oldest will seek to maintain an ever-dwindling edge over the smallest and the youngest this weekend in the Sixth Annual Santa Clara International Invitational Swimming meet.

The biggest, personified by 6-foot-4, 215 pound world-record holder John Kinsella of Indiana University, and the oldest, represented by 25-year-old former world-record holder Mike Burton of the Arden Hills Swim Club of Sacramento, are taking frequent looks over their wide shoulders at 16-year-old Rick DeMont of Terra Linda.

DeMont, competing for the Marin Aquatic Club, will challenge this duo, as will another rising star, Jack Tingley of Pasadena, in the 1500-meter (long course, 50-meter pool) freestyle event at Santa Clara. The prestigious International meet is an important stepping stone toward the U.S. Olympic Trials, Aug. 1-6 in Chicago.

DeMont was third behind Kinsella and Burton at the short course (25-yard pool) National Amateur Athletic Union meet in Dallas in April. The 155-pound high school senior edged fourth-place Tingley there by two seconds, the the Southern California junior college student has since bettered his time slightly, setting up a potentially tempestuous battle over the near-mile distance.

DeMont will lead a squad of eight Marin A.C. swimmers — five women and three men — to the famous Santa Clara convergence.

According to coach Don Swartz, DeMont's 1,500 is by far the best chance for a local placing. Rick's other events, the 200 and 400 free, are a little short for his best performance, according to his trainer, but are nevertheless possibilities for placing.

Swartz commented, "We are not tapering for this meet at

15 Marin Auto Race Drivers At Laguna Seca

The famous marriage of convenience between Jon Woodner of San Rafael and Lee Mueller of Lynwood will be sorely tested beginning tomorrow in the Olympic Sprints at Laguna Seca Raceway in Monterey.

All told, there will be 15 drivers of Marin County affiliation among the 350 entrants in 13 races on the three-day card.

Sponsor Joe Huffaker was the justice of the peace who wedded Woodner and Mueller, former blistering rivals. Both will drive Huffaker cars at Laguna Seca — Mueller in the E production division and Woodner in the F production.

The lineup of Marinites (sponsors, if any, in parentheses):

Race 1, Formula Vee — Dick Zibert, Tiburon; Carl Von Doymi, Greenbrae (Harrington Automotive); Stuart Fisher, San Rafael.

Giants' Bryant Blanks Cubs, 4-0

CHICAGO (UPI)—A blowing Nor'wester carried the sweet smell of success to Ron Bryant and the San Francisco Giants.

Aided by a brisk 17-mile an hour wind blowing against the batters, the Giants southpaw handcuffed the Chicago Cubs on only two singles for a 4-0 victory Wednesday.

The robust breezes drove at least three potential homers into the hands of Giant outfielders, and Bryant was the first to admit it.

"Jim Hickman, Billy Williams and (Carmen) Fanzone hit balls that would have gone out of the park on an ordinary day but they couldn't battle that wind," said Bryant, now 44.

"The batters know I'm a fastball pitcher and you need a little bit of luck to win a game like this one. When the Cubs weren't trying for homers, they were hitting them right where somebody was."

Bryant gave up a first inning single to Don Kessinger and was touched for a single in the eighth inning by Williams in notching his first shutout of the year.

Today the Giants are idle. They open a three-game weekend series Friday night in San Diego.

San Francisco scored a run in the second off loser Milt Pappas (5-5) on consecutive singles by Dave Rader, Alan Gallagher and Tito Fuentes.

Bryant walked five and struck out two. He suffered control problems in the second and fourth innings but each time retired Pappas for the third out.

Orioles' Pitching Falters In Defeat

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Just when it seemed time for the Baltimore Orioles to start sewing things up, their pitching staff has started to unravel a bit.

The Orioles ran off eight straight victories last week with each member of their "big four" recording two victories and it seemed as if the club was getting ready to take control of the American League pennant race.

But the Orioles suffered their third loss in their last four games Wednesday night when they lost 6-3 to the California Angels and enabled the Detroit Tigers to take over sole possession of first place.

The Orioles rallied for two runs in the top of the seventh to take a 3-2 margin but reliever Doyle Alexander couldn't get anybody out in the bottom of the inning and the Angels pushed across four runs to wrap up the contest.

Alexander, pitching for Chuck Dobson who was lifted for a pinch-hitter in the top of the inning, gave up a pinch single to leadoff battle Mickey Rivers. Alexander then fumbled Sandy Alomar's sacrifice bunt and gave up Ken Berry's runscoring single that tied the game 3-3.

After Vada Pinson was walked intentionally, manager Earl Weaver brought in Eddie Watt but Bob Oliver tagged him for a two-run single that decided the game. John Stephenson then singled in an insurance run.

In the other games, Boston edged Texas 10-9 in 11 innings, Chicago topped Milwaukee 9-3, Detroit beat Oakland 5-2 and Cleveland edged Minnesota 4-2. The Kansas City at New York game was rained out.

Rico Petrocelli got only one hit against Texas but he drove in six runs. He hit a grand slam in the fifth inning to account for most of them. But the Red Sox didn't win until the 11th inning when Doug Griffin hit a bases-loaded single. The Sox, who once trailed 7-1, tied it 9-9 in the ninth when Carl Yastrzemski, who had five hits, scored from second when the Rangers made two errors when Petrocelli hit a sharp grounder to short.

Ray Fosse and Graig Nettles hit homers to back the eight-hit pitching of Gaylord Perry as Cleveland topped Minnesota. The victory snapped a two-game losing streak for Perry as he bested Bert Blyleven.

open spot on the roster, so I don't understand why I'm not being recalled. I want to talk about the situation with somebody."

Williams has nine pitchers and said that's all he needs right now. He added his starting rotation is set all the way to the All Star game break and there really is no place for another starter.

Since McLain is a starter and not adapted to relieving, there seems little for him to do except to go back to Birmingham and wait.

Meanwhile, while McLain seeks to untangle his life, the A's are enjoying a day off, their only one for the next 31 days when they play 33 games.

Wednesday night they dropped a 5-2 decision to the Detroit Tigers and saw their lead in the American League shaved a game to four. Ken Holtzman, McLain's roommate at the start of the season, went the distance and dropped his fifth decision compared to 10 victories.

The Tigers reached Holtzman for eight hits and it was a big double by Bill Freehan in the eighth that broke the game wide open. Freehan doubled to right center with one out and the bases loaded to chase across two runs and when Reggie Jackson booted the ball a third run scored.

That was more help than Tom Timmerman needed to gain his sixth victory in 11 decisons. Timmerman said he hasn't had much luck against the A's in the past but he stopped them on five hits this time.

TREVINO TALKS GOLF

By LEE TREVINO

There are times when you've got to be a switch-hitter. I used to practice left-hand shots at Hardy's in Dallas by turning the club over.

It finally paid off in a Ryder Cup match against Brian Huggett of England — probably the greatest shot I ever hit.

My ball was nuzzling a big tree where I couldn't get to it right-handed. The hole was a dogleg right, with the green 125 yards away. So I moved over on the wrong side, took a cut and hooked the ball around some trees and on the green. I two-putted to win.

I suggest that most players use the back of their putter to advance a ball left-handed. The secret is this: Keep your head down. Most guys look up and fan the ball.

If there's any way to hit it in your natural manner, even if it means standing on one leg, the percentages are with you. On this kind of shot you don't expect to move the ball far from either side. It's a percentage game.

If you can waste one stroke and escape with bogey, take it. Getting fancy can cost you a seven. And the only place those babies can help you is in Las Vegas.

Two Boxing Bills Passed By Senate

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

SACRAMENTO — The Senate voted final legislative approval last night to two measures aimed at protecting boxers from excessive physical abuse in the ring and financial abuse from their managers.

On 34-0 votes, the Senate sent the measures — part of a four-bill package by Assemblyman Vincent Thomas, D-San Pedro — to the governor for signature.

One of the bills would require referees to penalize a boxer who struck another with a rabbit or kidney punch by at least a fraction of a point in the scoring of the fight.

The other measure would require boxing managers to file quarterly financial statements with the state Athletic Commission concerning the division of a purse a fighter won.

MUNICH, Germany — The Olympic Organizing Committee and the sports clothing manufacturer "Adidas" have started a bitter pre-Olympic feud over three stripes.

The three stripes are the trade mark of the Herzogenaurach shoe firm and have been banned from all clothing of athletes and officials during the Munich Olympics by the International Olympic Committee (IOC).

In an official statement "Adidas" alleged the move was one-sided. It said other companies providing time keeping equipment and computers for the games would be allowed to show even their full names during the Games.

SHARON'S MOMENT OF TRUTH

The moment of truth is coming.

Sharon Walsh of San Rafael, Marin County's chance for international women's tennis fame, will find out just how good she is — or isn't — next Wednesday when she meets powerful Billie Jean King in the All-England Championships at Wimbledon.

Each player drew a bye in the first round and the two will play each other in the second. They have never met before according to Sharon's father, photographer Les Walsh.

Miss Walsh played twice earlier this week in the Queen's Tournament in Britain, defeating Lita Liem of Indonesia Monday and losing to Britain's Virginia Wade Tuesday.

Olympic Club Cagers Subdue McGillicuddy

Greg McLaren scored 41 points for McGillicuddy Construction, but his efforts were washed away as eight Olympic Club players hit in double figures yesterday to produce a 99-79 victory in Drake Summer League basketball play.

Dave Lee scored 29 points and Bob Heaney 26 to lead Paradise Pharmacy to a 99-81 victory over Flying Tigers despite Russ Critchfield's 20 points. Blue Crystal edged Taveggia-Brusati, 61-57, as Bob Henderson led Blue Crystal with 17.

Gibson Wins 211th, Tops Cardinal Mark

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Don't tell Bob Gibson about Jesse (Pop) Haines—or any of those other old-timers either.

Gibson, perhaps baseball's angriest righthander, became the St. Louis Cardinals' winningest pitcher ever Wednesday night by limiting the San Diego Padres to three hits over seven innings while Moe Drabowsky finished up to preserve the easy 14-3 victory.

The victory, Gibson's fifth straight, gave him a lifetime total of 211—one more than Haines, the Cardinal pitching star of the 1920's who was elected to the Hall of Fame in 1970. But Gibson didn't seem to really care about that.

"I've been aware of that mark ever since last year when I reached 200 wins," Gibson said. "But up until then I didn't even know who Pop Haines was since I don't usually go around looking in record books.

"Whenever they have those old-timers games, I never go out there because all they do is sit around and talk about the old days and I'm not like that," Gibson added. "To me, selfsatisfaction is the most important thing because even if you do well someone will always say you're no good."

Elsewhere, in National League action, Cincinnati supplanted Houston in first place in the West by defeating Montreal 6-4 while the Astros were losing to the New York Mets 5-4. Philadelphia edged Atlanta 5-4, San Francisco snapped the Chicago Cubs' seven-game win streak 3-0 and Los Angeles topped Pittsburgh 5-3 in 10 innings.

The Cardinals unleashed their highest run production of the season as Joe Torre, Lou Brock and Gibson all drove in three runs apiece. Torre smacked his ninth homer of the season and Gibson also homered for a little "self satisfaction."

Tommie Agee, a frequent goat during the recent New York Mets' road slump, redeemed himself by snapping an 0-for-20 dry spell with an eighth inning double and then scored the winning run on an error by Tommy Helms as Houston slipped a half-game behind Cincinnati.

The Reds parlayed a two-run triple by Pete Rose and a bases-loaded single by Tony Perez to defeat Montreal. Gary Nolan won his ninth game of the season but needed relief help from the Tom Hall and Clay Carroll.

Mike Ryan, a late-inning replacement, delivered a two-run double in the ninth inning to give the Phillies their win over Atlanta in a see-saw game that saw the score change six times. Ryan's game-winning hit came after Braves' reliever Cecil Upshaw had loaded the bases with three straight walks.

Casper Seeking 4th Western Open Win

NORTHBROOK, Ill. (UPI) — Billy Casper, rounding into form after an early-year slump, was to begin shooting for his fourth championship today in the Western Open — the tournament in which he earned his first professional paycheck 17 years ago.

Casper and defending champion Bruce Crampton head a field that includes seven of the year's top 10 moneywinners but is missing such key names as Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino and Arnold Palmer.

If Casper can score a fourth Western Open victory this week, he would move within one of the illustrious Walter Hagen, who won this tournament five times between 1916 and 1932.

But, Casper concedes, his fondest memory of the tournament came in 1955 at Portland, Ore., when all he did was tie for last place among the 72-hole survivors — and thus earn his first paycheck as a professional.

That check was for considerably less than the $30,000 the winner will get this week from a purse of $150,000 at the 6,716-yard, par-71 Sunset Ridge Country Club course.

Among the top money winners for the year in the field of 147 are Jerry Heard, George Archer, Tom Weiskopf, Crampton, Bobby Mitchell, Bob Murphy and Chi Chi Rodriguez.

The field will be cut to the low 70 and ties following Friday's second round for the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday. In case of a tie, there will be a sudden death playoff.

A suburban couple, whose home borders Tanglewood Country Club where the Cleveland Open is played, has filed a suit to halt the golf tournament.

The suit, filed Wednesday by Mr. and Mrs. Murray G. Fox, charged that spectators at the tournament would trespass on their property.

A hearing on the petition was scheduled for today.

Novato Post 540 Falls To Napa, 2-1

Napa spliced together a single, two infield outs and another single to score a run in the bottom of the ninth inning to defeat Novato Post 540 yesterday, 2-1, in an American Legion baseball game in Yountville.

Ken Siler pitched a five-hitter for Novato but took the defeat, fifth for Novato in seven District 5 games. Greg Mazeres doubled home Novato's lone run.

Rec Area Budget Boost Protested

Following an often bitter debate over escalating salaries, the Strawberry Recreation District has adopted an $84,495 preliminary budget for 1972-73, including a $2,000 raise for recreation manager David E. Roberts.

The tentative budget drew the wrath of many residents who claimed the Strawberry area didn't need and couldn't afford an $8,000 increase in the district's spending program.

According to the district's attorney, Stephen H. Kauffman, the current tax rate of 56 cents per $100 assessed valuation may drop with next year's budget — despite the increased spending — due to a recent upward reassessment of property which will increase tax revenue.

When the budget came up for a vote last week, board chairman Carl L. Schaefer cast the only negative vote. He said the budget called for more spending than the district could afford.

A proposal to boost Roberts's salary 50 per cent, from $10,000 to $15,000, after one year on the job, accounted for the most bitter moments of the heated budget hearings. Several taxpayers questioned the need for such a costly position in a district the size of Strawberry's.

The board finally agreed on a compromise figure of $12,025 for Roberts. He will earn an additional $750 from the district if he continues to serve as clerk of the board.

Despite some objections, the board also adopted proposed 50 per cent increases in retainers for the board's architect and attorney. Architect J. Martin Rosse was slated for an increase from $600 to $900, while Kauffman was scheduled for an increase from $1,200 to $1,800.

An additional $1,000 was allotted as a subsidy to the Strawberry Area Community Council to help defray publishing costs for a master plan it has prepared. The $1,000 subsidy drew the protests of some residents who claimed the council was concerned with an area broader than the recreation district.

The final budget included $19,050 for salaries; $28,395 for operations; $1,800 for capital expenditures; $23,250 for the bank loan on the community center, and $12,000 for reserves.

The district also will spend $2,140 for payments on Flood Control Zone 1 bonds.

San Rafael Pay Raise Agreement

The San Rafael City Council last night came to an agreement with the city's nonsafety employees for 3.5 per cent cost of living salary increases which would add $48,300 to the city's proposed $5.4 million operating budget for 1972-73.

City Mgr. James H. McCown said the agreement was reached in a closed session with representatives of the city's "miscellaneous employees," who are those other than members of the fire and police departments.

The council has been unable to reach agreement with these two departments, McCown said, and has set another negotiating session for 8 p.m. Monday in city hall. This meeting also will be closed to the public.

McCown said that policemen are asking that the salary schedule be readjusted with higher pay for sergeants and lieutenants. Firemen want the same pay as the police, he said.

Morningside Court Burglary Hearing Set

A slightly built man with a purplish black eye, who has been linked to about 50 burglaries in San Anselmo's Morningside Court area, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a count of burglary and another of obstructing a police officer.

David Richard Massagli, his face battered from an effort to escape police when he was arrested Monday, stood quietly as his plea was entered and Judge David R. Baty set a preliminary hearing for Aug. 1.

The 33-year-old man was arrested early Monday hiding in the kitchen in the Laura Ratto residence at 30 Broadmoor Avenue. San Anselmo police said he had been seen creeping through the back yard of the residence.

Massagli briefly escaped officers by leaping, while handcuffed, through the side window of a patrol car after butting an officer with his head. He was recaptured after a short chase on foot.

Police subsequently searched his home at 23 Brookside Drive and found loot that would fill a dozen pickup trucks and worth in the neighborhood of $60,000.

Chief Raymond R. Buchignani said that none of Massagli's alleged burglaries took place more than 10 blocks from his home, but said he apparently was involved in about 50 burglaries since 1969.

The loot was stored at his house and never sold, although he was unemployed, police said.

Among the property recovered was a rare collection of fossils, seashells and scientific books belonging to a College of Marin professor, 13 television sets, 30 cameras, five air conditioners and hundreds of other items which will be on display for residents of the neighborhood to look through from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily through Saturday.

Police said Massagli, who doesn't have a car, carried all the items home by foot, but apparently didn't arouse the suspicions of his mother. She told police her son said friends had given him everything.

Here's what you're missing in comfort, dependability and safety features if your Chevrolet is 3 years old.

GM MARK OF EXCELLENCE

Impala Custom Coupe

Chevelle Malibu Sport Coupe

What a '72 Impala has that your old one doesn't.

- Power front disc brakes, variable-ratio power steering and Turbo Hydra-matic automatic transmission are now standard equipment. Just three more examples of how we're building a better way to see the U.S.A.
- Long 121.5" wheelbase. Long on smoothness. Long on comfort.
- A full-molded foam front seat. Not only is it full foam, it's contoured to hold you comfortably. You find it in expensive cars. And now in Chevrolets.
- Power ventilation system. Keeps outside air coming inside—even when the car is stopped—without opening any windows.
- All Chevrolet engines run on low-lead, no-lead or regular gasoline.
- A double-panel roof that's strong on the outside, quiet on the inside.
- Sealed side-terminal battery. Terminals are sealed to prevent corrosion buildup.
- An advanced emission control system so we can all breathe a little easier.
- A front seat and shoulder belt system with reminder light and warning buzzer so you won't forget to buckle up.
- A hidden antenna in the windshield when you order a factory-installed radio. It won't get bent, folded or mutilated by vandals and garage doors.

You also can take comfort in Impala's traditionally high resale value. Which is another reason why Americans have bought more Impalas than any other car on the road—over 10 million so far.

What a '72 Chevelle has that your old one doesn't.

- A larger standard 6-cyl. engine (250 cu. in.). And all Chevelle engines now run on no-lead, low-lead or regular gasoline.
- Side-guard door beams—like those guard rails you see along the highway—are in the doors of every new Chevelle.
- An advanced emission control system that's helping to fight pollution.
- Corrosion-resistant, fully aluminized tailpipe for long life.
- Front seat and shoulder belt system with reminder light and warning buzzer. Just a gentle reminder that you should buckle up.
- A sealed side-terminal battery. With the terminals sealed, corrosion is less apt to build up and rob you of starting power.
- Long-lasting bias belted ply tires. Tire performance is improved because the twin belts keep it from squiggling away on the pavement.
- A refined Delcotron generator gives you improved reliability and greater durability.
- When you order a new Chevelle with a factory-installed radio, you get the antenna in the windshield. Safe from vandals and garage doors.

The '72 Chevelle has some other things going for it, too. Like its traditionally high resale value. Like being named the "Best Intermediate Sedan" in the annual Car and Driver Readers' Choice Poll. And being the most popular car in its field year after year after year.

Chevrolet. Building a better way to see the U.S.A. Chevrolet

Remember, buckling your seat and shoulder belts is an idea you can live with. Buckle up.

A Rally On Market In Late Trade

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market rallied late today but still closed lower or mixed in moderately active trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Prices were lower in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Analysts noted some stock prices had reached a depressed level and investors might have gone bargain hunting late in the session.

There still is considerable concern in the market over inflation and the international monetary situation.

In addition the British pound has weakened, causing a slide in the dollar on European markets. Analysts said this has led to speculation the Smithsonian agreement may lose its effectiveness, thus touching off another international monetary crisis.

Air Traffic Gains

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Air Transport Association reports passenger traffic flown by the U.S. scheduled airlines on both domestic and international routes in January was up 11.5 per cent over January, 1971. Traffic on the domestic trunk airlines increased 10.4 per cent in the 1972 month.

Random Selection, Random Results

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I randomly bought shares of International Industries (NYSE), American Pacesetter (P.C.E.) and Canada Southern Petroleum (P.C.E.). Could you give me any current information on these stocks? — P.K.

A. American Pacesetter, a Westcoast real estate developer, reported a six cent-a-share loss on sales of $19 million for 1971. With shares selling below $1, there is little to be gained from selling, unless you wish to establish a tax loss. Canada Southern is well worth holding on the basis of its exposure in the Arctic oil play.

International Industries appears to be working through its financial difficulties. Company has omitted paying six consecutive dividends on the Series A cumulative preferred shares, allowing shareholders to elect three members to the board to serve until dividends are paid up.

A plan to pay off these dividend arrearages has been approved by directors. The plan calls for payment of about 400,000 common shares for the $2.7 million owed.

In the 1971 fiscal year ended August, a $5.32 a share deficit was reported. First half sales through February gained 41 per cent to $40 million and the deficit was held to 6 cents a share. Several loss and marginal operations have been disposed of and according to management, operations are turning the corner.

In the future, may I suggest that you determine your investment needs and select stocks that fit your goals.

ABAG Amendments Shelved Till '73

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Pending amendments to legislation which would force all cities and counties in the nine-county Bay Area to belong to the Association of Bay Area Governments will be shelved until next year, their author said yesterday.

Assemblyman John T. Knox, D-Richmond, agreed to introduce the ABAG-sponsored amendments to give them widespread circulation, but has not committed himself to accept all of them in a 1973 bill he is planning.

Knox's staff said he will hold Bay Area hearings this fall on the amendments to get public reaction to them. The amendments are being drafted to his AB 220, a bill previously limited to minor amendments of the regional planning law.

The amendments would make ABAG itself a regional planning district if approved by two-thirds of the city council's county boards of supervisors in the region. Once formed, membership would be mandatory.

Cities and counties would be required to conform to ABAG's regional plans, which now are only advisory.

No Boost In Petaluma Buses

East Petaluma commuters have been told that no improvement is planned in bus service for the area by the Golden Gate Bridge District.

Jerome Kuykendall, district transportation developer, told the Petaluma Valley Homeowners Association Tuesday night he foresaw no additional buses to upgrade service in the area.

Association publicity chairman Cheryl Heringer said that although 20 new buses will be available in August there is no guarantee that any could be used to bolster Petaluma service.

Association members said they would continue to press for improvements and complained of parking problems since no neighborhood pickups are made.

Senate Acts On Agency Vote Plan

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Long-stalled legislation to allow county supervisors on the Bay Conservation and Development Commission to designate alternates to vote in their place has cleared the Senate Local Government Committee.

The bill, SB 181 by Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, was asked by the Commission because supervisors often miss meetings and jeopardize its ability to muster a quorum. Supervisors originally had the power to appoint citizens as alternate commissioners, but lost this power in 1969 under an amendment by former Sen. John F. McCarthy, R-San Rafael.

McCarthy's amendment limited alternates to fellow supervisors, which proved too restrictive, according to the commission.

Both the Sierra Club and the committee's chairman, Milton Marks, R-San Francisco, had objected that citizen alternates would not be as responsive to the public as elected officials.

Marks voted for it after getting Behr's agreement to an amendment limiting alternates to "public officials." It was an amendment with virtually no effect, Behr said, "so I accepted it gleefully."

Behr said the amendment still would allow supervisors to appoint a citizen as commission alternates just so long as the citizen held any appointed office. A member of the county planning commission, for example, could be an alternate under the amendment, the senator said.

The bill went to the upper house floor.

Petaluman Is Winner Of Best In Show Honors

Sculptor William Jaqwith Evans of Petaluma has won best in show honors at the artrium art show which opens at 7:30 p.m. today in Doyle Hall at Santa Rosa Junior College.

Evans, an industrial arts teacher at California School for the Blind in Berkeley, won the $100 top prize for a laminated wood sculpture.

Other Marin and Southern Sonoma art winners include Glen Himburg of Mill Valley, first and second place in jewelery, and Barbara Woldemar of Corte Madera, first place textiles.

The art show will continue through Sunday. Other events will include folk dancing, puppet shows, performances by the Santa Rosa Ballet Company, Santa Rosa Players' Childrens Theatre, Sonoma County Concert Band, Joseph Fiala Woodwind Ensemble and Baroque Sinfonia.

Two-Wheelers May Outnumber Marin's Autos

The four-wheeled automobile, the main source of transportation in Marin County, is facing serious competition from the two-wheeled bicycle.

In fact, the two-wheeler may have passed up the four-wheeler in the actual number of vehicles in the county, although no accurate bicycle count is available.

Marin's car registration for 1971 totaled 112,538 automobiles and 12,861 trucks, for a total of 125,399. Informal estimates place Marin's cycling population at three-fourths of the county's total of 207,000, or about 155,000 perons.

As recently as 1968, youth in Marin were quoted as saying high school students "wouldn't be caught dead riding a bicycle to school."

FAD CATCHES ON

Even as such assertions were being made, the bicycle fad had caught on and was engulfing the population.

In 1965, only a half dozen bicycle shops were listed in the Marin County telephone directory. This rose to eight shops in 1969, 11 in 1971 and 20 shops listed in this year's directory.

The lowly two-wheeler, shunned like the plague a few years ago, is now a beloved companion for all ages from the toddler to grandma.

Some bike enthusiasts contend that the cycling fad has already peaked and is on the way down, but most observers feel that bicycling is still the rage and is here to stay.

At least, that is the assumption on which the Marin County Parks and Recreation Department, with the cooperation of various cities and other governing agencies, is continuing to improve what is still only a sketchy county bicycle path system.

BIKE PATH SYSTEM

A countywide bike path system does exist, with 215 miles of bicycle paths outline on the map. However, the bulk of these "bike paths" represent existing streets and highways that are mainly for automobile use. Only about 15 or 20 miles are signed bicycle routes that provide relatively safe riding.

Pierre W. Joske, county parks and recreation director, and Don L. Rolph, county park planner, gave this report on the current status of bicycle paths.

Cyclists can ride from San Francisco over the Golden Gate Bridge and get off at the special bicycle offramp built by the Golden Gate Bridge District onto Conzelman Road, the military road in Fort Baker. This leads through Fort Baker into signed city streets in Sausalito. From about Gate 4, a city bicycle path heads north to the Sausalito Bait Shop area, where the county path connects Sausalito with Dolan's Corner in Mill Valley.

The cyclist must then ride alongside city and county streets to continue north into Corte Madera over Corte Madera Grade or east over Alto interchange and onto Tiburon Boulevard. One of the best bike paths in the county starts from Blackie's Pasture near Trestle Glen and continues into downtown Tiburon with a first-class black topping riding lane.

There is no short, easy ride from Mill Valley into Corte Madera. The cyclist must either take the steep old county highway (Corte Madera Grade) or make the Paradise Drive loop and come out at Corte Madera Wye.

BACK STREETS

From Corte Madera northward, the cyclists use existing back streets of Larkspur, Kentfield, San Anselmo and San Rafael. At San Rafael, the bike rider may take the San Pedro Road loop around China Camp and come out at the Civic Center or head directly over Puerto Suello Hill into Terra Linda.

At Marinwood, the cyclist runs into a major north-south

Ten Interesting Outings Offer Variety To Marin Bicycle Fans

Experienced cyclists recommend the less-traveled rural roads for family bicycle rides.

Here are some localized bicycle trails recommended by the Mill Valley Cyclery:

1. Bear Valley Trail — Ten mile-round trip. Excellent family ride. Hikers and bikersonly. No food or drink available. Breathtaking view at ocean end. Leave car at Point Reyes Park headquarters near Olema. Free trail maps.

2. Nicasio Loop — About 20 miles, mostly level, light traffic. Be sure to go clockwise (Nicasio to San Geronimo to Taylor State Park, Tocaloma to Platform Bridge Road to reservoir to Nicasio) to take advantage of prevailing winds. To avoid heavy traffic, ride inside state park from park entrance to swimming hole.

3. Paradise Drive Loop. — About 20 miles, hilly. Begin at the Strawberry Shopping Center, south on frontage road parallel to Highway 101. Left on Seminary Drive, follow lagoon to Strawberry Drive. Follow this to Tiburon Boulevard. Right one block to traffic light. Turn right, ride on frontage road (Greenwood Road) until it joins Tiburon Boulevard again near Trestle Glen. Stay on Tiburon Boulevard. (Walk bikes uphill if traffic is heavy — caution here!)

Either ride straight into Tiburon or turn right on San Rafael Avenue. Either stay on San Rafael Avenue or stronger riders turn right on West Shore Road and up steep hill to Belvedere Road into Tiburon. From Tiburon stay on Paradise Drive to Paradise Beach County Park (restrooms, picnic facilities, fishing and swimming). On to the firehouse at Trestle Glen Boulevard.

4. Stinson Beach-Bolinas — About seven miles, very flat. Heavy weekend traffic. Passes Audubon Canyon Ranch bird sanctuary.

5. Cascade Canyon Loop — About seven miles. Begin hilly ride at Mill Valley Cyclery. North on Miller Avenue to center of town. Left on Throckmorton to Old Mill Park. Right on Cascade after bridge. Stay on this all the way for slow, gradual climb to end of paved road. Right on Lovell to stop sign. Right on Elma, left on Throckmorton past stop sign. Right on Ethel to Montford, then left to Mill Valley Cyclery.

6. China Camp Loop — Ten to 12 miles, flat to rolling hard surfaced road. Nice scenery, little traffic, excellent family ride. McNear Beach Park enroute offers swimming and picnic facilities. Begin at Marin County Civic Center and ride east on North San Pedro Road. Circular route returns to Civic Center.

7. Angel Island — Several miles of hard surfaced roads. Hilly, no cars. Picnic area. Spectacular views of San Francisco and bay. Ferry leaves Tiburon at Windjammer restaurant. Call Angel Island State Park Ferry for information.

8. Ross To Fairfax— Six mile-round trip. Flat, safe, excellent family ride. At Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross, turn on Lagunitas Road one block and leave car near school. Cycle on Shady Lane to Bolinas Road and follow the bike route signs. Route ends near Marin Town and Country Club in Fairfax, open to the public for swimming, picnicking, barbecue, tennis etc.

9. Tennessee Valley Road — Three to four mile round trip. Excellent family trip. Hard surface rolling road. Little traffic, nice scenery. Start at Peace Lutheran Church parking lot off Shoreline Highway.

10. Sausalito-San Francisco via Ferry and return via Golden Gate Bridge — Free auto parking at Golden Gate parking lot off Bridgeway on Harbor Drive. Bike to ferry landing in downtown Sausalito (Anchor Street). After debarking at San Francisco Ferry Building, follow map for return to Sausalito over Golden Gate Bridge.

OUR VOLVO WAGON HAS 3 WIPERS FOR THE SAME REASON IT HAS TWO SETS OF 3-WHEEL DISC BRAKES.

The reason a Volvo 145 has an electric windshield wiper and washer on the tailgate window is transparent.

The reason it comes with four-wheel power disc brakes and two independent brake circuits, each working on three wheels, is just as clear.

So when shopping for a wagon, you have two obvious reasons for coming to us.

BREEZING ALONG — Mr. and Mrs. Donald Loomis and son John of Belveron Gardens are typical of the thousands of families that are discovering the back roads and trails of Marin via the two-wheeler.

County Bike Paths Growing For Riders

bottleneck. There is no route along Highway 101 at that point, and the cyclist must detour along Lucas Valley Road to Nicasio Road, up Petaluma-Point Reyes Road and into Petaluma.

From Petaluma-Point Reyes Road, a cyclist can double back into Novato via Novato Boulevard, but Highway 101 from Novato to Sonoma County is dangerous for bicycles.

PROJECTS UNDER WAY

Here are some of the current projects underway to make cycling safer and more enjoyable:

1. Novato to Stafford Lake. Plans for a bike path (blacktop six to eight feet wide) two and one-half miles long, from Sutro Avenue to Stafford Lake County Park, are out to bid and should be completed this summer.

2. Corte Madera Creek. Plans are also out to bid on a mile and a quarter path along the creek bank from Bon Air Bridge to College Avenue in Kentfield.

3. At Fort Baker, the Army has paved Conzelman Road (formerly dirt road), to provide a smooth connector between Golden Gate Bridge and Sausalito.

Possible bicycle projects in the future include:

1. A bike path from Lomita Drive at Alto to Casa Buena Drive in Corte Madera, alongside Highway 101. This would provide a shortcut for those who now push their way up Corte Madera grade or take the circuitious Tiburon Boulevard-Trestle Glen-Paradise Drive route.

2. College Avenue to Ross Commons — through College of Marin grounds, along the creek to Ross.

3. A bike path along Highway 101 from Miller Creek Road in Marinwood to Nave Drive in Ignacio. This would be unnecessary if Las Gallinas Avenue in Marinwood is extended northward to tie into Alameda del Prado.

4. A cooperative venture with Marin Municipal Water District for a 22-mile route from the Marin Civic Center to Point Reyes Seashore headquarters. Such a path would follow Freitas Parkway in Terra Linda over the hill to Sleepy Hollow, Butterfield Road to Van Winkle Drive, then follow the water district pipelines to Smith Saddle tanks and over the old narrow gauge railroad right-of-way to White's Hill. An overpass at White's Hill would take the cyclist to Meadow Drive in Woodacre, Forest Knolls, and a separated path alongside Sir Francis Drake Boulevard to Lagunitas, where the path would pick up the old railroad right-of-way to Taylor Park and Tocaloma, then follow the creek to Bear Valley Road.

Any of these proposals, where county time or expense is involved, would require approval from the Marin County Board of Supervisors.

Meanwhile, path, no path or partial path, Marin's bike population is on the move, pedaling and pushing out in all directions in search of fresh air, sunshine, and elbow room.

Where To Find Bike Sales, Repair Help

Here are the Marin County bicycle shops as listed in the latest telephone directory. Most of them sell and repair, a few are engaged only in sales of bikes and/or accessories and a couple of the shops rent bicycles. Many of them give information on bike rides and trails.

THE BICYCLE STOP, Marinship, Sausalito, 332-3072.

BILL'S BIKE SHOP, 128 Tunstead Avenue, San Anselmo, 456-1403, sale and repair.

BONESHAKER, 912 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, San Anselmo, Red Hill Shopping Center, 454-5727, sale and repair.

Driving At High Altitude

A sudden splitting headache, shortness of breath, rapidly rising pulse, and repeated yawns are all symptoms that tell a driver that high altitudes don't agree with him.

Should you become affected in mountain country, points out the National Automobile Club, you would be wise to remember that such symptoms impair driving ability and must be fought with rest.

At the first safe spot, park your car, lock the doors, open two or more windows, and get 30 minutes or longer of sleep. When you resume driving, leave some windows open and play the radio, sing, or provide some other distraction. And do keep your eyes moving.

Some Tips On Running Your Boat

At first glance, steering a boat seems to require exactly the same strategy and technique as does steering an automobile. But how does it differ?

Trial-and-error runs by the automobile driver who recently joined the ranks of boating novices, according to the Automobile Club, reveal that a boat's back end responds first to a turn of the steering wheel. And exactly the opposite holds true for the automobile.

On your first runs and all the others to follow, remember the aforementioned important point. When you want to take your boat out, push the boat away from the pier or leave the pier at a slight angle until clear. That way you can save that pier and your boat from bearing telltale scars of your unwitting misdeeds.

Six Bay Area Plants Among Leaders in Recycling Glass

Six Bay Area plants accounted for 14 million of the more than 211 million used glass containers that were reclaimed and recycled into new bottles and jars during the first three months of 1972, it is reported by the Glass Container Manufacturers Institute, which has its western headquarters in Oakland.

This compares with 96 million bottles and jars collected by the public in the January-March quarter of 1971. The Institute also reported that more than 1 billion bottles have been recycled into new glass containers and other secondary products since the reclamation program began about two years ago.

Nearly 100 glass container plants of GCMI member companies in 25 states have paid more than $5 million to the public for over 250,000 tons of refuse converted into useful products, the report said.

"This unprecedented volume of recycling is the result of enthusiastic public response arising from growing concern with environment problems," Richard L. Cheney, president of GCMI, said.

Boy and Girl Scout troops, Jaycees, 4-H Clubs and conservation groups have been among the most active of the many citizen organizations participating in the bottle roundup.

Most of the reclaimed bottles and jars are crushed into cullet and melted in glass furnaces to make new glass containers. Others have been recycled on an experimental basis into such potentially useful products as interior wall panels, terrazzo tile flooring, glass wool insulation, bricks and glasphalt, a new blacktop paving material

Cheney emphasized that the glass container industry conceived the present bottle reclamation program as "an important step — but only a step — toward our long-range goal, which must be the recovery of recyclable wastes on a mechanized basis."

GCMI member companies in the Bay Area are Brockway Glass Co., Oakland; Owens-Illinois with plants in Oakland and Tracy; Glass Container Corp., with plants in Antioch and Hayward, and Anchor Hocking Corp., San Leandro.

SUMMER BARBECUE GUIDE

It's Time To Move Kitchen Outdoors

OUTDOOR GOURMET TREAT — Fresh trout wrapped in bacon and brushed with a sauce of white wine and butter is an unusual barbecue specialty for the warm summer days ahead. Sprinkle the trout with chopped almonds and Parmesan cheese just before serving. Spreading the charcoals about an inch apart after the fire is going will prevent flame-ups while grilling.

Let's eat out — on the patio. Summery weather, even if the calendar says spring, calls for the family and friends to move outside for meals.

Whether you do an elaborate garden barbecue to entertain the friends and neighbors or a more paper-plate style of eating out, the fun is the same.

First, dust off the barbecue, wipe the grill clean if the cat hasn't already given it a good going-over, and get out the barbecue mitt and long fork, spoon and spatula, or tongs.

Charcoal briquets should be in good supply, and an electric charcoal starter will keep the chef from flaring up before the barbecue does. Otherwise it's matches, paper and fire-starting fluid, which must be handled very cautiously to avoid dangerous burns.

It's a good idea, too, to keep a sprinkling can of water handy to douse flame-ups or sparks. Expert barbecuers say the secret of a good barbecue fire is to use charcoal sparingly, start the fire a good 20 minutes ahead of cooking time and to move the briquets about an inch apart once they are ignited to prevent big flames. Not too much fire is needed to barbecue for small numbers of people.

Begin cooking after the charcoal turns a light gray shade.

What to cook? Everybody does the hotdog or hamburger, beans and salad dinner at least several times a summer, so you know it's still popular. Especially with the children.

What else? Lamb, beef or pork roasts are excellent if you have a rotisserie and they don't take much tending. They do take long cooking, however.

You can do a rotisserie style beef rib eye (Delmonico) roast in 1½ to 2½ hours, depending on how done you like it and the size of the roast. Insert the rotisserie rod lengthwise into the center of the roast, as well balanced as possible. Then tighten the spit forks.

Insert a meat thermometer so that it goes through the thickest part of the roast but does not touch the metal rod. Cook at moderate temperature — over ash-covered coals — to desired doneness. The thermometer will register 140 degrees for rare; 160 degrees for medium, and 170 degrees for well-done meat. A four to six pound roast cooks well this way.

Broiled Porterhouse beef steaks are good done on the grill without the rotisserie. Order them cut one to two inches thick. Salt and pepper them and place them on the grill, which is about three inches from the heat.

When one side is browned, turn carefully so juices don't escape and finish cooking the second side. Season and serve right away. Two-inch cuts take about 30 minutes for rare and 40 minutes total for medium. One-inch cuts take only about 15 to 20 minutes all told for rare, and 25 minutes for medium.

There's a tangy salad that goes well with this —tossed in a large bowl.

Combine four cups of torn iceberg lettuce, three cups torn fresh spinach, an eight and one half ounce can of diagonal cut green beans, drained; an 11 ounce can of mandarin oranges, drained; one small onion sliced into thin separated rings. Toss lightly and add bottled sweet-and-sour salad dressing just before serving.

Maybe you prefer fresh trout on the grill and are lucky enough to have some. Baste fish with a wine and butter sauce and it will be even better.

First, wash and dry trout; season with salt and pepper. Wrap a partly-cooked slice of bacon around each fish. Place on grill over hot coals. Brush with a mixture of four tablespoons butter melted and one cup of dry sauterne or catawba wine (for four fish). Repeat about three times during the cooking time — about 15 minutes depending on the hotness of the fire. Turn fish once during this time, again basting. When trout is almost done, sprinkle on a small amount of grated Parmesan cheese and chopped almonds. Leave on the grill until the cheese melts.

Maybe you'd rather try barbecued kabobs made with lunch meat, good for either lunch or patio supper. They're skewered and cooked over the coals.

To serve six, take two cans (12 ounces each) of luncheon meat and cut in halves lengthwise, then cut each piece into six cubes. Gather green pepper squares, small boiled onions, cherry tomatoes and whole mushrooms and thread a combination of ingredients on skewers.

Combine eight ounce can jellied cranberry sauce, juice of one lemon, one-fourth cup melted butter and one-quarter teaspoon grated lemon peel. Put one tablespoon minced onion into one tablespoon water to soften. Then add to above glaze mixture.

Brush over kabobs, and broil them over gray coals for 10 minutes on each side, brushing with the glaze every few minutes. Serve on a toasted hero loaf, closing split bun on the skewered food and drawing out the skewer.

Plan History Trip Next

After mulling over possible attractions to visit on your next motoring trip, you would gain much from including one of historical interest.

Such an attraction, according to the National Automobile Club, is "El Alisal" or "The Sycamore," an unusual house built in northeastern Los Angeles by an unusual man.

Charles F. Lummis, author, editor, historian, librarian, and archaeologist, not only founded the Southwest Museum in Los Angeles in 1907 but also created the slogan "See America First."

Pre-Season Checkups Avert Travel Hitches

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — While you're checking over the gear you'll use when you get to your favorite recreation spot this season, don't forget to check out the gear that has to get you there, reminds the Tire Industry Safety Council.

"Your camper and trailer tires have probably been stored as long as your recreation equipment," says Council chairman Ross R. Ormsby, "and a flat could spoil the fun as easily as a leaky boat."

When you inspect your recreational vehicle tires if the tread groove depth is 1/16 inch or less in two or more adjacent grooves they should be replaced.

This is the legal minimum in many states, and now is a good time to estimate if your remaining tread groove depth will last you through the season before it reaches the minimum safe level of 1/16.

Always carry a spare tire and wheel and include it in your inspection, insuring it is also properly inflated and you have the necessary tools for changing. Acquiring a special size tire may not be possible if you travel to remote areas.

When you load up, insure the weight is equalized side to side and properly distributed fore and aft. When properly inflated this will promote even tread wear.

Normally you'll want tires capable of higher inflation pressures that standard passenger car tires to handle the heavier loads of these recreation vehicles.

Check your dealer or owner's manual for size and inflation recommendations.

Remember, when a heavy trailer is being towed it can possibly reduce steering ability of the towing vehicle, requiring extra caution on the part of the driver.

The rear tires on the towing vehicle act as a fulcrum, or center of total pulled weight distribution. The normal load on the front tires is lightened with resulting decrease in deflection and contact area.

Inspect your tires regularly for foreign matter imbedded in the tread which could penetrate the tread and cause flats or other costly damage, especially if you run on rough roads.

And watch for overheating in smaller trailer tires. They can turn up to 80 per cent more revolutions per mile than those on your towing vehicle.

The Tire Industry Safety Council offers free of charge a Recreational Vehicle Consumer Tire Guide containing information on the care and maintenance of recreational vehicle tires, and proper load and inflation tables. The guide may be obtained by writing to "Recreation," Box 726, New York, N.Y. 10010.

In 5 minutes it had better turn into a station wagon.

When something tells you to break camp fast, the Volkswagen Campmobile is an easy camp to break.

The tent folds up in four minutes and the roof clamps shut in 10 seconds. Which leaves you 50 seconds to tidy up inside. Before the tide comes in outside.

Time enough to open all the curtains. Put the milk in the icebox. Rinse your coffee cup in the sink. Make the dining room table disappear. Turn the full-length double bed into a seat.

And that's it.

You're ready to head for higher ground in a VW-type station wagon with all the VW-type virtues:

An air-cooled engine that presses down on the rear wheels, giving you extra traction in snow. And sand. (We got you into this mess. And we'll get you out of it.)

Gas economy. Up to 23 miles on a gallon of regular.

So if you go home empty-handed in a Campmobile, you're really empty.

INDUSTRY DEFIES DROUGHT

Pool Builders Predict Wet Year

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The blue Pacific and its smooth strand of beaches are tough competition, but the swimming pool industry has done more than just keep its head above water.

If anything, the early appearance of summer weather in the Golden State has assured some 500 Southern California pool construction firms of the "wettest" year ever.

Time and technology — and a healthy new respect for creativity in concrete — have done wonders for this leisure industry, especially in Southern California, the undisputed cradle of the pool world since the 1950s.

Years ago Liberace made quite a splash with his unique piano-shaped pool, and Hollywood's blonde goddess Jayne Mansfield spent a small fortune on a pool contoured like a heart. But those days are past when only celebrities could indulge their hot weather fantasies.

Today the homeowner with a good job, healthy credit and the capacity to shoulder the monthly financial demands of a pool can put a "beach in his backyard" for under $4,500 with a few accessories thrown in.

Put an accent on "few."

Often the load of poolside extras magnify the final cost to more than the pool itself. And by winter the perspiring new owner wonders if a second mortgage can pull him from deep water.

"A lot of people don't realize they're in for $50-$100 monthly payments for the rest of their life," says Ken Bourguignon, a partner in Dotkin Pools in San Fernando Valley.

"Pools aren't cheap, and though I shouldn't say it, they're the worst investment. But if customers want them, I'll build them."

Bourguignon, whose custom firm has one of the busiest schedules, owns a $17,000 pool in which he and wife swim only about six times a year. He figures it costs $500 a dunking.

Pools ordinarily require a month to build — from the first city inspection to the last — but many clients can't wait. Most builders have seen clients so fevered to dive into their own pool "they practically want to drive it from our showroom."

This same fever among the summer trade too often causes customers to gullibly enter into shaky agreements drawn up by aggressive commission salesman.

"People want to believe the builder who is cheapest, and they must convince themselves the salesman is honest. Then, when they get burned it reflects on the entire industry," says a spokesman for Anthony Pools.

Prospective pool owners got a break in March, though. The state legislature passed a law allowing them to break a deal within three days if they're not satisfied.

Jack Butefish, president of the Southern California Swimming Pool Association, concedes builder competition occasionally gets "aggresive and immature" to the point of "badmouthing" the opposition.

"It's a consumer era now and there's all sorts of new rules. The offending builders have never had to play the new way," he said.

"Swim now, pay later — much later," capsulizes the pool business in 1972, a time when banks and savings and loan firms are jockeying to attract the "discretionary dollar." Interest rates have been whittled, the economy is flexing and magazine ads for home improvements are blooming like wildflowers.

Pool loans don't have to be paid out for 10 years, and the first payment is not due for 90 days.

This year some 12,000 Californians will take the plunge. Already pooldom's Big Ten — including Anthony's, Blue Haven and Sunset Pools — have recorded a 64 per cent increase in first quarter orders over 1971. Some 2,900 permits have been issued in Southern California so far compared to 1,762 last year at this time.

When the searing Santa Ana winds spill into Southern California, it's clear why the San Fernando Valley leads the nation in pools built. In Orange County the same brisk activity is due to new home building.

The valley alone has 53,000 pools. Yet Palm Springs, with its wealthy year-round population, has perhaps the highest per capita number of pools in the U.S. — one home in five is equipped.

When Buster Crabbe was still swimming laps, and Dorothy Lamour had a sarong, pools were rectangular because old-fashioned concrete forms had to be poured.

But gunnite, a concrete mixture sprayed from airguns, revolutionized the industry in the early 1950s and pool geometry really took shape — tear-shaped, kidney, oval, round. The technique also reduced pool costs for white collar salaries. Today there are far more than 250,000 pools in California and the majority are quickly constructed with gunnite.

One of the more distinctive in Southern California perches on a hillside terrace in Encino overlooking San Fernando Valley. Owned by Irv Robbins, owner of the Baskin-Robbins Ice Cream franchise, the pool is distinctively shaped like a cone.

"If I had a larger property," Robbins tells visitors, "I'd have had a double scoop pool." Jetliner crews often point out the pool to passengers as they fly low into Los Angeles.

A young Inglewood foot specialist, Jerome Tirsch, spent $12,000 for a unique foot-shaped pool-the "big toe" contains a smaller, frothy therapy pool.

Southern California's love affair with backyard bathtubs is legend, and at 5,000 feet the Santa Monica Mountains wink with the tiny blue sequins of hundreds of pools.

One hilltop dweller, Lakers basketball star Wilt Chamberlain, recently built a million-dollar home and sank $160,000 into a freeform pool. It winds like a moat into the house.

"You can even swim into the living room for a cocktail," muses Bourgignon, whose valley firm designed the pool.

Not to be outdone, Playboy's Hugh Hefner has taken up in residence in a Tudoar-style mansion in Beverly Hills, spending $250,000 on a vast, boulder-edged pool laced with streams, six waterfalls and goldfish ponds.

There's also a Hefnerian underwater grotto with psychedelic lights, and hi-fi music. "If cost is no object, we can do it," is the motto of the valley outfit that designed the Playboy playground.

And, if you're going to throw a party, be sure to invite HarryClaus in the valley. The popularcomic illustrator rents huge, full-colored murals for the bottom of your pool — his 17-foot nude is a favorite, or there are birthday cake designs or a giant beer labels.

Veteran Outdoorsman Recalls When Back Packs Were Heavier

"Believe me," says William B. (Bill) Evans, veteran climber and backpacker, "backpacking was not regarded as 'pleasent recreation' 60 years ago!"

Evans, a friend of the Mountain House, hiking and camping store in Kentfield, looks with amazement on the new lightweight, compact, quality gear available today for treks in the "Bush." He remembers very different equipment that he had to cope with as a young British engineer doing topographical surveys in British Columbia.

He recalls that crews went "in" for periods of eight or nine months at a time. Once embarked, there would be no contact with the outside world — as he puts it: "no wine or women for temptation and grief!" All equipment needed, plus whatever might be needed for repairs, had to be carried in.

Food and tents were brought in by a pack train of horses or mules. When trails had to be cut; trail-makers brought in axes, saws, wedges, sledges, etc: and when this was so, each stage of packing in had to be done in relays, first food, then individuals with their packs, and sometimes days later, the heavy tents.

Since much of the surveying was through cold rain forest, clothes and rain gear were quite heavy. Mackinaws were worn for shirts; boots were knee-high. Rain pants, "tin pants," were made of paraffined duck cloth. Tarpaulins were of this same waxed duck and very heavy.

Reading and poker were the main diversions, so books and cards were carried in. "Liquor was absolutely taboo. A drink and you went down the trail to boat-head!"

"Sleeping bags were not used in those days, and they were viewed with suspicion. It was alleged you might get too hot in them and then could only open up and be too cold. Blankets were used, usually Hudson Bays. Sheets were not."

Individual packs were made by wrapping your things in one of the heavy waxed tarps, then cinching it up with a leather harness which included shoulder straps. Says Evans: "Another way to carry the pack was to make the ancestor of all modern packs: The old corrugated iron washboard with the pack roped on. Metal eyelets were spaced on the wooden side slots and the pack fastened to the board by lacing through them. We made these pack boards ourselves." Many used trump-lines to the forehead, thus transfering some of the load to the neck. These packs would weigh anything from 70 to 125 pounds. A good squaw with a trump line could do 200 pounds. "But," says Evans, "we weren't good squaws!"

In contrast to the back-packing of the early 1900's, Christie Fairchild of the Mountain House and Evans compared a 20 pound pack in which tent, sleeping bag, foam pad, warm clothes, rain clothes, food, cooking gear, and incidentals, — all light and compact — carry in one simple shoulder pack scientifically designed to carry the weight most comfortably by the bearer.

Today's improved fabrics and equipment make backpacking a pleasure. The experienced hiker can go for weeks in the back country with no heavier load then 35 pounds. Dehydrated foods, light durable metals, compressable down garments and sleepers, strong but light nylon fabrics — all work together to make today's back-packing deluxe the supplier said.

Camp On Wheels Has Charm

Volkswagen's Campmobile goes the vacation hideaway "three better." It not only provides living and sleeping space for a family of four or five, but does it wherever and whenever the owner wants and then promptly switches back to work-a-day use with the turn of its key.

One of the most versatile vehilces on the road, the VW Campmobile's 7.3-inch road clearance and rear-wheel traction enable it to reach spots far off the beaten track — and deliver a sedan-like ride in the bargain with its independent torsion bar suspension. That means that it can turn almost any spot into a secluded hideaway. About all it takes to work its magic is a map leading to the coast, mountains, woods or whatever — and the time to drive there.

Heart of the Campmobile is VW's new 1700-cc twin-carburetor rear engine which delivers nearly 25 percent more power than last year's model. That means faster get-up-and-go under all driving conditions, including improved hill-climbing performance.

Only about 15 inches longer than the familiar VW Beetle, the 1972 Campmobile — built on the same chassis as VW's bus-like Station Wagon — serves variously as living room, dinette, kitchen and bedroom while on vacation and during weekend get-aways. The rest of the time it serves as a family auto — for shopping, driving to the commuter train station and other routine duties.

The vehicle's compact "kitchen" area is equipped with a 1.6-cubic-foot insulated ice-box, 7½-gallon water tank, pump-equipped stainless steel sink which is recessed into the top of the ice-box cabinet and a collapsible utility table. Hinge-mounted to the wall of the ice-box cabinet, the table covers a two-shelf "pantry," swinging up into position to hold a camp stove.

Power for interior lights is drawn from the vehicle's 12-volt battery while power for 110-volt electrical appliances is supplied from the outside through a socket installed in the outer wall of the vehicle itself.

At night the vehicle turns into sleeping quarters for four with a full-width 76-inch long double bed for two adults and smaller berths for two children. An optional "pop-top" which literally raise the Campmobile's roof provides a five-foot-long "upper" for a third child.

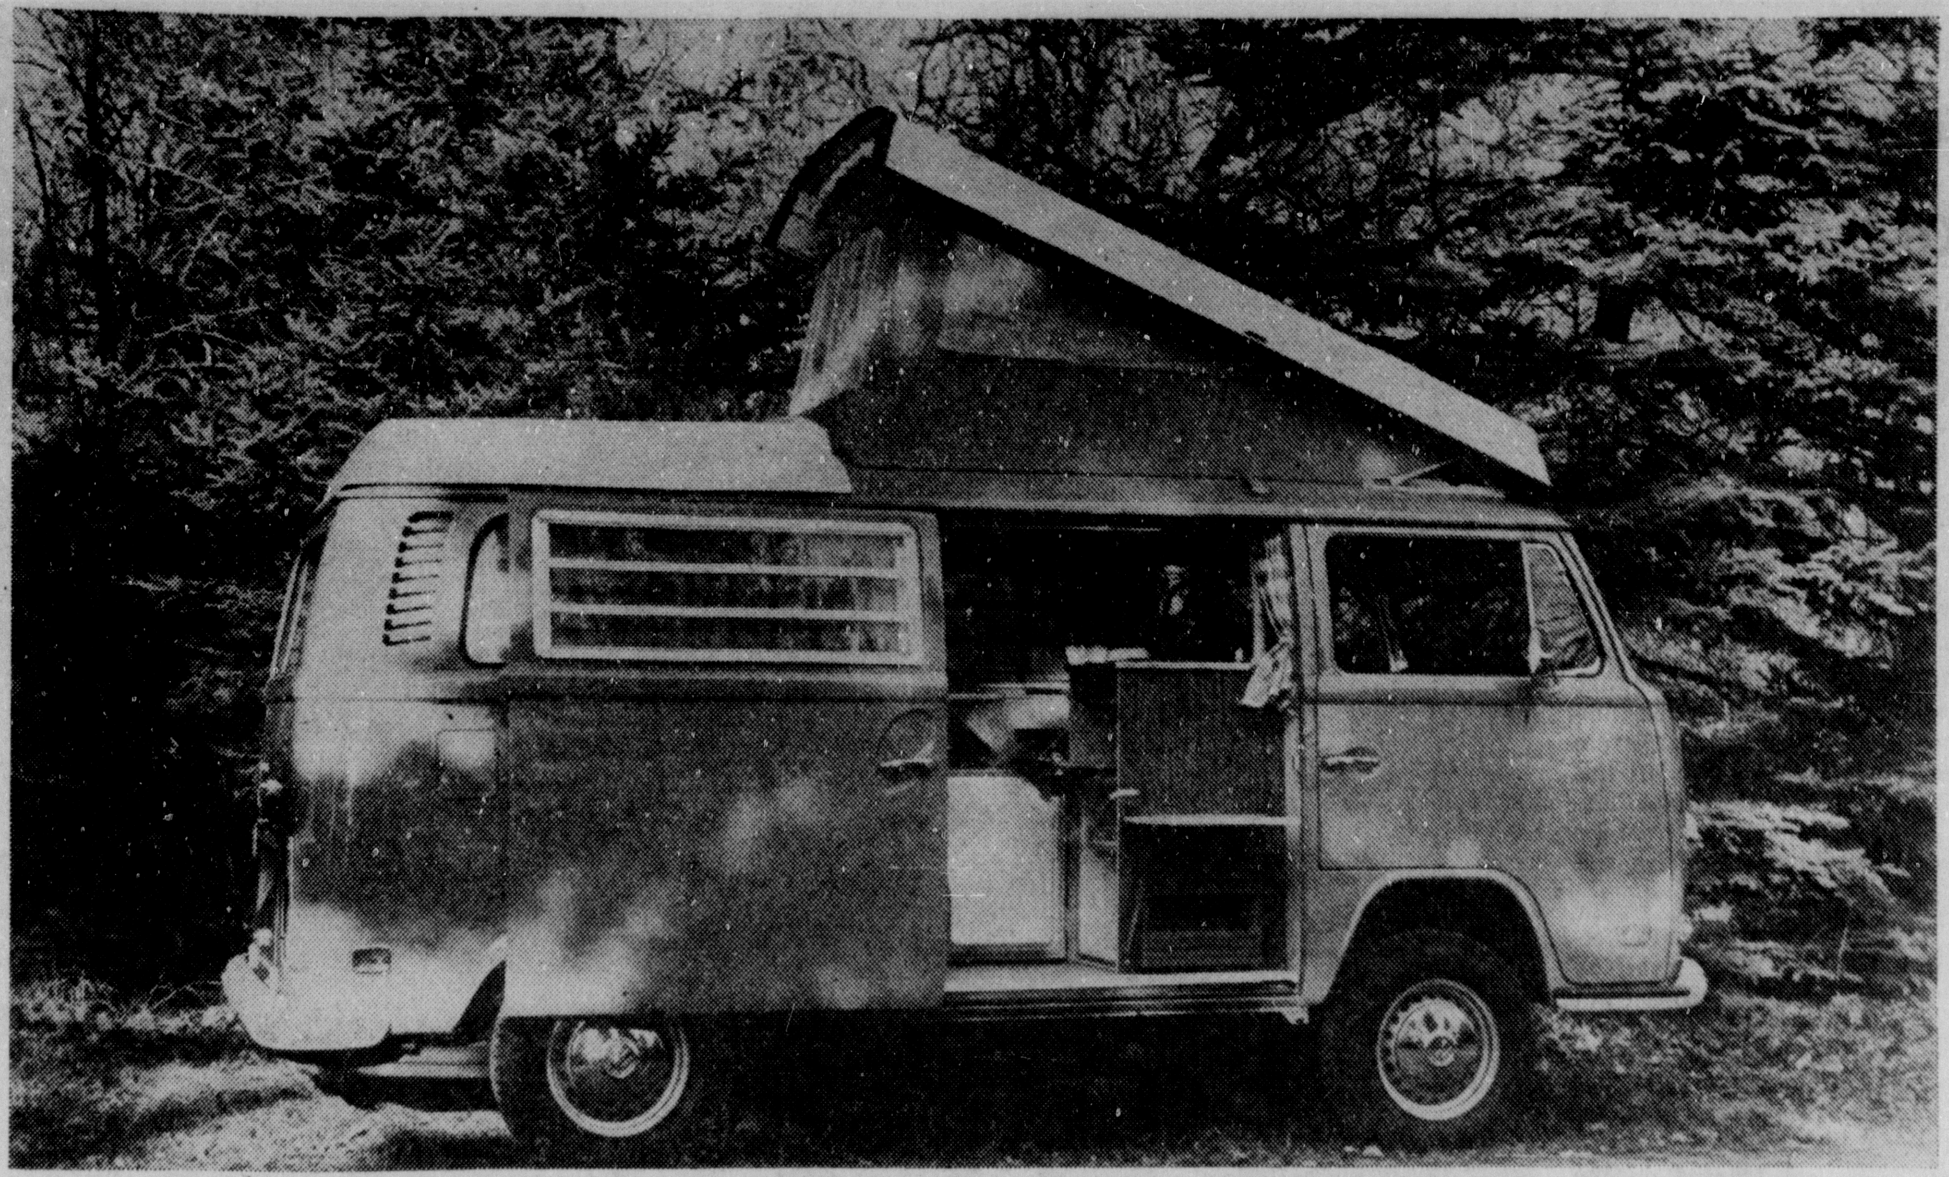
The "pop-top" itself is equipped with screening material to shut out insects while a snap-on collapsible screen also is provided for the vehicle's four-foot-wide rear door. All windows are curtain-equipped for inside privacy, the louver-type center windows on each side also equipped with screens.

Optional in addition to the "pop-top" roof is a free-standing tent which can be left behind at a camping site whenever the vehicle is driven off on a short trip. In use, the tent provides a screened-in "living room" or extra bedroom measuring nine feet eight inches by six feet six inches.

Easy-to-clean polyvinyl flooring is used wall-to-wall inside the Campmobile while both interior wall and ceiling paneling is backed by fiber-glass insulating material.

Braking power was increased for 1972 through the addition of larger rear-wheel brake cylinders. Already equipped with a power-assisted braking system for quick, easy stops, the 1972 Campmobile features radial ply tires as standard equipment.

As with all new Volkswagens, the Campmobile is backed by a 24-month or 24,000-mile — which ever comes first — warranty and is delivered with coupons good for free VW diagnosis at 6,000-mile intervals during their first 24,000 miles of operation.



VERSATILE CAMPMOBILE — Powered by a new 1700-cc twin-carburetor engine, Volkswagen's 1972 Campmobile rates as one of the most versatile go-anywhere vehicles on the road — serving variously as living room, dinette, kitchen and bedroom while on vacation and as a family auto the rest of the time. Designed to "sleep" two adults and two children, the Campmobile's optional pop-top provides a five-foot-long upper berth for a third child.

Some Safe Braking Rules

Consistently jamming even the best of car brakes down and holding them there can burn out your brakes, endanger your life.

Detecting road hazards far ahead of you and making prompt decisions, advises the National Automobile Club, leaves you enough time to stop your car by the proper means of "pumping" your brakes with a series of impulses in diminishing cadence. So stay alert.

Never jam on your brakes. Apply them only as hard as necessary for a safe stop.

Practice Safety From Start

Starting your car without first taking certain safety precautions means leaving yourself wide open for a traffic accident that can maim or kill you.

Before you turn on the ignition, advises the National Automobile Club, adjust your seat so that you're four to eight inches from the lower rim of your steering wheel. Now check your posture. You should be sitting up straight. And don't forget to snugly fasten your seat belt.

Check traffic to enter it safely and you're on your way.

Use Car Polish For Protection

Polish your car periodically to avoid traffic film, that discolored surface that convinces the motorist that the car finish is gone.

This film, according to the National Automobile Club, is a combination of oil-laden exhaust fumes and ordinary dirt and dust that is in the atmosphere.

Polishing is a sure preventive.

Crater Lake First

First white man to see Crater Lake in Oregon, according to the National Automobile Club, was prospector John Wesley Hillman in 1853.

Tehachapi Cattle Ranch Slated To Become Huge Resort Mecca

I-J Special Report

TEHACHAPI — Work is well under way on a huge, new development in the Tehachapi Mountains, 110 miles north of Los Angeles. The 26,000-acre project, known as Stallion Springs, will be a mountian-valley recreational community with heavy accent on Western-type amenities, designs and decor.

Stallion Springs' first phase — comprising 1,786 salable lots on 3,680 acres — is largely in the Cummings Valley, about 16 miles west of Tehachapi. The property, which has an average elevation of more than 4,000 feet, is owned by Benguet California, Inc., a subsidiary of Benguet Consolidated, listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

Homesteaded origianlly by settlers in the 1870s, the property was purchased by Benguet California in October, 1969, from Rex Ellsworth, well-known California horsebreeder and race horse owner for $3.4 million in cash. Stallion Springs was used by Ellsworth as a cattle and horse ranch.

The master plan for Stallion Springs was developed by Herman D. Ruth & Associates, well-known city and regional planning consultants of Berkeley. Construction on the first phase began in November 1970.

Among facilities already built on the property is Ranch Headquarters, a 15.5-acre complex of modern buildings. Included are a large rodeo ring with seating for 1,000 persons, barns, corrals, a show ring, blacksmith shop, tack rooms and a gymkhana.

Under construction are a lodge for overnight guests, an 11.4-acre lake and an 18-hole championship golf course. A modern highway leads into Stallion Springs from Tehachapi.

The 30 room lodge on a high hill near Ranch Headquarters is expected to open in April. An additional 25 rooms are planned. Designed by Edward H. Fickett, FAIA Los Angeles architect, the lodge cost more than $1 million for construction and furnishings.

The two-level structure will have a 114-seat dining room and a cocktail lounge with seats for 50, both with panoramic views of the golf course, Ranch Headquarters and other parts of the valley. Contractor on the lodge project is the Tumblin Co. of Bakersfield.

Horse Thief Golf and Country Club — named after nearby Horse Thief Flats, once a mecca for outlaws — will remind golfers that honesty is the best policy on the links. The course is scheduled for completion in October, 1973.

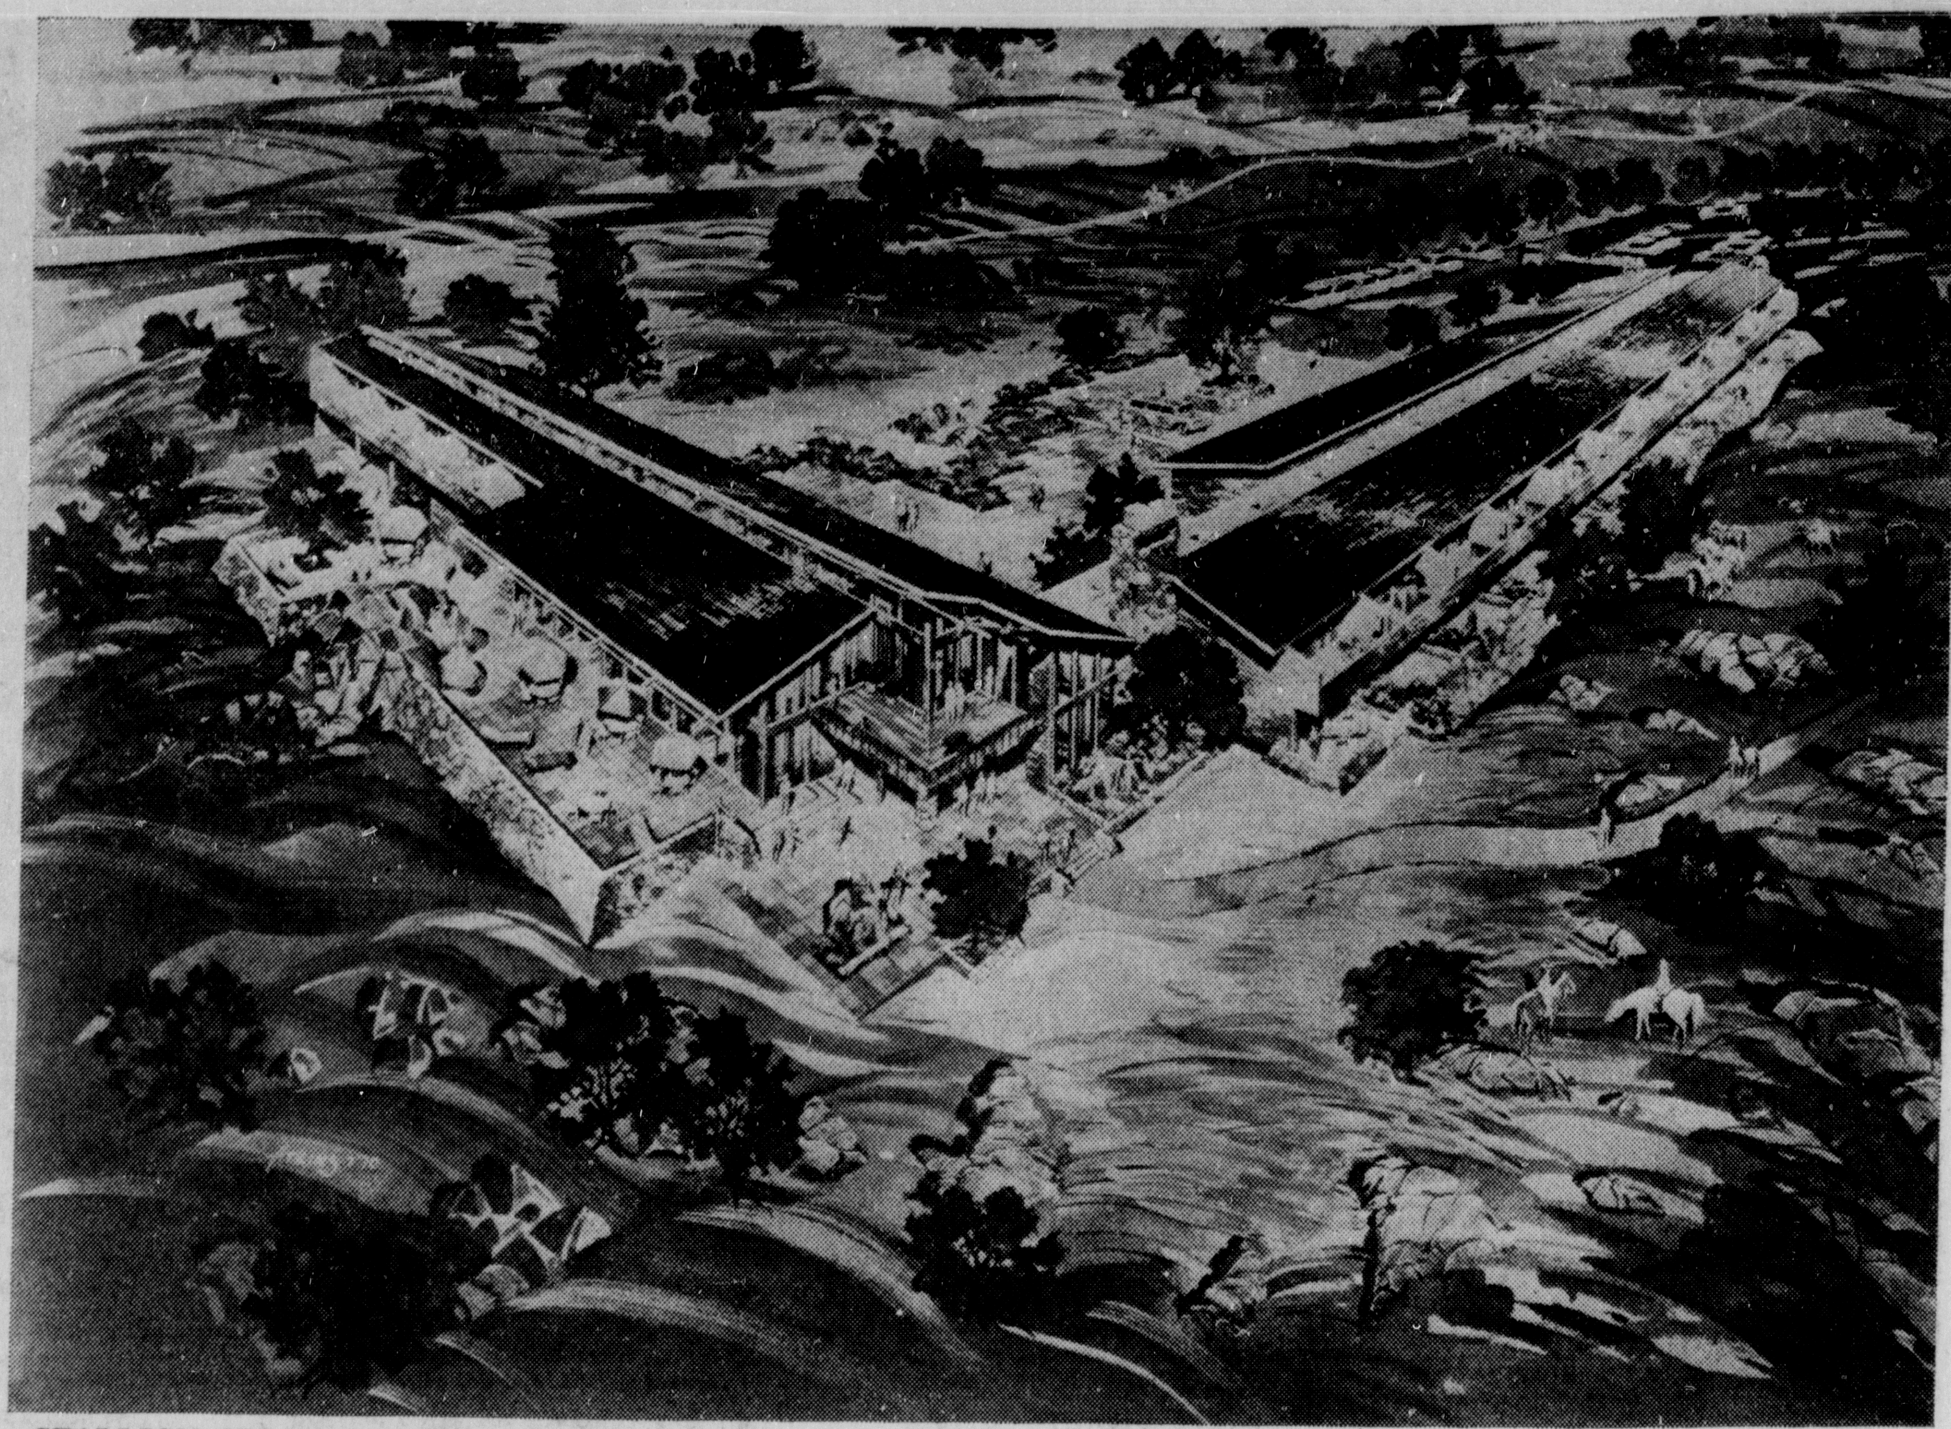
Most of the residential lots in the first phase are zoned for single-family use and range upward from one-third acre to 15 acres, with prices starting at $4,500. A single-family one-third acre lot, fronting on the golf course, averages about $14,220. Just over 100 lots in this phase are zoned for multi-family lots range upward from $20,000.

Construction has begun on a water distribution and sewage collection system for the "immediate construction" area. Work is expected to start this spring on the Tehachapi-Cummings Valley pipeline from the Cifornia Aqueduct, which will serve Stallion Springs.

Executive of Benguet California believe that Stallion Springs' main sales appeal will lie in the second-home market, particularly since the area is only a short drive from Los Angeles. To this end it is expected that model tomes will soon be constructed on the property on a limited basis.

Benquet, according to H.B. Jones, project manager for Stallion Springs, is the principal developer of Freeport/Lucaya on Grand Bahama Island in the Bahamas.

"Since 1955, we have, in the Bahamas, developed an island city with a present population of more than 20,000."



STALLION SPRINGS — This 26,000-acre mountain-valley recreational community is being built and developed by Benguet California in Tehachapi. Facilities will include a golf course, overnight lodge, lake and a complete ranch headquarters with rodeo ring, barns, corrals and a blacksmith shop.

Growth Of Mobile Homes On Rise

The number of mobile home spaces in California has dramatically increased over the past two years in what may be a prelude to record mobile home growth, according to Crocker Bank.

Since 1970 mobile home spaces in the state have increased by 58,000, compared to a gain of 28,000 between 1968 and 1970.

Crocker Bank estimates that California mobile home parks are now adding 30,000 spaces each year. This represents an annual net gain of more than 10%.

There are approximately 281,000 spaces in California mobile home parks at this time, the bank estimated. This compares to 223,000 in 1970 and 195,000 in 1968.

"Southern California especially is a mecca for mobile homes," said James M. Herrera, assistant vice president of installment credit administration in Los Angeles. He coordinates the bank's mobile home portfolio for the entire state.

"California has the climate, geography and life style for this type of living, more so than most areas of the country," he said.

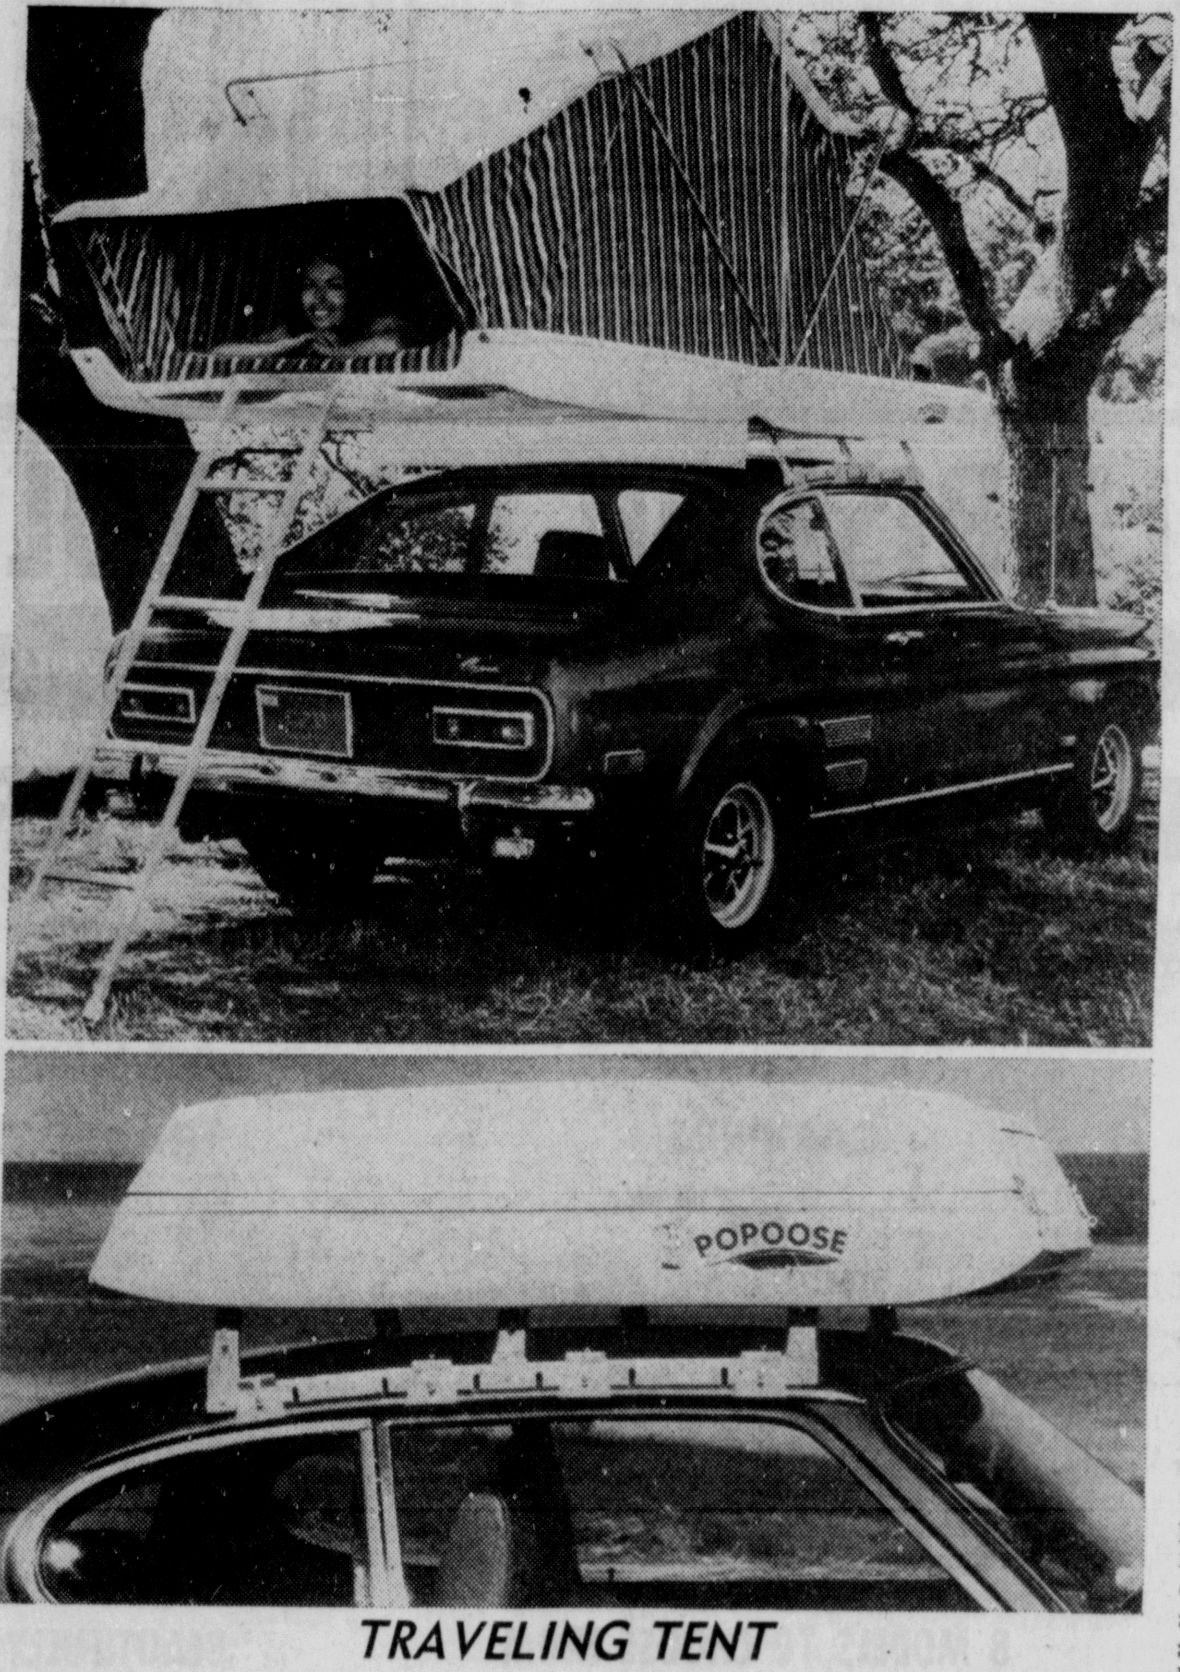
While mobile home sites are found in all parts of California, Southern California contains the heaviest concentration. Crocker Bank lists leading counties as Los Angeles, San Diego, Orange and Riverside. In Northern California, the leading counties are Santa nd Sacramento.

The rising number of mobile home spaces is the result of consumer demand, a sharp increase in number of parks, and a trend toward larger park size, the bank's research shows.

About 5,500 parks now operate in the state, each averaging 52 spaces. In 1968, only 4,300 parks were operating, each averaging 45 spaces. New parks being constructed today usually contain 200 spaces.

Along with the increase in the number of mobile home sites, the industry is witnessing a corresponding rise in mobile home sales, said Herrera.

"Last year was a record sales year of about 28,000 units and 1972 will surpass that. Lack of new spaces was a limiting factor in 1969 and 1970, but now thousands are available, he said.



TRAVELING TENT

Popoose, a rugged, yet lightweight fibre glass shell that easily mounts on most cars and trucks, pops open to form an all weather tent, complete with a foam rubber mattress. Hinged to open and close in seconds and including an access ladder, the Popoose travels at a compact 12-inch high plus rack that fits any auto roof and clamps to the rain gutter. It weighs just 125 pounds and lifts on and off auto with small hoist that also doubles as storage rack in garage rafters. It retails for under $500. Popoose is available at DeLong Chevrolet, Leon C. Felton Volkswagen, Dexter Toyota and Empire Chevrolet.

Barbecue Grills Come In Many Prices From 99 Cents To $200

By JOSEPHINE RIPLEY
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

You can buy one for 99 cents. You can spend as much as $200 or more for a deluxe model. Or you can do what most people do —buy one in the medium price range of $30 to $60.

That's the best thing about a barbecue grill — there's one to fit practically every budget. No wonder the cookout has become a national pastime.

A survey by the National Park Service shows that nearly 50 per cent of the population went picnicking in 1970, adding up to a total of 542 million picnics for the year.

Most of these, it is estimated, were cookouts. After all, Americans have been cooking out since the Pilgrims landed on Plymouth Rock. It all comes naturally, and picnic areas in national, state, and local parks and forest preserves have been enlarged to make room for today's mass migration back to nature.

THROW IT AWAY

A cookout can be as simple or as elaborate as anyone wants to make it. You can buy a disposable grill for 99 cents or a dollar, use it once, and throw it away.

Or you can tote a portable charcoal Habachi to your favorite picnic site. Also popular is a small, folding grill which comes with its own canvas carrying case.

Many people prefer a cookout in their own backyard. For them, there are gas and electric barbecues large enough to provide fare for a family reunion. Some of the gas-fired grills can be permanently installed on a post set in the ground. Others are mounted on a sturdy metal base.

The new electric units are becoming increasingly popular. They can be plugged in to electrical outlets on the outside of a house, or on an apartment terrace. They range in price from $50 to $130 or more, with gas units priced from about $50 to $200. Installation and accessories are not included in these figures.

Kettle grills are priced from $12 up. Some are open, but most people seem to prefer the covered type, in the $30-up price range. With a cover, the kettle becomes a sort of oven, suitable for baking as well as roasting.

Many of the covered portable grills now have a heat resistant glass window through which you can watch the progress of the cooking without having to lift the lid.

HEAT CONTROL

One of the major developments in barbecue equipment has been in the area of "controlled cooking." That is, controlled temperature. New models feature adjustable flame control, built-in thermometers, and special burners which distribute the heat evenly over the cooking area. Even some of the low-cost hibachis now have a draft slide for heat control.

With temperature control, it now is possible to barbecue the less expensive cuts of meat which require slower, longer cooking.

Grills also are getting larger. Many manufacturers of gas-type barbecues are making single hearth models with a cooking area of some 450 inches or more. Larger models have a double grill with two burners.

This enables the chef to cook rare and well-done meat at the same time, since each burner has its own separate control. Many models have a warming grill where you can keep the rare steaks warm while you are finishing "well-dones."

CHARCOAL SUBSTITUTES

Also helping to reduce cookout costs is the production of reusable briquets instead of charcoal. One electric model in the medium-price field not only has heat control and "lifetime" briquets but also is self-cleaning, even the briquets.

Still many people prefer charcoal for the special flavor it gives to meat. More power to them — but everyone using charcoal in a grill should heed the warnings of the National Safety Council:

Never cook with charcoal indoors — not even on a porch or in a garage, unless it is well ventilated. Burning charcoal produces carbon monoxide and the accumulation of this gas indoors is potentially dangerous.

Don't use highly inflammable liquids in lighting charcoal. Never — under any circumstances — should you use gasoline. The council suggests the use of commercial products such as liquids and treated solid starters.

But never use a liquid starter on a fire that is already going or even on apparently dead coals.

Covered barbecuing is recommended for its economy — it saves charcoal and makes rotisserizing unnecessary since roasting is uniform with heat reflecting from all sides. This is particularly true with the kettle grill.

Sears summer catalog features the barbecue in a special section, and Sears stores throughout the country have a new "All-Seasons Barbeque Guide," a 48-page booklet which tells how to make the best use of various barbecue equipment, how to build and tend a fire, and how to clean a grill without washing it.

The gas Appliance Manufacturers Association, 1901 North Fort Myer Drive, Arlington, Va. 22209, has a free leaflet on "Outdoor Gas Equipment Information."

Waikiki — Most Expensive Real Estate

Waikiki, Island of Oahu, Hawaiian Islands, is one of America's most valued piece of beachfront judged by both cost of land and revenue generated.

Should Waikiki improbably go on the market, a contemporary Croesus would be expected to pay about $700 million for the scant 7/10th square mile of land.

Incredibly, this area of about 452 acres — some 150 acres of it submerged — in 1971 generated about $450 million annually or 70 percent of the 50th state's entire tourist industry of $644 million.

That is a hefty sum for a peninsula that until the turn of the century was a wet sprawl of swamps, duck ponds and rice paddies.

Since the early 1800s, until early 20th Century days of Hawaii's last monarch, land rimming the curving stretch of beach beside Diamond Head was for a privileged few.

Estates of the alii (royalty) and residences of leading families stretched along the shore in 1901 when the venerable Moana became the first hotel on the beach, bringing about a newspaper complaint that the 6-story hotel "blocked the view of Diamond Head".

Voyagers in search of warmth and leisure took steamers across the sea in increasing numbers, creating the need in 1927 for the opening of the Royal Hawaiian Hotel.

Resident population grew and more tourists began to arrive. No longer could the beach be considered a playground for the idle rich, for family homesteads were sold and small cottage dwellings began to scatter back amidst the ponds behind Kalakaua Avenue.

It was a somnolent neighborhood, somewhat typical of how readers of novels pictured the tropics. It was not, however, without its problems.

In 1920 its sewer system, laid out in the 1880s, demanded immediate attention. So overloaded were systems, that one critic deemed the Beach Walk area as "almost one continuous cesspool".

Paradise was not perfect and was about to come less so. War came to Pearl Harbor — and the world; blackouts and coils of barbed wire came to Waikiki.

But people — people to defend the nation, people to keep ships afloat and planes aloft — still came to the islands, many to settle in Waikiki.

As late as 1943, Board of Health Commissions sent squads out hunting mosquito breeding places — for dengue fever was at epidemic proportions: two dead, 1,000 ill. Waikiki was "out of bounds" to servicement and tourists. A near-deserted village was the result. It was almost the last time it would be so.

The visitors came. Hawaii had to meet their needs. They wanted comfortable hotels, good food to eat, places to play, ways to see all the sights. "Tourism" became Hawaii's industry of unparalleled growth.

Statehood came in 1959 and there were about 243,000 visitors that year. By 1971 they had increased to 1.8 million. For most of them, the prime destination in the islands was fabled Waikiki.

By 1969, Waikiki beachfront land was selling for about $70 a square foot and Waikiki Beach, once technically a 100-foot wide, 300-foot long strip near a groin, now became by loose reference a nearly three mile beach front extending back several blocks.

Today, the borders of Waikiki loosely stretch from the yacht harbor where the Ala Wai Canal enters the sea, follow the canal banks to Kapahulu bordering beautiful Kapiolani Park, and skirt along beaches really called Queens, Kuhio, Duke Kahanamoku and De Russy.

It is a busy strip of hotel-apartment zones, residential areas and avenues and side streets of retail stores. Its acreage divides to about 77 for hotels, 55 for multifamily residences, 37 for commercial establishments, 17 for single-family dwellings, and 12 for public facilities. The rest of the acreage consists mostly of roads and streets.

Only about 2.1 per cent of the island's population - 13,124 by 1970 census of the 40 by 26 mile Island of Oahu (also the City and County of Honolulu) - lives in the Waikiki area. Yet Waikiki contributes 12 per cent of the Oahu's property tax and generates millions of dollars of income for Hawaii's people.

The properties vary highly. Only eight of Waikiki's approximately 125 hotels front directly on to the sands. Some buildings soar to 30 stories, but others' low profiles are beneath the fronds of palms.

Contemporary architecture contrasts with buildings influenced by the Orient, or recall the Islands of a gentler era at the turn of the century.

Visitors and residents alike patronize shops, restaurants, nightclubs and lei stands. Both shop at the markets, fill'erup at gas pumps and den garments right from botiques.

When the cash register tapes are all tallied up for 1971, it is estimated that visitors will have spent $644 million in the State of Hawaii — with something like $400 million in Waikiki alone.

Those visitor dollars don't remain, however, only in Waikiki. According to Hawaii Visitors Bureau research, the visitor dollar turns over about 12 times.

The HVB tracks the dollars from what they deem "first recipients" — hotel employees, restaurant employees, entertainers, tour operators, taxi drivers, shop keepers and transportation workers — to second recipients or "everybody" represented by accountants, farmers, mechanics, welders, artists, salesmen, dentists and lawyers.

Waikiki prides itself on giving good, friendly service in return for its incoming dollars. It likes to consider it part of Hawaii's famed "Aloha Spirit".

What does this effort at visitor satisfaction show? Statistics indicate travelers are pleased by what they have found and prove it in the number of return trips.

Of 642,300 surveyed visitors out of 1970's total of 1.7 million, about 90,000 were on their second visit to Hawaii; 34,000 were on their third time around, and 77,000 were on their fourth (or more) visit to the islands.

But Waikiki is not resting on its laurels. The community and tourist industry alike are looking, planning and developing for the future.

SIX-SLEEPER — The Hills — Cindy, Kathy, Snoopy and father Dave — get ready to take a trip in the new Harvest Van-A-Home for 1972, first shown at the Recreational Vehicle Association show in Anaheim in January. The unit has four separate beds, including two double bunk beds at back, and is designed for families with teenagers.

McNamee Introduces '6-Sleeper'

McNamee Coach Corp. of South El Monte, Calif., introduced a "Six-sleeper" Harvest Van-A-Home at the Recreational Vehicle Association sports show at Anaheim, Jan. 7-16. The unit has an overhead bunk, two bunk beds, and the customary dinette-bed combination, for a total of 4 separate beds, and easily sleeps six adults. McNamee Coach Corp. sales manager, Dave Hill, said it was designed for families such as his own, with active teenagers.

The Harvest Van-A-Home is fully self-contained, with toilet, holding tank, shower, six gallon hot water heater, outside water connection, three burner stove, four cu. ft. refrigerator, 110 V and 12 V lights, two roof vents, pressure water system, sewer hose bumper, double sink with cover, five-gallon butane bottle, and 12-volt porch light.

The Harvest Van-A-Home is available on Ford, Dodge, on Chevrolet chassis, with standard or optional power plants. Literature may be obtained from the company.

Forest Highways Are Doors To Wilderness

Enjoying the recreational opportunities of our sublime national forests, millions of visitors appreciate the vast network of roads that give them access to this scenic part of our nation's heritage.

Not only serving the needs of motorists but also helping us to carry out such vital tasks as protecting wildlife, fighting forest fires, and transporting raw materials, reports the National Automobile Club, this road network has three components: The Public Lands Highways, the Forest Highway System and Forest Development Roads.

Totaling 26,000 miles, the Forest Highway System covers areas in and adjacent to national forests.

Suburban Housewives Now Battling Smog

Air pollution caught the 6:03 to the suburbs. Ask any suburban home maker responsible for spring cleaning. Residing miles from a big city or industrial complex doesn't exempt you from the pollution problem.

Until recently, city and suburban dwellers alike could do little about the problem insofar as their home environment was concerned. Now, however, as a result of the development of home-type air cleaners, the homemaker can "win" up to 90 per cent of the battle with foul air.

The new air cleaner introduced by the West Bend Co., for example, operates electronically to purge air of pollen (up to 99 per cent), dust particles (up to 90 per cent), then directs air through a charcoal filter for odor removal. Operational cost per day is low since wattage is about equal to a 100-watt bulb.

In terms of housework, the air cleaner significantly reduces the need for dusting by attracting airborne cooking particles, rug lint, and others.

In terms of family health, no gauge can be set accurately. Certainly, pollen removal will be noticed by persons subject to asthma, hay fever and other sinus disorders. Cleaning cigar and cigaret smoke from the air removes another threat to general health.

Antismoking crusaders have long contended that cigaret smoke is harmful to the non-smoker as well as the one who smokes. Non-smokers, unfortunately, must share the consequences with smoking companions and family members.

The non-smoker's dilemma can be solved at least on the home front by use of an electronic air cleaner which is up to 90 per cent effective in purifying the air of tobacco smoke. Smoke particles are purged from the air electronically after which tobacco odor is removed by a charcoal filter.

The West Bend Co. air cleaner, in a walnut-like cabinet, also effectively removes or reduces all other air pollutants and odors. The unit retails for $179. You don't have to move to a South Sea island or encase your house and yard in a plastic dome to escape air pollution. Subtler means do exist for those who prefer to "work within the system."

Electronic air cleaning units are now available which operate at low wattage to free the air of man-made pollutants (automobile emissions, industrial fumes, tobacco smoke, home heating and cooking fumes) and the natural pollutants, dust and pollen.

West Bend has developed a two-speed air cleaner which removes microscopic polluting particles as well as larger visible particles. Set at high speed, the unit circulates and purifies air in a 15 by 20 foot room about seven times per hour. Minute particles are charged electronically and collected magnetically, while household odors are removed by means of a charcoal filter.

Golden Trout Celebrated As California's State Fish

Waiting for the opportunity to land that big catch, you might take time off from daydreaming about fishing exploits to ponder some interesting facts offered by the National Automobile Club.

Considered to be the most beautiful trout in the world, the golden trout was adopted as California's state fish on April 14, 1947.

Although at their best in water with a high mineral content, trout can also survive in swamp-water ponds, soft-water lakes, and rushing creeks of high rainfall areas.

Largest freshwater fish in North America, the white sturgeon often reaches a length of 20 feet and a weight of some 1,000 pounds.

Fastest game fish, the sailfish has been clocked at nearly 70 miles an hour. On a regular basis, it can do 60 miles an hour.

One of the most popular game fish because it affords excellent sport, the striped bass bites boldly and puts up a gallant fight. California imported this fish with the delectable white meat in 1789.

As for the American eel, it has the distinction of being the only fish that lives and grows in fresh water but goes into the ocean to spawn.

'Thumping' Sound

10-Speed Bikes For Long Distance Trips

For the serious, long distance cyclist, the lighter 10-speed bikes are the way to go.

The seat should be at such a height that when you sit squarely on it and put the pedal at the bottom of the stroke, your leg extends fully and your foot rests flat on the pedal.

TITLES FOR HOME MOVIES

You'll find many title subjects ready-made for you. These include road signs, restaurant placemats, inscriptions on buildings and monuments, colorful travel brochures, road maps, timetables and calendars, cross-lighted writing in sand makes a good title. Your imagination will suggest many others.

You can further personalize some of your titles and make them more informative by adding your own captions. A good way to do this is with a set of title letters. The letters are temporarily stuck in place to spell out the desired words. They may be applied to a map or other items relating to your vacation.

Our suggestions for vacation titles can be applied to advantage at other times. Always be alert to the opportunity for photographing wedding invitations, inscriptions on birthday cakes, diplomas, etc.

When you think of picture taking . . . think of us . . . come in anytime . . . we will be glad to give you all the help you need.

UNIQUE — This new 15-foot Santa Fe trailer, fully self-contained, weighs only 2240 pounds and costs $2,395 F.O.B. Sun Valley, Calif. It is luxury equipped, with ample sleeping room for four adults.

Trailer Offers Many Features Compactly

I-J Special Report

SUN VALLEY, Calif. — Santa Fe Tailers is in production of a fully self-contained 15-foot travel trailer, loaded with luxury features, but holding to a price of $2395, F.O.B.

The 15-footer has a 12-foot long body, is seven feet wide, has a total weight of 2240 lbs., and hitch weight of 225 lbs. With a 50-inch dinette seat and 49-inch upper bunk the unit easily sleeps four adults, or two adults and three children.

An unusual feature for a small trailer is a full bath, with separate shower-toilet-lavatory, contrasting with the usual "wet-bath" in so many small and medium sized travel trailers.

Other luxury features include a combination gas-electric refrigerator, range with oven, double stainless steel sinks, 30 gallon water tank with 12-volt pressure-demand pump, 26 gallon holding tank, quick recover water heater, 12-volt power range hood, rear trunk, dual LPG tanks, full metal under belly, fomecor insulation, 70 amp battery inclosed in separate compartment, a large wardrobe, full length screen door, and front window awning.

Literature on the Santa Fe 15 may be obtained from the company which is a division of Traveleze Trailer Co., which started building trailers in 1931.

New Five-Speeder Is Being Developed

Tokheim Corp. of Fort Wayne, Ind., has announced it will soon market a new kind of five-speed bicycle transmission which not only requires less care and maintenance than present multispeed transmissions but also offers significant operating advantages over the derailleur.

"The new unit is the only American made five-speed and is the forerunner of a new 15-speed transmission Tokheim expects to announce later this year," said a spokesman.

Home On Wheels Looks Like Cottage

I-J Special Report

SANTA ANA — Golden West Mobile Homes, a multiple plant manufacturer headquartered in Santa Ana, is distributing a new model with conventional home exterior in California, Arizona and Nevada.

The unit, called Laguna Cottage, is a true mobile home, not a modular, but has an exterior closely resembling a conventional home. An asphalt shingled roof, side hip roof, and latticed living room windows and front door add to the Laguna Cottage conventional appearance.

Increasing the resemblance to a cottage home is an optional 12-inch overhang, which has been ordered with almost every Laguna Cottage shipped from the Golden West plant, and exterior walls of horizontal aluminum siding and simulated shake shingles.

The Laguna Cottage treatment may be given to any Golden West Mobile Home built in the Santa Ana, Ca. plant, where the company offers approximately 70 basic floor plans and many optional modifications.

AAA Motorists Going South

ATLANTA (UPI) — A recently released survey by the American Automobile Association (AAA), shows that the nine South Atlantic states were the number one travel destination of its 14 million members in 1970.

Georgia, Delaware, Maryland, the District of Columbia, Virginia, West Virginia, North and South Carolina and Florida registered 19 per cent of all vacation trips in 1970, AAA says.

Is Cain's Tire Too Busy??

Yes, we are!! I sold my NOVATO & SAN ANSELMO stores and I guess a lot of people are coming to our San Rafael store who normally went to our other locations.

THE REASONS We are so darn busy are simple — we handle the very best products available.

We give people the best buys — or the most Tire for their money. I give no one any nonsense, I try to be patient with people because I understand their confusion.

I, the owner, Pat McAlonan, try to be at my store 90% of the time to take care of people.

Price: People are always asking us, how can we sell it so cheap? Answer Simple, I buy it cheap or I don't buy.

I stand behind my products better than any other company I have ever seen — But still there are some people I can't make happy. This is what's driving me grey headed. I'll do anything to make a customer happy, still customers drive out of here mad as heck at me. I'll have 4 or 5 cars lined up in front of the guy — explain this to him and have him demand I pull him in first — when I can't, he drives off mad as heck.

Saturday I had a guy tell me how dissatisfied with me he was because I couldn't find him a suitable used spare right away — and folks, I was going to give him the tire.

Had a fellow complain that he only got 42,364 miles out of his Semperit tires — and drove out mad before I could even quote him another set. Had a person get mad because I charge for a flat repair — my wife doesn't believe me when I tell her some of these stories!! I don't even know why I'm spending money to put all this down in an ad that's costing me plenty.

What I'm trying to say is

I VALUE & APPRECIATE YOUR BUSINESS CAIN'S SELLS TIRES YOU CAN DEPEND ON TO BE A GOOD DEAL FOR YOUR WHEELS.

WET BATTLE — Members of the Corte Madera and Larkspur Volunteer Fire Departments will douse themselves and delighted spectators again this year during their annual waterhose fight scheduled for the west parking lot (near the tennis courts) in Corte Madera Town Park Monday, July 3 at 6:30 p.m.

Plans For A Festive July Fourth

The City of Larkspur and the Town of Corte Madera will be the setting for the Twin Cities' annual presentation of Marin's traditional Fourth of July celebration being co-ordinated by the Fourth of July Committee of the Larkspur and Corte Madera chambers of commerce.

Highlights of the day and a half celebration scheduled for Monday evening, July 3 and Tuesday, July 4th, will be the Twin Cities Family Picnic starting at 6 p.m. in Corte Madera Town Park Monday, the Art and Crafts Festival in Corte Madera Town Park on Tuesday from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. and the annual parade through both towns starting at 3 p.m. on Tuesday.

A special event Monday evening will be an appearance by Gordon Tovani, famed barefoot place-kicker who will give a practice demonstration, autograph footballs, and give place-kicking tips to football fans. Tovani will return to Corte Madera Town Park at 10 a.m. on Tuesday to make his 999,964 official logged kick.

Also at the Monday picnic, Corte Madera and Larkspur Volunteer Firemen will conduct their annual water hose fight, and Corte Madera and Larkspur councilmen will match skills in their second annual horseshoe contest.

A Special Salute For Senior Citizens Throughout Bay Area

Corte Madera merchants have the distinction of being the first to formulate an affair for not only senior citizens of their own community, but from all over the Bay Area.

The general public is invited to join with the seniors for the jubilee day. Merchants are offering many specials, many of them appearing in this section, which are available to all shoppers.

Senior citizens will have additional discounts as a "thank you" from Corte Madera merchants.

Many City, county and state officials will be on hand Saturday to welcome and acknowledge the activities of senior citizens.

No Stereotype

There is no stereotype for a mail order customer. Montgomery Ward's files in the 1920s show its customers' represented such varied and rugged occupations as lighthouse keepers, miners, loggers, ranchers and trappers living in every part of the United States, Alaska and many foreign countries.

The New, Bare Look In Windows

NEW YORK (UPI) —You can have the new, bare look at your windows in a thoroughly contemporary manner, without relinquishing protection from harmful effects of direct sunlight, says the Window Shade Manufacturers Association.

Hang decorative shades under an unobtrusive cornice where they can be folded out of sight until ready for use.

Facts About The Council

The Marin Senior Coordinating Council, Inc., is a tax-exempt, non-profit, self-help, charitable corporation.

Under the direction of Ed Ryken, executive director, this group keeps in communication with all Marin organizations composed of older persons, with private agencies, and with city and county departments whose actions affect the opportunities for good housing, health, employment, recreation, education and transportation of senior citizens.

It promotes opportunities, services and attitudes by residents of all ages that will support the highest well being of older persons.

Bounty Placed On Bald Eagle Killers

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The National Wildlife Federation is offering a bounty of $500 for information leading to the conviction of anyone shooting a bald eagle in the United States.

Anyone who wants the money should write the federation at 1412 16th St., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036 within six months after conviction. A bounty hunter has to prove his information was of "substantial assistance" in convicting the eagle-killer.

How Ward's Is Marking Birthday

To mark the 100-year milestone Wards is introducing a broad selection of consumer products specifically engineered for the centennial celebration year.

Value, both in price and innovative concept of design for the diverse lifestyles of consumers in 1972, is the principal identifying characteristic of all centennial merchandise products. Each item represents Ward's continuing philosophy of serving the consumer first.

One of the safest rotary lawnmowers ever engineered will be introduced in January along with a humidifier/electronic air cleaner that both cleans and moisturizes air for maximum indoor comfort.

Many unique and new products in fashions, home furnishings, appliances and electronics will be brought to consumers throughout the year, most of them to be exclusively marketed by Wards.

National Assessing Of Schools Seen

NEW YORK (UPI) — Within the next 10 years there may well be a nationwide accounting process or institution to assess the successes or failures of the nation's schools, Sidney P. Marland Jr. predicts in "Teachers College Record," journal of Teachers College, Columbia University.

Marland, U.S. commissioner of education, indicated that the accounting agency would evaluate both the structure and content of the educational process and address itself to some of the most pressing problems in education, reporting its findings for public scrutiny.

Purchases For Trip

SPECIAL EVENTS

Senior Citizens Day On Saturday

By RICHARD G. BURNS

The first Senior Citizens' June Jamboree for seniors throughout the Bay Area will be held in the Corte Madera Center Shopping Mall on Saturday, beginning at 8 a.m.

There will be about 15 booths which will include displays of arts and crafts, stitchery, senior citizens activities, canning and preserves, pertinent information regarding social security, medicare, etc. Also there will be antique cars, campers and mobile homes on display.

For seniors with Medicare cards, many stores will give discounts.

The event is being sponsored by the Corte Madera Center Merchants Council and the Marin Senior Coordinating Council, Inc.

Check-in time for displays will be between 8 a.m. and 10 a.m. at the Marin Senior Coordinating Council booth in the center in front of the Scratch Pad.

Judging of displays will be at 11 a.m.

There will be drawings for door prizes donated by merchants every half hour from 11 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. and winners of display prizes will be announced between 1 and 2 p.m. with a big show at 2 p.m.

The 2 p.m. show will be in the mall of the shopping center and will include an old-time fashion show, community singing, musical numbers, a magic show and other events.

Entertainment for the day has been arranged by Ed Ryken, executive director of the Marin Senior Coordinating Council.

Development of the event has been by the Corte Madera Center Business Association headed by Donald Carey. The original idea came from Aldo Pasquinilli, Center promotions director and put into operation by Elizabeth Try of the Center; John O'Conner, publisher of "The Golden Years," Ed Ryken and Pasquinilli.

The center merchants will show their appreciation of senior citizens' patronage and to demonstrate their wish to cooperate with the theme: "More power to senior buying power," and to assist senior groups showing their work and activities to the general public.

It is hoped that this event will be an annual affair, the beginning of a tradition in Corte Madera, a center spokesman said.

Bus Depots Are Turned Into Centers Of Activity

Buses and trains may go, but their depots linger on and the senior citizens know just what to do about them.

One of the first enterprises of the Marin Senior Coordinating Council, Inc., was to assume the operation of the Greyhound Bus Depot in San Anselmo. This depot is staffed and operated entirely by seniors under the supervision of the council, and is called "Bustop."

This building is being remodeled to include a boutique with emphasis on items that are made by senior citizens.

In addition to creating employment for the seniors, it enables them to provide a vitally needed service to the community.

In San Rafael, the first countywide senior center was established in the Northwestern Pacific Railroad Depot. The building has been renovated and in addition to the council offices, space is being rented to many community action agencies. The center is called "Whistlestop."

Plans, decorations and furnishings were provided by the Soroptimist Club of Marin County.

The Megalopis Is Getting Bigger

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Bigger and bigger — that promises to be the trend in our cities' population spread.

The Population Reference Bureau, Inc., says that most of the people-growth in the next two decades will take place in the country's large urban areas — the megalopolis. The bureau makes the forecast in a new publication examining accommodation of the next 50 million Americans, expected by 1995, without increasing the decay of the central city and without environmental havoc.

WIRELESS IS USED TO GET AN ORDER SHIPPED

Montgomery Ward has had a number of catalog customers who have gone to unusual lengths to get what they want.

One such fellow was R.D. Argerbright of Great Falls, Mont., who sent a wireless message back in the '20s asking anyone who heard him in St. Paul, Minn. to contact Wards and have some merchandise shipped to him in Montana.

The message, received at 8:30 a.m. to a St. Paul resident, gave complete details regarding catalog numbers, sizes and prices.

The complete shipment was on its way from Ward's St. Paul mail order house to Montana by 9:30 a.m. the same day.

ARMADA
WINDSOR

Newport, Vermont.
Jan. 6, 1922.

Montgomery Ward & Co.,
Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen:

After having given the Armada Windsor heater a thorough trial during some of the coldest weather ever experienced in this part of the country (about 30 or 40 degrees below zero), in an ordinary dwelling house and using wood as a fuel, I wish to state that I am perfectly satisfied in every detail with the above mentioned heater and will recommend it to anyone requiring a stove of this kind.

The Armada Windsor is the most perfectly controlled heater I have ever seen. The one which I now have is under somewhat of a handicap, being piped with another stove, (cooking range, also a Windsor stove from your company) to one short flue, yet the draft in both stoves is very strong.

The whole fact "in a nut shell" is that I would not take twice the price of the Armada Windsor for the one I now have if it were not possible for me to purchase another.

Very truly yours
Robert L. Bickford.

Letter printed with Mr. Bickford's permission. We have many more letters like this about the Armada and other Windsor Stoves.

The Greatest Heater We Ever Have Sold!

The Armada Windsor Heater is the biggest, finest hot blast oak heating stove on the market today. During all our years in the stove business, we never have seen a heater that was or is its equal. It is our greatest success as builders of high grade heating stoves.

Unusually large and massive—nearly five and one-half feet in height—the Armada looks every inch the master heater that it really is. In design it has the beauty of simplicity. It is generously decorated with smooth polished nickel, but free from fussy and ornate trimmings which demand constant cleaning. You will be delighted with its appearance in your home.

In spite of its large size and superior quality, the Armada is not an expensive stove. It may be bought on terms of $5.00 with your order and $5.00 per month, which puts it easily within reach of everyone.

This heater will keep the largest home comfortably warm during severely cold weather, yet it may be regulated so exactly that it will radiate just enough heat to take the chill off a smaller home during the mild days of fall and spring. This system of regulation is explained along with the illustrations below.

The Armada Windsor Heater stands on a heavy cast iron base, approximately two and one-half feet square. The legs are of smooth design, heavily plated with shining nickel. An extra deep ash pit prevents the ashes from piling up and burning out the grates. The ash pan is made of unusually heavy galvanized iron, and the ashpit door fits airtight. The draw center shaking grates are made heavy and strong so that any clinkers may be shaken out without danger of injury to them.

Above the extra heavy fire pot, which is described fully in the paragraph below, is a wide, nickeled cast iron ring. This ring deflects heat toward the floor and keeps it agreeably warm at all times. Experience has probably shown you how difficult it is to keep floors warm with the ordinary heating stove.

The body of this stove is made of extra heavy special heat and rust-resisting steel. The front is of solid cast iron. The feed door is cast iron and has four mica windows so that you may see the fire. The door measures 11 by 15 inches—large enough to admit big blocks of wood. All three doors are machine fitted and are paper tight, so fire can be held with proper preparation for two days. On each side of the feed door are beautiful nickeled wings, in which the regulating dials shown below are located, and above the door is another nickeled ring. The swing cover and urn are handsomely nickeled. Takes 7-inch pipe.

Some Special Features of the Armada

The Urn Thermometer

In the urn of the Armada Windsor Heater is a thermometer, as shown in the illustration above. This thermometer, with the aid of the regulating handles in the wings (see paragraph below), enables you to regulate the heat and fire of the Armada to exactly the degree you want. You have perfect control over the fire at all times and can regulate it so that it holds over night and longer without the slightest difficulty.

The Regulating Dials That Give You Perfect Control of Fire

In each wing of this stove is a dial with a regulating handle. When opened, cold air is taken in from the back, carried around the steel body and heated. This hot air is then forced on the fire through a series of nozzles. It churns up the smoke and holds it on the fire until all the gases are consumed. When the smoke goes up the chimney it is light gray in color—all possible heat has been extracted. This explains why the Armada is so unusually economical of fuel—why it costs less to operate than other heaters.

The Inch Thick Fire Pot

The fire pot is the most important part of any heating stove. In any ordinary heater it is about a quarter of an inch thick. In the Armada Windsor it is one full inch thick — as heavy as a furnace fire pot! This fire pot was built especially for the Armada Windsor. It will last for many years, saving you the necessity of buying a new one every few seasons. If you have ever owned a heater with a light firepot, you will know at once the value of this feature.

Plants For Folk Medicine Studied

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI)—An attempt to find and classify medicinal plants used in folk medicine in parts of Texas and Mexico is being made by Dr. Clarissa T. Kimber, Texas A&M Foundation at College Station. The search is supported by a grant from the National Institute of Mental Health.

Such plants, believed to be among the first used in medicine on this continent, now are becoming extinct. Some medicinal plants used in folk medicine centuries ago and then ignored have been found to yield drugs useful in modern medicine. An example is Rauwolfia, a plant whose roots produce reserpine, an important tranquilizer and hypertensive agent.

Health Service's Alcohol Report

NEW YORK (UPI)—In case you ever wondered, alcohol is the major chemical ingredient in wines, beers, and distilled beverages. It is a natural substance formed by the reaction of fermenting sugar with yeast spores. Although there are many alcohols, the kind in alcoholic beverages is known as "ethyl alcohol," a colorless, inflammable liquid which has an intoxicating effect.

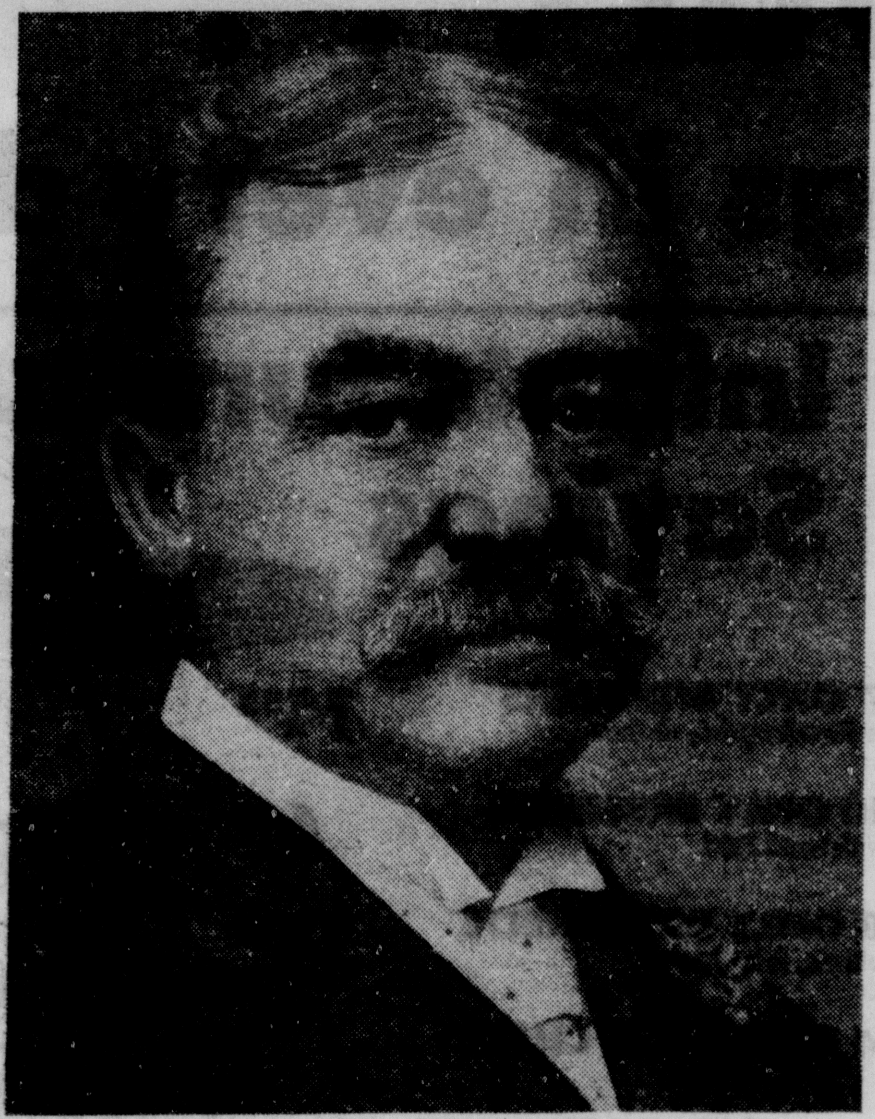
Ward's Founder — Creative Person



AARON MONTGOMERY WARD
Career as a journalist?

If Aaron Montgomery Ward had been born in the 20th Century he most probably would have chosen journalism for a career instead of pioneering history's first mail order business.

As part of its 100th anniversary this year, Montgomery Ward has reprinted one of the first catalogs issued by the fledgling company. This engrossing 76-page, pocket-sized booklet, first published in 1875 is highly treasured by Wards because it is now recognized as the document that did more than anything else to launch the firm on its successful course for 100 years.

Titled "Catalogue No. 13, Spring and Summer, 1875", the booklet was used by Aaron Montgomery Ward to announce his famous money-back guarantee. This simple, but revolutionary policy at that time must have created some difficulties in his business relations with other merchants because the American marketplace in those days fully supported the motto: "Let the buyer beware."

A versatile treasure chest for anyone interested in the buying and selling habits of America in the 1870s, the catalog provides many clues as to the character of Aaron Montgomery Ward, who must have spent many nights under the glare of a kerosene lamp while he created his number one sales masterpiece. From his writing style it is easy to deduce that Ward must indeed have been a wily, but astute business man. His distinct writing style was colorful, fully representative of the spoken words of the times. His lengthy sentences provide evidence that he was not particularly a man of few words. Rather, he went to great lengths to convey full meaning to his written words.

His fatherly advice, explicit instructions as to measuring for the right fit, and his flowing descriptions of the "high fashion" bargains all add to the charm of this 19th century genius.

After establishing the mail order business in 1872, Aaron Montgomery Ward was faced with the formidable task of replacing a general store with a spell-binding catalog. To accomplish this he had to identify himself to his readers as a source of unlimited information, a frequent advisor, a personal friend, and probably most important, to be recognized as a man brave enough to withstand the criticism of dissatisfaction.

No opportunity to promote business was overlooked. Ward directed this hospitality-laden message to Grangers (farmers): "When in Chicago, come and see us . . . our place of business is opposite Matteson House where our friends can get accommodations for $2.50 a day. This is no second or third rate hotel, but first class in all particulars."

Blatantly advertised as the "cheapest cash house in America," Ward's catalog No. 13 believed in upgrading all merchandise to "high fashion" status. For example, traveling trunks with such exotic and irresistible names as "Eugenie, Oriental, Saratoga, Monitor, Empress, Imperatrice, Pride of the West," to name a few, were certain to give you the high fashion look wherever you went.

Ward recognized women as bargain hunters, and seldom disappointed them. Typical offering was: "No one can sell sewing machines lower than ourselves and live."

Another: Pullman Palace Car Perfume sold for .50 a bottle . . . "required but a few drops to perfume the handkerchief for days."

For the bride-to-be, his lingerie section touted: "bridal trousseau, set of three pieces, chemise and night dress, fancy 3-pointed embroidered front, with rows of fine tucks, fine embroidered edge, drawers to match. All made of Fruit of the Loom cotton and put up in neat box, $5.12."

He anticipated disappointments and offered this typical explanation: "We intended to get out an illustrated price list on ladies' hats, but have concluded dealing in them until another season."

Instructions to the man ordering a ready-to-wear suit were something of a hit-and-miss proposition: "Give your age and general build, and we will, in nine out of ten cases, give you a fit . . . state whether you have stooping or square shoulders."

As a copywriter, he would have shamed an Indian medicine man. This little gem of a cure-all must have been a big seller: "Hill's Metalic Electro Magnetic Brush . . . cures headaches, neuralgia, rheumatism, prevents hair from falling off and aids in restoring grey hair to its natural color, $1.25."

Ward's warranties spelled out some unusual limitations, especially in footwear: "Perspiration from some feet has the same ruinous effect on leather as a strong acid, hence we will not warrant boots worn without socks."

His "fatherly" image to farm families was a role earned by such helpful reminders as: "If you don't receive postal from us, saying your order has been received, see if order is not in your other coat pocket. Perhaps it is still in your post office without any stamp. Maybe you forgot to sign your name to the order . . . be sure to send enough money, if you send too much, we will return the change."

Aaron Montgomery Ward's catalog has come a long way since he first published it 100 years ago, but the tradition lives on. Today's giant Montgomery Ward general catalog with more than 130,000 listed articles continues to serve American families as the source book for practically all their living needs.

And the anniversary catalog of 1972 still states the guarantee that has made the company a great American enterprise: "If, when you receive your purchase, you find that it is not completely satisfactory, return it. We will gladly exchange it for something that is just right or refund the price and transportation charges you paid.

"If, after you have used your purchase, you find that it is not satisfactory to you and not covered by one of our Special Guarantees, simply return it to us and explain what is wrong. We will make an adjustment in cash, credit, merchandise or repair completely satisfactory to you."
